EVERCHANGING SPRING IN MARIN

The waters of San Pablo Bay are nearly motionless at low tide, as a lone fisherman busies himself in a boat off the pier at China Camp. The warm sun shines brilliantly on vegetation, bringing on growth that many Marinites say is so fast this time of year that one can almost see buds bursting into leaf. The calm air was a warm 78 degrees yesterday in San Rafael, but clouds building on the horizon presaged cool breezes that held today's temperature in the low 60s. It was spring, the time of the most changeability in Marin's weather.

Bagley Proposes Span Board Cut, Bonus To Marin

Mendocino, Del Norte Counties Would Lose Votes In District

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation to cut Mendocino and Del Norte counties out of the Golden Gate Bridge District was introduced today by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

The counties' two votes would be given to Marin and Napa counties, thus giving Marin four votes on the 18-member board and Napa two votes.

Bridge district directors historically have opposed any change in the composition of the six-county district.

The other counties are San Francisco, with nine votes, and Sonoma, with three votes.

Bagley's measure would leave it to the Marin County Board of Supervisors to appoint the fourth representative to the bridge board. Existing law requires that one of the three be a supervisor, one a city councilman and one a citizen appointed by the supervisors.

The fourth thus could come from any of these three categories.

Bagley said today it was anachronistic for the two northern counties to keep representatives on the bridge board.

"The problem of meeting the commuter crisis," he said, "is much better met by having a compact district whose directors are directly concerned with the problems faced by the district."

"This applies not only to the bridge's administration but also to its financing. The people of Del Norte and Mendocino can hardly be expected to look kindly on new bonding proposals, even revenue bonds alone, to be floated by the district."

The district is to submit to the Legislature this week alternate plans for upgrading public transit between North Marin and San Francisco which would mean bond financing.

The current president of the bridge board, Lowell Eddington of Napa County, long has been one of the bridge board's most outspoken opponents to any change in the district's composition. Bagley's award of an additional vote to Napa County, however, could soften Eddington's opposition.

Napa's additional board member either would be a county supervisor or a city councilman.

Bagley's measure would repay the two northern counties for their initial investment in 1929 to organize the district. The bill did not specify the amount of the repayment, but Bagley's staff said it would come to about $22,000, including interest at about 5 per cent.

The amount will be added in a later amendment.

Mendocino was assessed $3,737 in 1929 and Del Norte, $5,283. Only about 15 per cent of Mendocino's territory is in the bridge district.

Marin supervisors long have complained that the county did not have enough votes on the bridge board.

Present Communes Escape New Policy

Mill Valley's anticommune law, which goes into effect tomorrow, does not apply to communes now located in the community, City Atty. Leland H. Jordan has ruled.

The opinion, contained in a memorandum to City Mgr. William H. Cunningham, means that existing communes of more than five unrelated persons in single-family zones may continue in the city as legal nonconforming uses.

Meanwhile, a drive to collect 592 signatures to put the controversial commune law to a vote of the people entered its final countdown, with the outcome uncertain.

Members of the city youth commission and human rights board, along with other volunteers, said they have collected about 210 signatures on 18 petitions, but some 120 petitions still are being circulated. Signatures must be filed with the city clerk by 5 p.m. tomorrow.

Jordan said today that "the ordinance, in my opinion, is prospective and not retroactive. It would be an unlawful deprivation of property without due process" to evict communes when the ordinance takes effect tomorrow, he said.

The ordinance, adopted by the city council March 1, would prevent only new groups of more than five unrelated persons from locating in Mill Valley, Jordan said.

Further, he said, existing communes, as legal nonconforming uses, could be discontinued for up to a year without losing their right to stay in the city. If the use were to stop for more than a year or if the building housing a commune were destroyed by fire, flood or other natural disaster, the use would have to cease, Jordan said.

Plane Is Hijacked To China

HONG KONG (UPI)—Five "radical" young Filipinos hijacked a Philippine Air Lines (PAL) airliner to Communist China today with 19 hostages aboard, including four Americans. It was the first time a plane had been hijacked to Red China.

The twin-jet BAC111 was on a domestic flight from Manila to Davao City with 44 passengers and five crewmen aboard when the five Filipinos, brandishing pistols, a carbine and scissors, announced they were taking over the plane for "ideological reasons."

The airliner first flew to Hong Kong for refuelling and 20 of the passengers including an infant were released there. The plane then took off for Canton without awaiting clearance from Communist Chinese authorities for the trip. The hijackers said they hoped to fly to Peking.

Late today the plane was reported still at Canton's White Cloud Airport while the Chinese pondered what to do with the passengers. Canton air authorities did not reply to Hong Kong requests for information on when and whether the plane and passengers would be freed.

Since there was no precedent, Hong Kong authorities did not know what the Chinese would do, but diplomatic analysts specializing in Chinese affairs said they believed the Chinese would release the plane, passengers and crew and

Calley Defense Advising Jury On Verdict Uproar

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)—The defense in the court-martial of Lt. William L. Calley Jr. was given permission today to advise the jurors of the uproar their guilty verdict has caused before the panel passes sentence on him for 22 murders at My Lai.

Calley, his attorneys said, will speak out in his own behalf at the sentencing and make a plea for his life.

The judge, Col. Reid W. Kennedy, told defense attorney George W. Latimer he thought it would be proper for him to tell the jury about letters, telegrams and phone calls of sympathy the defense has received.

"It would seem to me you could work that (the communications) into arguments when you talk about the climate of the times and the fact that this case has attracted considerable public attention."

While permitting Latimer to speak about the reaction, Kennedy ruled that the jury should not be permitted to see the mail which has come in for the jury members themselves — much of it presumably pro-Calley.

The five-member draft board in Athens, Ga., resigned in protest over the verdict today, and a radio station in Wilmington, N.C., suspended public service announcements for the Army "to show our disapproval."

Many of the nation's newspapers spoke out editorially against the verdict, as did veterans' organizations and a number of congressmen.

In addition to being found guilty on three counts of premeditated murder of at least 22 women, children and old men at the Vietnamese hamlet of My Lai on March 16, 1968, Calley was also convicted of assault with intent to murder a 2-year-old Vietnamese child.

The jury that convicted Calley Monday will hear arguments late today by the defense in what is known under military law as "matters of mitigation and extenuation."

Calley will speak out at that time.

The judge said that in his instructions to the jury before they begin deliberating Calley's

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Those who have gone through the rigors of the investigation of My Lai and similar cases sympathized today with Lt. William L. Calley Jr. and decried his conviction of premeditated murder.

"They sent our boys over there to do a job and now this here is what's coming," said Mrs. Isiah Mitchell, mother of S. Sgt. David Mitchell who was found innocent in the first court-martial growing out of the My Lai killings.

Mrs. Mitchell of St. Francisville, La., who broke down in the courtroom and cried when her son was freed, said she knew Calley's mother was dead but "I would have loved to see a mother feeling for him. I feel for him."

"I am so thankful that I lived to see my own son through this. I know if Calley's mother was living she'd feel the same way. I just hate to see this thing happen to Lt. Calley."

Attorney John Kesler, who defended Paul Meadlo, a key witness in the case against Calley, said his reaction is "unbelievable and absolutely shocking."

"It is unbelievable that a jury could deliberate for almost two weeks and be uncertain and then after two weeks of floundering around be convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that he's guilty," he said.

The national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Herbert R. Rainwater, said his group will ask President Nixon to pardon Calley if Calley is unsuccessful in his appeals. "I don't think we will be the only ones entering into it," Rainwater said. He said if the President does not pardon Calley, the VFW will ask that his sentence be commuted.

Two Oklahoma state senators who flew to Vietnam last summer to successfully defend Marine Cp. Randall Herrod on similar charges in another incident, said Calley was only doing his duty.

"God help Lt. Calley," said Republican State Sen. Denzil Garrison. "God help the United States of America ... You can't fault a member of the armed forces for shooting women and children in Vietnam, because the enemy is largely women and children."

Capt. Ernest Medina and his attorney, F. Lee Bailey, said

Soviets Offer New Peace Plan

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union launched a new peace offensive today with a call for a world conference on general and total disarmament and a series of conferences of the five nuclear powers, including China, to ban nuclear arms.

The plea for world peace was made by General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev of the Communist Party in a six-hour keynote speech to the 24th Party Congress covering guidelines for domestic and foreign policy in the next five years.

He offered normal and improved relations to all countries from the United States and West Germany to Communist China.

The peace call was accompanied by the customary rhetorical muscle-flexing:

"Our glorious armed forces are prepared to repel an enemy attack at any time of the day or night from any quarter. Any possible aggressor is fully aware that in the event of attempting a nuclear attack on our country he will be dealt a devastating counter-blow."

The elegantly tailored Supreme Soviet leader, in dark suit and white tie, was addressing his top constituency —the 6,000 congress delegates in the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses.

More than 100 foreign delegations including the rulers of most Communist countries were present.

Brezhnev laid down six broad tasks of foreign policy which included:

—A ban on nuclear, chemical and bacteriological weapons, an end to weapons tests, and conferences of the Soviet Union, the United States, Britain, France and Communist China for complete nuclear disarmament.

—A world conference to consider general and total disarmament, with preliminary agreements to reduce military expenditures.

—"Eliminate the hotbeds of war in Southeast Asia and the Middle East" by promoting political settlement in those areas "on the basis of respect for the legitimate rights of states and peoples subjected to aggression."

—A move toward collective security in Europe with the "recognition of the territorial changes that occurred in Europe as the result of the Second World War." This would be preceded by the dismantling of the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance and its Communist counterpart, the Warsaw Pact.

—An implementation of all U.N. decisions to end colonialism and a condemnation of all racism.

—An expansion of relations with states which want to help conserve the environment, eradicate disease and help in space exploration.

Manson, Women Given Death

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A jury which believed it was protecting society from a dangerous influence Monday decreed death for Charles Manson and his women, who were dragged shrieking from the courtroom before the verdicts were read.

None of the four ever expressed any remorse for two nights of death and carnage in August, 1969, when pregnant actress Sharon Tate and six other persons were knifed and shot and their blood used to smear the words "Death to pigs" on the walls.

It took the seven men and five women on the jury 10 days to reach a verdict on the guilt of Manson, Susan Atkins, Patricia Krenwinkel and Leslie Van Houten, but only 10 hours to sentence them to death on all 27 counts of murder and conspiracy.

"We made our decision early," juror Marie Mesmer, a retired drama critic, told newsmen, "but we argued all the points so everyone would have a say-so.

"Charles Manson is a dangerous influence on society," she said. "I think I can go home with peace of mind now, knowing I have protected society."

The defendants, whose outbursts during the trial which lasted nine and a half months, cost nearly $1 million, and often caused them to be removed from the courtroom, came into court giggling and smirking.

Manson, whose forehead was carved with a swastika, had shaved his head, and the girls had shorn their waist-length tresses into close-cropped pixie cuts.

As the grim-faced jurors took their seats, Manson called out truculently, "I don't see how you can get away with not letting me put on a defense."

"You have no authority over me," he told the jurors.

"Half of you aren't as good as I am."

He was led out by bailiffs before even hearing the verdicts.

As death was decreed for the cult leader, the young women all began shouting.

"You've judged yourselves," Miss Atkins cried, lunging toward the jury box. She was restrained and led out.

Miss Krenwinkel echoed:

"You're removing yourselves from the face of the earth. You're all fools. There never has been any justice in this courtroom."

"Your system is just a game in which you all make money," Miss Van Houten shouted.

It took court clerk Gene Darrow more than 20 minutes to read the verdicts. The names of the victims were never mentioned.

Superior Court Judge Charles H. Older told the jury if it were in his power he would award them a medal for serving on the jury, which was sequestered longer than any other panel in history.

He stepped from the bench and shook hands with each juror, calling them by name.

He was to formally pronounce sentence April 19, but it was not expected that Manson and the women would be executed for at least three to five years, if ever. An appeal to the California Supreme Court is automatic in all death penalty cases.

"This isn't the end, this is just the beginning, because of all the nonsense," Manson's lawyer, Irving Kanarek said.

"The jury has perpetuated the very thing it sought to eradicate," defense attorney Paul Fitzgerald said.

"I fail to see how it solved anything. The society which kills its problem children denies itself," he added.

Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi said he believed the mainly middle-aged jury was "shocked and outraged at the savagery which came in the dead of night."

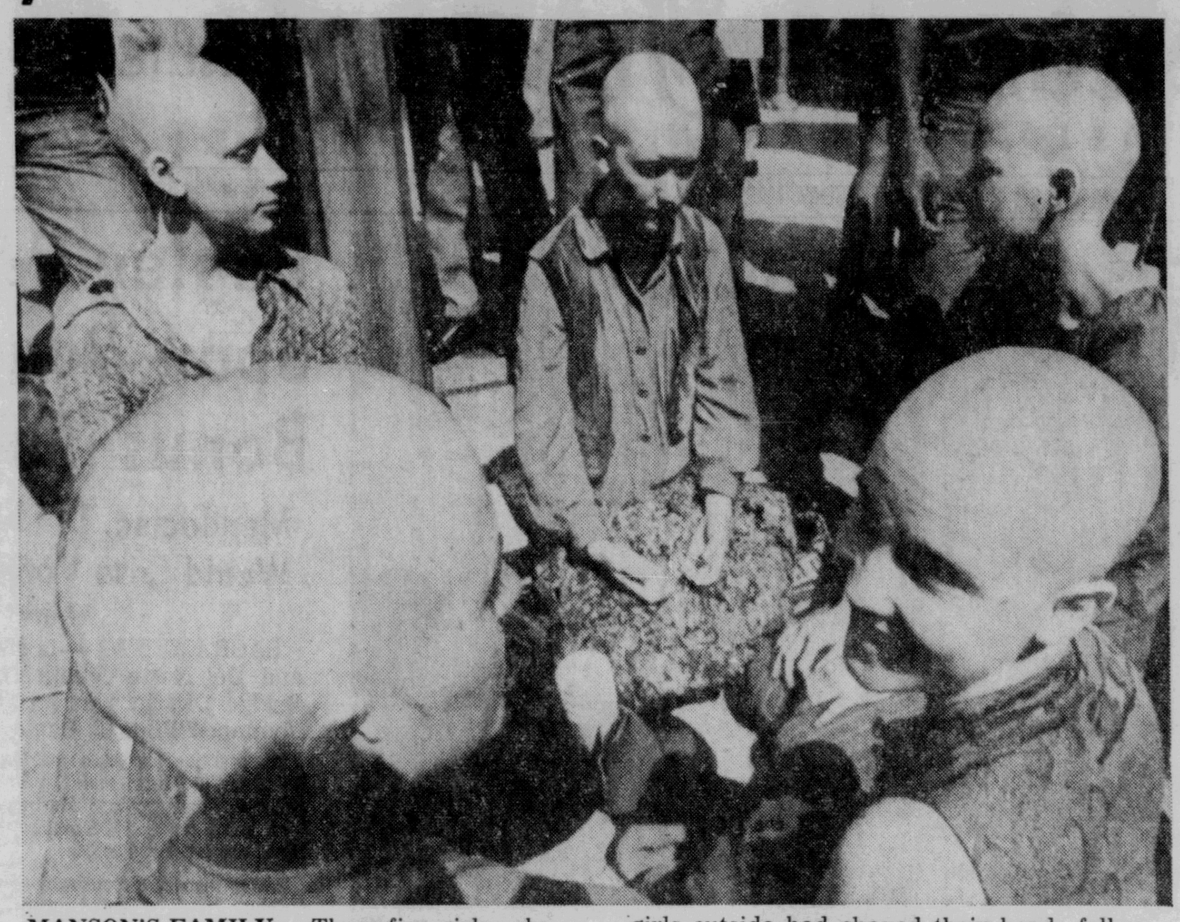

The mutilated bodies of the honey blonde actress, hair stylist Jay Sebring, coffee heiress Abigail Folger, Polish playboy Voityck Frykowski and teen-ager Stephen Parent were strewn about the grounds of the Tate estate, all shot and knifed to death.

Star prosecution witness Linda Kasabian, who was given immunity for her testimony, said Manson ordered the slaughters to ignite a race war from which he believed his own clan would rise as leaders.

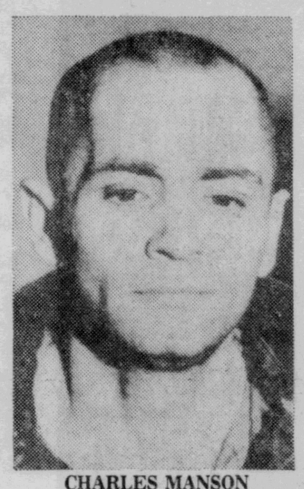

A fifth defendant, Charles "Tex" Watson, was not tried with the others because he successfully fought extradition to California until long after the trial began. After his arrival here, he was committed for a time to a state mental hospital.

He was discharged last month and is awaiting trial.

MANSON'S FAMILY — These five girls, who staged a vigil outside the Los Angeles Hall of Justice throughout the Tate-Labianca murder trial, were outside again yesterday when the jury returned the death verdicts for Manson and three girl co-defendants. The girls outside had shaved their heads following Manson's decision to cut his own hair off, and they refused to give their last names, saying they were (clockwise from upper left) Cappy, Kathy, Mary, Sandra and Brenda.

Nixon Issues Criteria On Pay In Building Trades

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon has broken with his long-standing belief in the sanctity of the free market process to impose a tightly structured "self regulation" on wages in the building trades.

Administration officials insist, owever, they have no plans to follow the anti-inflation action announced Monday with similar controls covering other industries.

Construction is unique, they said. It is too important to the economy, too fragmented in its traditional collective bargaining procedures, too prone to strikes and unemployment and, most important, too inclined to higher wages to be left alone.

The President issued an executive order from his California White House establishing criteria for wage settlements in the building trades. The formula restricts increases to about 6 per cent a year although slightly higher raises would be permitted to correct inequities between crafts and between geographic areas.

Nixon called the program "self regulation" because it would be administered by joint labor-management boards established for each craft. However, the boards' authority apparently would be restricted to applying the formula ordered by the government and to adjudicating cases covered by the relatively rare equity provisions.

An overall committee composed of representatives of labor, management and the general public would be established to oversee operation of the craft boards.

Shortly before Nixon announced the plan the House completed congressional action on an extension until June 1 of blanket presidential authority to impose controls on wages, prices, salaries and rents. Last year Nixon had said he did not want the authority. But he recently asked for the extension.

Nixon said Monday the success of his new order "will rest largely on the determined effort, the practical wisdom, and the mutual understanding of labor and management in an industry whose future is now being determined by its own excesses."

As a sweetener for labor, Nixon reinstated the Davis-Bacon Act which he suspended six weeks ago. That act, passed more than 30 years ago, requires payment of prevailing wages —usually the highest union-negotiated contract in a locality —on federal and federally assisted construction projects.

Administration officials said scores of contracts were renegotiated as a result of the suspension, producing generally lower cost to the government because of lower wage provisions. In some cases, non-union contractors were able to under bid contractors employing union labor as a result of the suspension.

Top Cairo Advisers In Paris Talks

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Cairo's two top foreign affairs diplomats and 18 Egyptian ambassadors met today in Paris to discuss strategy aimed at winning support from West European nations for Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territory.

In Amman, Palestinian guerrillas said Jordanian troops opened "heavy" fire today on commando bases in the town of Jarash, 24 miles north of King Hussein's capital. Egypt accused Jordan of trying to exterminate the Palestinian people.

Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad and Mohamed Hassan el-Zayyat, ambassador to the United Nations, were expected to report to Cairo's envoys to Western Europe on talks Monday with French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann and U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring.

Egyptian officials were particularly pleased at the outcome of the talks with Schumann, described by both sides as "fruitful."

Jarring refused to comment on his discussions with Riad. But Egyptian sources quoted the Swedish diplomat as saying th left New York because he saw no point in continuing the Middle East peace talks, which he described as a "vicious circle," until Israel replied to his proposals of Feb. 8. Egypt accepted the proposals, which called for complete Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai Peninsula.

The Swedish embassy said Jarring left Paris today for a brief stopover in Stockholm before returning to Moscow where he is Sweden's ambassador to the Soviet Union. The U.N. had announced earlier Jarring planned to spend the Easter holidays with his family and would return to New York in late April.

An Egyptian spokesman in Paris reported that Robert Anderson, political counselor at the U.S. embassy, delivered a message to Riad which reaffirmed Nixon administration support of Jarring's proposal for Israeli withdrawal in return for peace guarantees from Egypt.

An American embassy spokesman in the French capital described the message as "routine" and refused to elaborate.

The new round of fighting between the Jordanian army and the Arab guerrillas erupted last Friday. The Palestinians reported heavy casualties among guerrillas and civilians in what guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat has described as a "massacre."

Soviets Agree: Ban Biological Weapons

GENEVA (UPI)—The Soviet Union agreed today to Western proposals to ban biological weapons.

Moscow's new stance was a radical departure from previous demands for a treaty banning both biological and chemical weapons which the west had rejected because of problems of verifying implementation of the ban.

British and American Disarmament Conference officials said they welcomed the new Soviet line and believe final agreement on a biological weapon treaty can be reached without delay.

Backed by their Communist bloc partners, the Soviets presented to the 25-nation conference a draft treaty which would prohibit all means of biological warfare.

Although Western negotiators had expected the Soviets eventually to agree to a biological treaty, they had not expected such a sudden reversal.

They said Moscow apparently believes it now has enough propaganda mileage out of charges the West opposes a joint biological-chemical weapons ban because it wants to retain chemical means of warfare.

Soviet disarmament negotiator Alexei A. Roshchin and other Communist delegates emphasized this charge in their statements at today's conference session when presenting the Eastern draft treaty.

The U.S. and British position has been that a ban on chemical weapons would require strict verification to prevent cheating—the clandestine manufacture and stockpiling of such weapons.

Biological weapons, they maintain, can be outlawed without such verification because their usefulness as a means of fighting a war is doubtful in that they could easily "rebound" on a countrys own population.

U.S. and British officials also said the Soviet turn-around today in accepting the Western position may also be connected to the disarmament line adopted by Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev at the 24th Communist Party Congress in Moscow. (See story, page 1.)

Brezhnev called for a world disarmament conference, meetings between the five nuclear powers and steps towwards nuclear disarmament, including a comprehensive nuclear test ban.

Skunk Trains To Continue Service Despite Railpax

"We're going to run as usual," California Western Railroad general manager Ray Regalia said Monday of the popular tourist attraction which carries passengers over a 40-mile scenic route from Fort Bragg to Willits.

Legally, the two trains could drop their passenger service after Railpax goes into effect May 1.

The California Western is not in the Railpax network, but Regalia said the line had a heavy investment in its steam trains and many people who live in the Noyo River area depend on the Skunks for transportation.

U.S. Firms In Buenos Aires Hit By Bombs

Police said 10 of 11 bombs planted at U.S. business houses exploded. No injuries were reported.

Firms hit by the blasts included Ferguson Tractors, Minnesota of Argentina, International Tel. and Tel., United Shoe Co., and others.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

To Join Railpax

The Illinois Central, Burlington Northern and Union Pacific railroads announced Monday they will no longer operate independent passenger service, effective May 1, indicating they plan to join the National Railroad Passenger Corp. (Railpax).

May 1 is the date Railpax is scheduled to take over operation of a limited number of intercity passenger trains. Railroads which join Railpax may drop trains not included in the railpax schedule but must post 30 days notice of the discontinuance.

Therefore, if a railroad did not post such notices by April 1, it would be an indication they will refuse to join Railpax.

Lawyer's Body?

VENTURA, Calif. (UPI)—A decomposed body of a man, believed to be of missing Tate-Labianca defense lawyer Ronald Hughes, was airlifted out of a rugged wilderness area Monday and taken to a mortuary for identification.

The body, discovered during the weekend by two trout fishermen in the Los Padres National Forest, was taken by a navy helicopter to Santa Paula for an autopsy today.

Hughes, 35, disappeared during the Thanksgiving weekend on a camping trip, causing a delay in the murder trial while another attorney was selected to represent his client, Leslie Van Houten.

Soviet Buildup

LONDON (UPI)—The prestigious Institute for Strategic Studies said today the Soviet Union has concentrated some 32 divisions along its borders with Communist China and has moved 1,000 combat planes into neighboring Mongolia.

China, it added, also, may have reinforced its borders and after a brief improvement in Sino-Soviet relations "the clouds too obvious at the beginning of 1970 had closed in again" by the end of the year.

The Institute, an international defense center, said in its strategic survey of world security problems during 1970 that although several nuclear developments have brought Communist China "nearer to a useful delivery capability" no rockets as yet have been deployed.

Self-Protection

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—A Belfast prosecutor charged a British soldier today with maliciously wounding three men by shooting them in the legs during October street rioting in the capital.

The soldier, 27-year-old Royal Marine Jan Bek pleaded innocent to the charge that he shot the three men with a single bullet during fighting in the Protestant Crumlin Road section of the city.

Prosecutor Robert Babington said a group of rioters hurling rocks rushed Bek who fired a single shot, hitting all three in the thigh. The men were not named and did not appear in court today.

Bek's commander, Capt. Arthur Williams, said the crowd was "absolutely vicious" and the Marine fired only to save his own life.

Drafted, Too

MOSCOW (UPI)—A young Jew who was fined last week for taking part in a protest has been drafted into the Soviet army, Jewish sources said today.

The sources said Gabriel Shapiro, 26, received a draft notice ordering him to report for duty on April 5. He also was barred from entering the Soviet visa office to inquire about his application to emigrate to Israel, the sources said.

Shapiro was one of 39 persons arrested Friday at the office of Soviet attorney general Roman Rudenko. They had gone there to seek a reply to their protests against the treatment of imprisoned Jews in Leningrad, Riga and Kishinev.

To Visit Japan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan has accepted an invitation to visit Japan this fall and is thinking about extending the trip into Vietnam.

Reagan told UPI the Japanese government has invited him to the country as "kind of a goodwill thing" and "we have accepted."

"Japan and California trade relationships are a very big thing. We are great mutual customers," he pointed out Monday.

Asked if he also might fly on to Vietnam, the governor smiled and said, "well, there's some talk of that."

Ex-Aide Slain

KUWAIT (UPI)—Iraq's former vice president and onetime air marshal, Lt. Gen. Hardan Takriti, was assassinated today by five gunmen who riddled him with bullets in the courtyard of the Amiri Hospital.

Witnesses said Takriti, 42, in Kuwait to visit friends, was struck by 17 bullets. The gunmen opened fire while Takriti was sitting in the back seat of a 1969 American made car.

At least three other persons were wounded in the shooting, one of them a man standing in a telephone booth.

Takriti was stripped of all titles and decorations last October and named by Iraqi sources as scapegoat for Iraq's failure to support Palestinian guerrillas battling royal Jordanian forces last September.

U.S. Planes Strike Red Guns In DMZ

SAIGON (UPI)—Four U.S. Air Force jets attacked artillery emplacements in the North Vietnamese part of the so-called Demilitarized Zone Tuesday in a move to knock out long range guns capable of shelling American bases in South Vietnamese territory.

U.S. headquarters said North Vietnamese attacks in areas just below the DMZ killed five Americans and wounded 35. Three U.S. helicopters were shot down.

Military sources said the Air Force raids in the northern half of the DMZ—a six-mile-wide strip originally established as a buffer strip between North Vietnam and South Vietnam—were designed to protect American troops withdrawing from bases which were used to support the South Vietnamese offensive into Laos.

A terse announcement from U.S. headquarters said the raids were "protective reaction to save American lives." A Pentagon spokesman said last week North Vietnamese commanders had moved rockets and big guns into the DMZ in what appeared to be a major buildup as the South Vietnamese campaign in Laos drew to a close.

Military sources said the four-plane mission today blasted at least two artillery sites capable of shelling positions at least 12 miles away. One source said intelligence reports indicated the North Vietnamese began the artillery buildup at the end of February in the middle of the 45-day South Vietnamese offensive against the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos.

The headquarters announcement did not give a damage report on the air raids but the Air Force planes are equipped with electronically guided missiles which have an excellent record for accuracy.

Intensive fighting flared meanwhile in Cambodia 12 miles south of Phnom Penh today. Two OH6 helicopters were shot down and units who tried to rescue their crews were driven off by Communist gunfire. Field officers supporting elements of the 94th and 153rd Cambodian Infantry Battalions did not say whether the 'copters were American or South Vietnamese.

To the southwest, a Cambodian task force trying to break through a 10-mile Communist-occupied stretch of Highway 4 linking Phnom Penh and the sea were pushed back four miles by heavy Communist resistance Monday night.

There was no immediate report on whether the Communist artillery battery was knocked out by the air strike in the DMZ. Although U.S. spokesmen also declined to locate the battery, a military source said the guns were within firing range of Dong Ha, the northern headquarters of the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division and rear base for the Laotian drive.

"Following increased enemy attacks by fire on military and civilian facilities at several locations in Military Region I, a North Vietnamese army artillery site in the northern half of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) was struck by four U.S. tactical aircraft this afternoon in a protective reaction mission," the U.S. Command said.

Last Friday, North Vietnamese gunners fired 25 rounds of artillery shells at the Dong Ha base, military sources said, and the South Vietnamese artillery lacked sufficient range to reply to the shellings. The shells were believed to have been fired from inside or just north of the six-mile wide DMZ.

Jerry Lewis Spoofs A State Legislature

BOSTON (UPI) —Compared with most legislative days, there was a large turnout Monday as comedian Jerry Lewis addressed the Massachusetts House for the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America, asking support for efforts to fight the crippling disease.

About one-half the 240 house members were on hand to hear Lewis quip, "never have I worked a house with so many empty seats."

Dixie Candidates Split On Theory

By LARRY MOWELL

Candidates for the Dixie School District board agreed last night that the state should pay a greater share of the cost of education and that teachers are the key to sound education, but disagreed on topics the audience of more than 50 came to hear about.

Those in the audience who asked questions following the prepared speeches asked what kind of classroom environment each of the seven candidates would work for.

When asked about flexibility in content and grading, Addyse L. Palagyi, 43, a former teacher and education writer, said she would abolish grades tomorrow if possible.

She advocated a system of cooperating with, as opposed to operating children. "There is much more to learning than just basic skills," she said.

Ruth W. Rosen, 33, also a former school teacher, agreed saying the school should teach a child "to know how to learn." This should be done through a variety of programs tailored to individuals, she said.

The third former educator running for the board, Patricia A. Gryson, 42, also favored the trend to more flexible classroom forms as long as they are effective.

However, she opposed abolition of grades in favor of written reports. She favored a system in which the teacher would indicate a child's level of achievement on a scale. She maintained that a uniform grading system is necessary to avoid confusion.

Attorney Duncan McDonald said he favors innovations like combining grades and classes without grades as long as parents approve. He endorsed giving maximum flexibility to teachers who can educate.

Dentist Donal A. McEnhill, 41, and Albert L. Robison, an industrial educator, said they would have to examine each case on its merit.

McEnhill, however, endorsed the present classroom policies of the district and added the purpose of education is "to get necessary skills."

Irwin Taranto, 35, the seventh of the candidates running for two seats in the April 20 election, said it is not a trustee's job to tell teachers how to teach. "We hire professionals to do that," he said. Taranto is a consultant specializing in computer-based systems.

Differences of opinion also arose over whether the state should continue to select textbooks for school districts. Mrs. Gryson said, "I don't like to sit here tonight and think of people throwing out the state texts."

She said she had taught with some bad ones, but maintained they could be made interesting with supplements. She said the uniformity is good for students who transfer.

Davidson countered that the state uses the standardized list because it can buy the books more cheaply by buying the printing plates. However, these are not sold until the books are three or four years old, he said. "I think that the state texts are behind the times," he said.

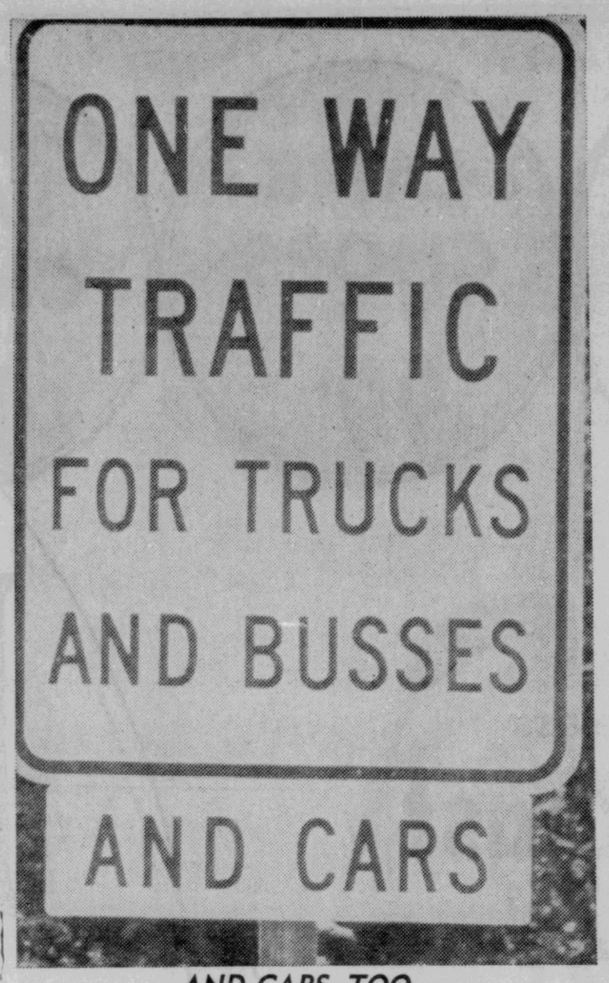

Mrs. Rosen agreed. "I don't see why we have to settle for less than the best," she said.

Mrs. Rosen, Davidson, Robison, and McEnhill all said that the district should control the textbooks used. Mrs. Palagyi and Taranto took no position.

No one criticized the existing board of trustees and there was relatively little discussion of finance, a sore spot in other districts in Marin and the state hit hard by state and federal cutbacks. Candidates said the district is not in financial straits because the general purpose tax rate was increased 50 cents to $3.85 per $100 assessed valuation last year.

However, they urged lobbying in Sacramento to convince the state to resume a larger load of the cost of education.

Mrs. Palagyi called for the institution of a uniform statewide school tax of $3.75 per $100 assessed valuation, an arrangement being pushed by Wilson Riles, state superintendent of public instruction.

AND CARS, TOO

This sign is probably causing double thoughts on a county road east of Newport, Ore. Are cars getting bigger, or did the Lincoln County Engineering Department want to eliminate any discrimination?

Novato 'Bedroom Tax' Is Favored

By FRANK FARRARA

Despite strong opposition from the building industry, the Novato Planning Commission last night voted 5-2 to recommend a "bedroom tax" on new residential development for park and recreation facilities.

Speakers protested the proposal as a hidden tax, an inequitable tax, taxation without representation and a move to circumvent the wishes of the voters who have defeated park bond issues.

Chairman Paul A. Oatis, who agreed it would be "taxation without representation," and Commissioner Ben F. Edwards, who felt it would be "double taxation," dissented.

Park and Recreation Director Edward W. Adams said the proposed revenues would enable the city to provide neighborhood parks it cannot now provide without raising the general tax rate.

The proposed tax would be $75 for the first bedroom and $15 for each additional bedroom in new residential developments, including mobile homes and apartments.

Opponents charged it was unfair and unethical to levy the tax on newcomers and contended that park and recreation facilities should be financed by the entire community.

Commissioners who favored the tax pointed out that the newcomers will use facilities paid for by present residents and contended that the proposed tax wasn't high.

The intent, according to the planning staff, is to place the burden of paying for park and recreation facilities on residential development, which generates the need for such facilities.

David G. Greenlee, executive manager of the Marin Builders Exchange, representing about 360 construction industry firms in Marin, recalled that residents defeated park bond issues three times.

The proposed tax "will be so well hidden and so misnamed that a resident, new or old, won't even realize that he has been taxed until he buys a new or used home," and would allow "the city to circumvent the expressed wishes of the taxpayer."

Carl S. Brown, executive director of the Redwood Empire Chapter, Building Industry Association, said the constitutionality of the "bedroom tax" is being challenged in court.

He proposed an alternative: a "broadly based tax, calculated on a percentage of the building permit valuation of all construction done in the city," with a "system of credits for open space amenities created by the builder in his development."

Also opposing the tax were Terry Curran, representing Alameda Homes Corp., which plans a large development at Black Point, and A. C. Signorelli, San Anselmo contractor.

Adams in rebuttal said new residents would have the benefit of parks already developed, and that "many cities using the bedroom tax haven't been challenged in court."

Commissioner Edwards said new residents shouldn't be made "the fall guy" because the city needs financing for parks and recreation.

Chairman Oatis said: "I couldn't vote to tax people without giving them the right to vote for it."

Councilmen authorized drawing up of an amendment which would give a developer credit for any recreation facilities he provided that would be "appropriate and available for public use."

The Novato Planning Commission also:

PIPELINE — Approved plans by the Marin Municipal Water District for a pipeline from Lamont Avenue to Hamilton Air Force Base, the first phase of a line which will carry water from the Russian River to San Rafael and Mill Valley.

TREE RULES — Approved a supplement to the subdivision ordinance requiring that trees removed in grading be replaced.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned until 8 p.m. April 12 at Novato Community House.

Stereo Taken

Stephen E. O'Shea, 855 Schuman Lane, Petaluma, told police that a stereo tape player and 12 tapes valued at $120 were stolen from his car while parked yesterday near the Sonoma-Marin fairgrounds.

Motorist Sees Inmate Escape

Seeing a man jump over the wall and run off into the nearby hills about 3:10 p.m., the observant driver immediately called prison officials.

A check revealed Glen Fisher, 29, who is serving five years to life imprisonment for a Contra Costa County burglary, was missing from the ground crew. He didn't get far. Fisher was in custody by 3:30. Officials picked him up on a hill near the prison cemetery.

Alioto Vows To Remain On Job

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto told the Board of Supervisors on Monday he intends to remain a fulltime mayor despite a federal indictment returned against him in Seattle.

"I intend to continue to function fully as mayor throughout this period and expect to deal with day-to-day activities of the city government as I have done for the past three years," he declared. "I have been and shall remain not just a fulltime mayor but an overtime mayor as well."

Alioto also hinted that he might seek reelection by saying: "The overwhelming expression of public support leads me to believe that San Franciscans will not permit political strategists from Washington, D.C., or Seattle to determine the outcome of their elections."

Weissich Performs Ear-Wiggling Act

"Yes," said Shirley Copland from the witness stand, indicating that the finger wiggling drama was what she had seen James Lewis Green of Tiburon do in December 1968.

Mrs. Copland was a witness yesterday as testimony resumed following a nine-month recess in civil suits filed against each other by feuding neighbors in Tiburon.

Green, of 2300 Vista Del Mar Lane, is suing and being sued by Nathaniel Marans who lives next door at 2312 Spanish Trail Road.

Marans and his wife, Violet, are asking Judge Thomas F. Keating to determine the common property line between the two and to award them $5,660 in damages.

Green and his wife, Claire, are asking $75,000 for assault and "intentionally caused emotional distress."

Mrs. Copland, testifying in behalf of the Maranses yesterday, recounted a visit she made to their home in 1968.

She was sitting in the yard with her hosts, she said, when Green entered his yard and began making noises, grinning, giggling and jumping around.

She said that Green did something with his hands, but declined to reenact the scene for the court.

Weissich, who represents the Maranses, staged his thumb-in-ear performance, and Mrs. Copland agreed that that was exactly what Green had done.

Mrs. Copland said she and the Marans finally went indoors when Mrs. Marans became distraught at Green's alleged performance.

"I was willing to stay," Mrs. Copland said, "I'd never seen anything like it."

Marans took the stand yesterday to repeat his story of events between the two neighbors beginning in 1967.

The feud's highlights, as recounted by Marans, include ripped-out fence posts and vines, a torn-up tree, strategically placed 400-watt floodlights, flat tires and dog manure.

Firing Case Produces Huge Suit

A fired Sausalito police sergeant filed a $1,250,000 suit yesterday in Marin Superior Court, charging "professional negligence" against Greenbrae psychiatrist Edward E. Shev.

The former policeman, Thomas H. Zink, 33, was fired last May after 11 years on the Sausalito force.

In support of his dismissal, he was charged with arriving late for work, negligent handling of firearms, emotional instability and having the odor of alcohol on his breath.

In his suit, Zink claims that Shev "negligently and carelessly examined and diagnosed" him in April of last year, and reported to Sausalito Police Chief James Wight that Zink was emotionally disturbed.

Shev had been hired by Sausalito to conduct therapy sessions for the city's police department.

Zink's appeal of his firing was heard by a state hearing officer last November and December, and the officer recommended that Zink be reinstated to the police force, but demoted to patrolman.

Action on that recommendation was postponed by the Sausalito City Council after a three-hour closed meeting in February.

Zink's suit asks $500,000 in general damages from Shev, and $750,000 in punitive and exemplary damages.

Calley Defense Gets Time To Air Uproar

penalty "I'll tell them death or life imprisonment is mandatory ... and I'll tell them once again to bring in a single sentence."

Latimer said he planned to call no witnesses, except Calley, in the mitigation attempt. The lieutenant, who spent the night as prisoner No. 179 in the Ft. Benning stockade, proved to be an articulate and forthright speaker when he took the stand in his own defense.

The prosecutor, Capt. Aubrey M. Daniel III, objected strongly to Latimer's being allowed to tell the jurors the sympathetic tenor of communications he has received, but Kennedy overruled him.

The judge said he would tell the jury it could not consider any acts of misconduct that were not charged against Calley. The government was allowed during the trial to present evidence that Calley two weeks prior to the March 16, 1968 My Lai operation had shot a Vietnamese man who had been thrown into a well and that during the massacre at My Lai had killed a young Vietnamese girl who was approaching with her hands raised in a surrender sign.

Latimer in his argument will ask the jury to reduce the verdict to a charge less than premeditated murder, which is its prerogative under military law. If it reduced the verdict to unpremeditated murder or manslaughter, the sentence could be cut down to mere dismissal from the Army or no penalty at all. Unpremeditated murder carries a maximum of life in prison at hard labor.

Voluntary manslaughter has a maximum of 10 years on each count, a possible 40 years.

Kennedy said he would tell the jurors "if they found Lt. Calley was operating under orders, this would be a matter of extenuation."

Calley has maintained his company commander, Capt. Ernest L. Medina, ordered the killing of every living thing in My Lai, including women and children. Twenty-one other defense witnesses so testified, but 11 prosecution rebuttal witnesses said Medina gave no such order, and Medina himself testified he specifically instructed his men not to kill women and children and never ordered Calley to "waste" civilians.

The case of "United States vs. Calley" was far from an end. Latimer said he would appeal the verdict all the way up through the Military Court of Appeals, which automatically will review the decision.

Calley was referred to court-martial on Nov. 24, 1969, charged with 109 murders. The government later cut it to at least 102. Apparently because of conflicting testimony by many of the 103 witnesses as to the number of bodies in two slaughtered groups, the jury reduced that to at least 22.

These included one at a trail intersection where the government charged 30 died; 20 in a ditch where the government alleged 70, and one white-robed man who a witness said looked like a monk.

A fourth charge of murder of a 2-year-old child was reduced to a finding of guilty of assault with intent to murder, since the witness said he saw Calley fling the baby into a ditch and fire down into the ditch but did not see the bullet strike.

Calley denied all except firing six to eight shots along with others of his platoon into the ditch with his muzzle only five feet from the villagers, but said he doesn't know whether he hit anybody. Five of his platoon testified they saw his bullets ripping into the screaming group in which mothers were diving protectively on top of their children.

The government charged the slaughter was by Calley's own hand or by his platoon members at his command. Calley testified he told one of his soldiers, Paul D. Meadlo, to "waste" one group of prisoners.

Calley's was the first capital case to be tried on charges growing out of the May Lai massacre of March 16, 1968, and the first conviction. Sgts. David Mitchel and Charles E. Hutto were acquitted of assault with intent to murder while the Calley case was in progress.

The Calley case was a landmark in military jurisprudence, both the longest court-martial and longest deliberation in American history. There has been no trial in the Army with as many alleged murders and no military trial with multiple alleged murder of persons whose names were unknown.

The trial began Nov. 12. The jury got the case on the third anniversary of My Lai. Its verdict came on the second anniversary of the March 29, 1969, letter by Ronald L. Ridenhour to the White House and Congress that sparked the My Lai investigation.

Mailliard Coauthors Viet Bill

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, yesterday coauthored a joint resolution in Congress calling for cessation of ground combat by U.S. troops in Indochina by June 1.

The resolution would not affect troops which are "defending U.S. forces in the process of being withdrawn," according to a statement from the congressman's office in Washington.

Mailliard, who has been a supporter of President Richard M. Nixon's Indochina policies, said the resolution essentially embodies a recent statement by Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird that American troops would be relieved of a combat role by the end of this fiscal year (June 30.)

Woman Tells Of Attack

A 21-year-old San Francisco woman has told the California Highway Patrol she was kidnapped by a man who attempted to rape her but that she managed to escape by jumping from his truck on Highway 37 east of Black Point.

The woman, Lisa Michele Smith, was held overnight at Novato General Hospital for a possible skull fracture and then sent home.

The highway patrol said she gave this account of the incident, which occurred Friday at 2:10 p.m.:

Hitchhiking to Sausalito from 19th Avenue in San Francisco, she was given a ride by a man in a red and white pickup truck. Instead of letting her off in Sausalito, the man told her he had a gun in his pocket and would not release her until she made love to him.

During a ride along Highway 101 and then east on Highway 37, the man grabbed her arm twice because she would not submit to him. She fought back by scratching his neck.

When the truck slowed down to about 50 miles per hour a mile west of Lakeville Road, she opened the door and jumped out. The man stopped briefly but fled when a passing motorist stopped to help her.

Miss Smith described her assailant as in his late 30s, of slender build, with brown hair combed back and long sideburns and blue eyes. He was wearing dark cowboy boots and a brown jacket and his truck had a model of a horse as a hood ornament.

Miss Smith said the man told her he raised horses in San Jose.

REACTION

they would issue a joint statement today in Bailey's office in Boston. Medina was Calley's commanding officer and testified he did not order Calley to shoot civilians.

Both critics and proponents of the Vietnam War were generally critical of the verdict.

"I think it's a mistake to make one man the scapegoat for a mistake in national policy," said Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., an antiwar critic.

The White House had no official comment on the verdict.

Radio Station WJET in Erie, Pa., selected 35 persons at random and asked them their opinion of the verdict. Only one approved of it while 31 denounced it and three had no opinion.

Radio station WHSL in Wilmington, N.C., today suspended public service announcements for the Army as a protest against the conviction of Lt. William L. Calley for the murder of civilians at My Lai.

WHSL general manager Bill Humble took the action and said he hoped other radio station woud follow suit.

Humble said the station has normally carried numerous free advertisements for the Army as part of its public service responsibilities.

Humble said he announced on the air that "to show our disapproval with the verdict.

Also many American GIs in Vietnam complained today that 1st Lt. William Calley was given a "bum deal" and made a scapegoat by the army heirarchy. Some saw Calley's conviction for the My wai massacre as just.

"With all that publicity they had to blame someone and they kept him as a scapegoat," said WO James Rodgers, 22, of Panama City, Fla., one of dozens of GIs questioned about the verdict.

HIJACK

permit the hijackers to remain in China if they wished.

A closely related incident might give a clue. Two years ago a Cambodian airliner with a large number of Americans aboard was diverted from Hong Kong and landed in Canton. The plane and passengers were permitted to leave within a short time.

The U.S. embassy in Manila identified four Americans as passengers, and said it did not appear they were released in Hong Kong. They were Mr. and Mrs. Russel E. Ebersole of Jersey City, N.J., George W. Drysdale of Waukegan, Ill., and Eldred Fewkes of Burley, Idaho.

One of the passengers released here, Carlos G. Platon, 30, a Filipino attorney, said he talked with one hijacker, "a 17-year-old Filipino who looked like a university student."

Platon said "I asked him why they wanted to go to China. He said it was for ideological reasons. They were armed with two .22 pistols, another gun, a pair of scissors and a carbine."

"Oh boy, the passengers were scared," Platon said.

He said four of the hijackers were Filipinos while the other appeared to be Filipino-Chinese. He said they were between the ages of 17 and 25 and belonged to "some young radical group, some rebel group" in the Philippines.

A Hong Kong airport official, J. F. Pickering, talked with the hijackers, who at first agreed to release all the passengers before taking off for China but later decided to hold some of them as hostages. The airport radioed Canton's White Cloud airport for clearance and weather conditions, but the PAL plane took over before the clearance arrived.

The passengers who were released were forced to sit under the wings of the plane until it started moving for the runway to take off.

The PAL hijacking was the first to Communist China. An earlier attempt to take a plane to China was attempted on another PAL plane in 1952 but the DC3 was forced down on the Nationalist Chinese island of Quemoy.

There have been several Asian hijackings in which the planes were taken to Communist North Korea.

Dynamite Found Atop Station

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Seven sticks of dynamite and a charred fuse which apparently went out were found on top of a downtown San Francisco police station today.

Police said it would have "blown a hole right through the roof" and injured or killed occupants inside if it had gone off.

Sgt. Norman Pearsall said the dynamite was found about 9:25 a. m. at the Mission Station, 1240 Valencia, after a neighbor, Mrs Pearlie Mae Griggs, looked down from her upper-floor apartment and saw it.

Pearsall climbed to the top of the two-story police station and found the dynamite, wrapped in an old fatigue jacket, with the charred end of the fuse protruding and several burned matches round it.

"It looks like they got it lit and then the wind blew it out, or they took off because they thought they would be apprehended," Pearsall said.

Lt. Norbert Currie of the police bomb squad said the dynamite was removed and taken to the police laboratory for study.

"Seven sticks of dynamite placed on any kind of a building would blow a hole right through the roof," he said. "The people down below would have got hurt."

No Criminal Charge In Man's Drug Death

No criminal charge is planned in connection with the death of a young man who died Feb. 25 at Center Point, a San Rafael antidrug center, Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas said yesterday.

Thomas added, however, that police are still investigating the center to determine if the state's regulations concerning such treatment homes and hospitals for addicts are being met.

Thomas said that while it appeared the staff at Center Point "was at the least, illegally practicing medicine," that his office does not have sufficient evidence to proceed with a case.

Meanwhile, Coroner's Investigator Keith C. Craig said that Guy T. Johnson, 25, of Oakland, died as a result of an overdose of morphine. He said that tests showed that his body also contained traces of cocaine, a drug sometimes used to offset heroin and morphine overdoses.

Johnson was brought to Center Point at 805 D Street by a young woman companion who asked that he not be taken to a hospital. Staff members tried for five hours to save him, but he was pronounced dead at Marin General Hospital where he was finally taken after police and an ambulance were called.

Thomas said that the only witnesses in the case were themselves involved in the incident.

He added, however, that an investigation was being made to determine if Center Point officials are complying with laws that require registration of such facilities and periodic inspection by state authorities.

Thomas also said that residents of drug addiction treatment centers are required to register with officials.

Rex Hutchison, 22-year-old former drug addict who runs Center Point, has asked that medical "backup" aid be provided to Center Point and other such facilities.

Sonoma, Solano Air Exclusions On Tap

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Excluding portions of Sonoma and Solano counties from the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District will be considered by the state Air Resources Board on April 21.

Both counties requested the exclusions of areas they said did not contribute to the Bay Area's air pollution because the areas were in different air basins.

The state board will meet at 9:30 a.m. in the Resources Building, Sacramento.

A 1970 law annexed to two counties and Napa to the six-county district, but allowed them to petition the state board for partial exclusions. The annexation will take effect on July 1.

The regional board has voted to oppose their petitions before the state board on the ground that contaminants blow into the Bay Area from the adjacent air basins.

Sonoma has asked to exclude its territory generally north of the Russian River, and Solano has asked to exclude its territory northeast of the range of hills at Fairfield.

Four Sausalito School Candidates Will Speak

Four candidates for two seats on the Sausalito School District board, to be filled in a county-wide schools election April 20, will speak and answer questions at the Sausalito Citizens Council's candidates night Thursday at 8 p.m. at Central School in Sausalito.

Incumbent Delta M. Christ, whose term expires July 1, is seeking re-election to the board. Also contending for the seats are Lillie M. Hill of Marin City and Sandra Marshall and Warren K. Hansen, both of Sausalito. Robert R. Lyon, who's term also expires in July, has decided not to run again.

The citizens council has asked the candidates to discuss whether the district's academic levels can be raised to "excellent standards" and if the cost per pupil can be brought down "to a reasonable level." Cost of educating each child is currently approximately $1,900 a year.

The candidates will also voice their opinions on consolidation of the Sausalito School District with other Southern Marin districts and on facilities use for next year.

They will also be asked if the $40,000 which the district loses annually in taxes because of Marin City public housing should be reimbursed to the district by the county of Marin.

Teamsters Mum On Chavez Pact

BURLINGAME, Calif. (UPI) —The Western Conference of Teamsters does not seem to see eye to eye with Cesar Chavez on details of last week's "peace pact" regarding California farm workers.

High Teamster officials have been "unavailable for comment" since the agreement was announced in Washington last week by AFL-CIO president George Meany and Teamster vice president Frank Fitsimmons.

It provides for arbitration of jurisidictional disputes between the Teamsters and the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee (UFWOC) whose eight month fight in the Salinas Valley resulted in Chavez's urging of a national lettuce boycott.

Chavez said he felt the pact meant the Teamsters would give up their contracts if the arbitrator so found.

Blooming Near Along The Coast

SAN FRANCISCO — The time is nearly ripe for a spectacular blooming of the wild pink and red California rhododendrons at Kruse Rhododendron Reserve north of Ft. Ross, according to the Redwood Empire Assn.

While the finest clusters of the 20- to 30-foot high rhododendron bushes are found at the reserve, they will be blooming along the Sonoma and Mendocino coasts late this month, depending on the weather.

A rhododendron festival is scheduled at Ft. Bragg for May, the association reported.

Azaleas will be blooming at about the same time in the redwood glens along Bull Creek, the Eel River, and Prairie Creek in Humboldt County. A state Azalea Reserve is located on U.S. 101 at State Route 299 north of Arcata.

The association reported a Redbud festival is scheduled for June in the Clearlake Highlands. The redbuds are prolific around Clear Lake starting in April.

Federal Hearing Told Whaling Industry Nearing Its Life Span

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A federal hearing officer was warned here yesterday that the last remnants of the United States whaling industry faced shutdown, but the move would do nothing to protect the whales.

Gerald V. Howard, regional director of the federal marine fisheries service for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration of the U.S. Department of Commerce, conducted the hearing.

At issue was the order issued March 1 by Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans, banning the killing of whales by any fisherman operating from U.S. ports.

The only U.S. whaling firm still in operation is the Del Monte Fishing Co., headed by John A. Caito of 25 Prince Royal Passage, Corte Madera. His firm uses a fleet of three converted submarine chasers and leases a rendering plant in Point Richmond, Contra Costa County.

Stanley J. Cook, attorney for Caito's firm, argued that his client could only take a maximum of 169 whales a year, while Russia and Japan are allowed 20,000 whales a year under international agreements.

John A. Moore of Richmond, superintendent of the whaling plant, urged, "Why not take the 169 whales out of Japan's and Russia's quotas and keep us in business?"

Stan's order, intended to take effect with the beginning of the whaling season Thursday, was designed to protect finback, sei and sperm whales, which are the only species still hunted commercially. The federal official declared the species were in danger of extinction.

Dr. George Sugarman of 59 East View Avenue, Tiburon, spoke in favor of the whaling ban. He expressed hope that Japan and Russia could be persuaded to follow the U.S. example to avert an "environmental disaster."

He compared whaling to the 19th Century slaughter of buffalo in the U.S., and argued that whales should not be killed to provide pet food. However, he stressed, the Del Monte firm should be fully compensated for the loss of business, and every effort made to retain and reemploy the employees affected by the ban. Sugarman spoke as a concerned individual.

Also supporting the ban was Roderick A. Cameron, executive director of the Environmental Defense Fund in Washington, D.C. He complained that the International Whaling Commission had been "inexcusably late, unexplainably generous to the industry" on quotas, despite modern techniques that have greatly increased the annual whale killing rate.

Cameron said his organization felt that if reforms were made in the whaling industry, it might be possible to remove the three species from the endangered list.

Hearing officer Howard said his report on the testimony and recommendations would be placed on Stans's desk tomorrow morning.

Charles Caito, a member of the whaling firm, told the Independent-Journal today that his firm had completed all preparation for the whaling season before Stans issued the order March 1, and now will await his decision on the hearing.

Only about one fourth of the firm's catch is used for pet food, Caito noted.

Aid Changes To Be Discussed

President Nixon's revenue-sharing proposal and other impending changes in federal aid programs will be discussed Thursday night before Marin's City County Planning Council.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the faculty lounge at Redwood High School in Larkspur.

Main speaker will be James Price, local area director of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The city-county planning council also will hear from its committee on environmental quality. The committee recommends that the county's agricultural preserve area not be cut back to lands already under agricultural preserve contract.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Insurance Bill To Aid Middle Class

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation was proposed Monday to set up an insurance program which would prevent the middle-class working man's family from being "driven to its knees" by catastrophic illnesses.

The bill was submitted by Assemblyman William Campbell, R-Hacienda Heights, who said it could cost the working man as little as $1 a month with the employer matching the amount.

Campbell said the exact amount for the insurance would be set after an acturial study conducted by a private company. He added the Assembly Rules Committee would be asked to provide funds for the study.

He said the $1 figure was reached after a preliminary investigation.

Campbell, chairman of the Assembly Health Committee, said between 7 and 8 million California working men—with salaries ranging between $7,000 and $20,000—would be eligible for the insurance. In all, he added, 17.6 million persons would be covered by the program.

He described a catastrophic illness as that "which causes medical expenses greatly in excess of what the average working man can afford."

Campbell said persons would be covered after their regular, private insurance ran out. He noted some people now are faced with hospital care for years at $50 to $100 a day.

Now, he said, the only persons who can afford catastrophic illnesses were those under Medi-Cal or the wealthy.

"For the middle-income Californian who earns too much to receive Medi-Cal and is not rich enough to meet these staggering obligations," he told a news conference, "the result of catastrophic illness is instant poverty.

"The family is driven to its knees."

Campbell said the insurance would be administered by a health security board of five members with the governor and legislature appointing them.

AEROSPACE AID

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Senate has voted 27-0 to ask the federal government to provide money for economic hardships suffered by aerospace workers as a result of the death of the supersonic transport.

The measure by Sen. James Q. Wedworth, D-Hawthorne, was sent to the Assembly Monday.

"We're just getting into a deplorable unemployment situation in Southern California," Wedworth said, noting the dire effect the congressional action on SST would have on aerospace jobs.

PHOSPHATE BAN

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A bill banning detergents with phosphates in California by 1974 was proposed Monday in the legislature.

The author, Assemblyman Ernest Lacoste, D-Modesto, said phosphates pollute the water as well as encourage growth of algae and other water plants which use up oxygen and kill fish and other aquatic life.

"The flow of such detergent waste from municipal and industrial discharges has virtually threatened thousands of our lakes, streams and bays in the United States," Lacoste said.

VANDALISM BILL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A pre-vandalism bill requiring fulltime University of California and state college students and faculty to pay a $100 "facilities fee" was proposed Monday in the legislature.

Assemblyman Floyd Wakefield, R-South Gate, said the funds from his bill would be used for repair of any damage to campus facilities and property "as a result of a riot or vandalism."

Five more candidates have filed nomination papers for the June 8 Petaluma municipal election.

Filing for four-year terms on the city council were Clarence Franklin Hilgeford, 53, a retired Air Force lieutenant colonel, and Rodney L. Cameron, 35, who works in computer operations.

Returning nomination papers for the Petaluma Hospital District board were Harry S. Nielsen, a banker and farmer, and Wayne S. Davis, a retired military officer who currently manages apartments at 337 South McDowell Boulevard. Dr. Frederick A. Groverman and Earl W. (Bill) Schneider had previously filed for the hospital board.

Filings will close at noon Thursday. Three four-year terms and a two-year term for the city council will be up for election as well as two seats on the hospital board and two seats on the board of education.

Red Cross Moves For Minorities

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The American Red Cross' new president says his agency is going to emphasize involvement in the minority group community.

George Elsey, the new president, met Monday with Red Cross officials here and said a service center would be founded in San Francisco's Mission District.

The center is to include programs for home nursing, pre-natal care, nutrition training, first-aid and job placement services for recently discharged military men.

All that will be in addition to the traditional Red Cross programs in disaster and public health nursing.

As part of the program in minority 'group areas, Elsey said his organization would knock "on every door."

Legal Scrap Begins In Werber Hearing

Filing of a complaint against Sausalito restaurateur Frank N. Werber, arrested in a drug raid Friday, was postponed yesterday, but a legal battle of sorts began anyway.

Werber, 41, was booked into Marin County Jail Friday on suspicion of possessing marijuana, narcotics and dangerous drugs and contributing to the delinquency of a minor, after narcotics agents raided his home on DeSilva Island in Richardson Bay.

He was freed on $9,375 bail and dutifully reported for arraignment yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

In court, however, Deputy Dist. Atty. Raymond E. Gilbert said that no complaint would be filed against Werber pending receipt of reports from state and federal drug agents who took part in the raid.

Gilbert said the charges might be filed today.

The delay in filing the complaint was fine with Werber's attorney, Patrick Hallinan, but Hallinan said he would like to see the warrant, and affidavit on which it was based, which agents used to enter Werber's home.

In explaining to Judge Peter Allen Smith why he wanted to see the warrant, Hallinan made reference to the case of Sausalito attorney Michael H. Metzger, which was dismissed Friday in Marin Superior Court when Judge Joseph G. Wilson ruled that the search of Metzger's residence last December was illegal because the warrant was improper.

Gilbert told Hallinan there would be no problem in providing a copy of the warrant and affidavit and instructed him to see Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas.

Hallinan left the courtroom, only to return minutes later to report that Thomas said he did not have a copy of the documents, that they were being held by the municipal court clerk pending receipt of a complaint.

Hallinan asked Judge Smith for an order allowing him to see the warrant and affidavit, and Smith so ordered.

Hallinan left the courtroom, only to return again to report that Thomas said he (Hallinan) could not see the documents without a written court order.

Smith directed Hallinan to prepare a written order for his signature, which Hallinan did in longhand. The judge signed it, and Hallinan finally got the documents he wanted.

At the time of Friday's raid, Werber was free on $5,000 bail pending court action on an appeal against a six-month jail sentence and $2,000 fine on a marijuana possession and cultivation conviction after a Marin Superior Court trial in February 1970.

Hearing Set In Shoot-Out Case

The new judge in the Angela Y. Davis-Ruchell Magee case announced yesterday that he will resume hearings on pretrial motions at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Meanwhile, Marin County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney estimated that "each time Miss Davis is brought to court, it costs the county approximately $5,000."

The cost is for heavy security placed around her courtroom appearances, the extra deputies and other officers assigned both to guard the courtroom as well as search those attending the sessions.

Thursday, Judge Alan A. Lindsay, 54-year-old Reagan appointee to the Alameda County Superior Court bench, will resume hearings on several motions by Miss Davis's lawyers. Among other things they ask that the indictment against her be dismissed, that she be released on bail and that she be allowed to act as co-counsel.

Lindsay was assigned to the case after Judge John P. McMurray of Inyo County withdrew.

Magee, who has no motions pending in Marin Superior Court, was responsible for disqualifying Judge McMurray, claiming he was prejudiced.

Magee yesterday was turned down by a federal appellate court on an earlier request that his case be transferred to federal court. That appeal, however, was in connection with an indictment that was later dismissed in Marin when he was reindicted along with Miss Davis.

A spokesman in federal district court in San Francisco said that Magee still has several petitions pending there, including two filed yesterday.

Magee has insisted for months that the Marin court has no jurisdiction over him or Miss Davis while he has petitions pending in federal court.

He has asked that his case be transferred there because he said his civil rights will be violated in state court.

Miss Davis and Magee, a San Quentin convict, are charged with murder, conspiracy and kidnapping stemming from the August shoot-out at the Hall of Justice in which four persons, including Judge Harold J. Haley, were killed.

Betty J. Machado To Seek Post

Betty J. Machado, who ran fifth among seven candidates in the 1970 Novato City Council race, has announced she is a candidate for the council spot to be vacated by Mayor Douglas M. Merrill.

Merrill, a councilman for seven years, has said he is resigning no later than April 13 in order to devote more time to his family.

Mrs. Machado, 46, of 1424 Dawes Street, said today in a letter to the Independent-Journal that she would be honored to be selected to fill the vacancy. She reported receiving many inquiries about seeking the post.

Since no woman now serves on the council, Mrs. Machado said, her appointment would help provide a needed balance.

She also said rancher Wilfred Lieb, who finished fourth in last year's council race, deserves consideration for appointment.

Mrs. Machado also was an unsuccessful council candidate in 1966 and served on the city's first parks and recreation commission.

The council, if it does not choose Merrill's successor within 30 days of his resignation, will have to call an election.

Inmate Stabbed At San Quentin Prison

San Quentin Prison was under tight security today following the knifing last night of a 27-year-old inmate, apparently a victim of continuing racial tensions at the prison.

Leonard Ambrose, convicted of burglary in Butte County, was stabbed in the throat when he was attacked by five other prisoners after taking a shower.

Ambrose was given blood transfusions and was reported still in serious condition today.

Prison officials said they are holding three black inmates as suspects in the stabbing. Ambrose is white.

Yesterday's knifing is the latest occurence of violence at San Quentin this month. Earlier, two inmates were killed and over 10 wounded in a rash of bloodshed, also believed to be caused by black-white tensions.

Officials said the east and south blocks would remain locked up and prisoners would be fed in small groups today.

Associate Warden James W. L. Park said the men suspected of the stabbing will be brought before the prison's Judiciary Committee this week or next. If the committee determines a felony may have been committed, the men will be referred to the District Attorney's office for prosecution.

Three Blackouts In Wide Area

Three unrelated blackouts yesterday left more than 700 customers temporarily without electrical service.

Officials at Pacific Gas and Electric reported:

Service was interrupted to 351 customers in Peacock Gap from 8:15 a.m. to 8:55 a.m. due to an underground cable failure.

Power was discontinued from 11:23 a.m. to 12:03 p.m. in the Black Point and Lakeville Road area, affecting about 275 customers, when a tree fell into a power line on Lakeville Road, north of Sleepy Hollow Dairy.

About 100 customers in Kent Woodlands lost service from 6:13 to 7:15 p.m. when a tree fell on a power line on Idlewood Road, affecting homes on South Ridgewood, Evergreen, Ridgecrest and Crown Road.

39 Attorneys Back Recall Of Wright

A group of 39 attorneys in Belvedere and Tiburon today advocated the recall of fellow attorney Gordon C. Wright, chairman of the Reed School District board, blaming him for "an erosion of morale and effectiveness" in the district.

Richard L. Goff, an attorney himself and member of the recall committee, could not estimate how many attorneys live in the Reed district but said those signing the anti-Wright statement represent "a high percentage" of them.

The attorneys' broadside said Wright "has not discharged his duties properly" and has ignored "the recommendations and concerns of the administrative staff, teachers, citizens' committees, parent-teacher clubs and the community at large.

"His persistent branding of those who disagree with him as 'malcontents' or 'disruptive dissidents' . . . has done a disservice to the democratic process."

The attorneys denied a charge by Wright that the recall is a conspiracy, but said it is "a proper and necessary legal recourse undertaken by a large segment of the Reed district voters . . ."

The statement recommended election of John J. Osborn to replace him in the April 20 election in order to "restore the confidence and harmony so necessary to the Reed school district."

Among signers of the statement were Goff and Kenneth W. Rosenthal, both active in the recall effort; Philip S. Ehrlich Jr., chairman of the Marin County Housing Authority; James B. Atkin, former chairman of the school district board; Leonard M. Sperry Jr., unsuccessful candidate for the board in 1963; Richard M. Adams, unsuccessful state Senate candidate in 1969, and George H. Gnoss Jr., a member of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency board.

Other attorneys signing the recall statement are: Lowell A. Airola, Cameron Baker, Philip B. Bass, Duane E. Beeson, Richard V. Canady, William B. Christy IV, John B. Clark, James N. Crittenden, John T. Hansen, Robert L. Harmon, Samuel M. Haskins, John R. Hofmann Jr., William L. Jansen, William B. Kuder, Robert E. Long, David L. Ludvigson, William A. Main, Richard H. McConnell, Robert A. Mills, Douglas M. Moore Jr., James Murray, Stuart R. Pollak, John M. Price, John W. Pring, Beverly B. Savitt, Peter F. Sloss, Thomas E. Stanton, Donald S. Rice Mills Push To Meet Order

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Rice mills in Northern California are operating round-the-clock to produce enough brown rice to fill a 125,000-ton order for Korea, the state Agriculture Department reported Monday.

The state agency said growers expect to make an additional bulk sale to the republic next month. As a result, a spokesman said, most of the rough rice held by independent growers in the Sacramento Valley is being picked up.

Antiracist Move

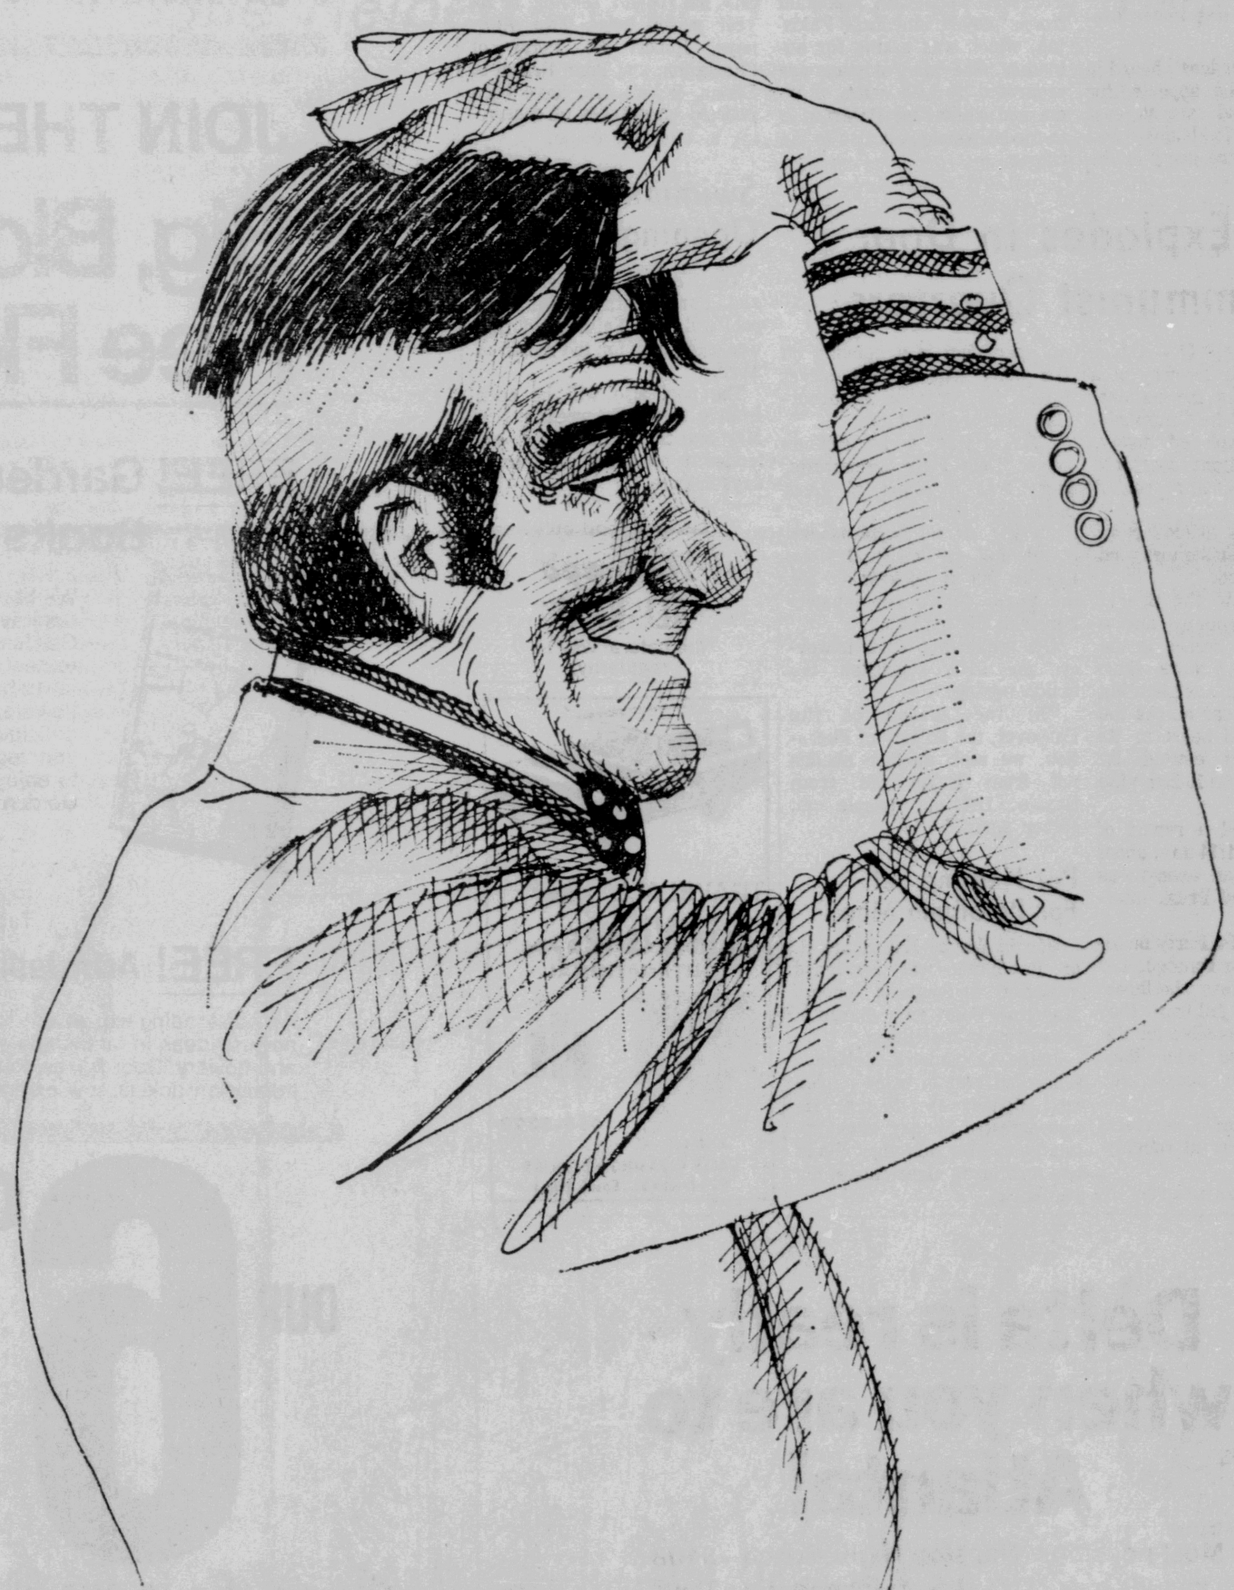

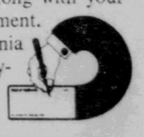

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI)— The governor's Student Affairs Commission has recommended that the State Library Board change the names of Niggerhead Mountain, Pond and Brook because they insult black people. Use of the term "nigger," the commission said, "is only one example of racism which is prevalent in certain blocks of the Vermont population."

AREA OF UNREST — With West Pakistani spokesmen reporting the situation in rebellious East Pakistan under control, the clandestine Free Bengal Radio said today fighting continued to rage in secessionist cities. Earlier the radio — heard in neighboring India — said at least 300,000 East Pakistanis were killed in the past 48 hours. (UPI Telephoto)

E. Pakistan Calls For Outside Help

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Clandestine Free Bengal Radio said today Pakistani government jets bombed and fired rockets at East Pakistani secessionist forces in the cities of Comilla and Jessore.

An earlier broadcast said supporters of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman's outlawed Awami League political party were fighting with Pakistani troops for control of the airport and military areas of the capital of Dacca.

West Pakistani spokesmen said the situation in rebellious East Pakistan was under control.

The rebel broadcast, heard in neighboring India, appealed for outside help and said at least 300,000 East Pakistanis had been killed by the army in the past 48 hours.

The broadcast said Maj. Zia-Ur-Rahman, head of the provisional government of Bangla Desh (Bengal Homeland), had appealed to other nations to recognize the revolutionary government.

The East Pakistani broadcast said the jets attacked Comilla and Jessore today. Both are military base towns. Comilla is 60 miles southeast of Dacca and Jessore 90 miles southwest of the East Pakistan capital.

The trouble started late Thursday when West Pakistani troops moved into East Pakistan, which was asking for autonomy. The two Pakistans are separated by 1,000 miles of India and while East Pakistan is the most populous it also is the poorer.

Ex-Governor To Prison On Bribery

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Former West Virginia Gov. W. W. "Wally" Barron was sent to prison for 25 years Monday by the man he beat in the pivotal election in his political career.

Barron pleaded guilty, to U.S. District Court Judge John A. Field Jr., to paying a $25,000 bribe to a jury foreman in his 1968 federal court trial. The jury acquitted Barron of charges he sought kickbacks during his 1961-65 state administration.

Barron, a Democrat, defeated Field, a Republican, in the 1956 election for West Virginia attorney general. By winning, in a year when Republican President Dwight Eisenhower and the Republican gubernatorial candidate both carried the state, Barron, then a state representative, became the leading Democratic candidate for governor four years later.

Field had offered to disqualify himself in the case. Barron said it made no difference.

By pleading guilty, Barron won dismissal of bribery charges against his wife, who was accused of delivering the money to the wife of the jury foreman. Barron said she was acting at his direction. He began serving his 25-year sentence in Springfield, Mo., federal prison.

Ralph Buckalew, the jury foreman who received the bribe, pleaded guilty earlier and has begun serving a 20-year prison term. Two attorneys, Robert G. Perry of Charleston, and Bonn Brown of Elkins, W.Va., also have been indicted on charges of conspiring to offer the bribe.

Bomb Explodes In Door Of Communist Quarters

NEW YORK (UPI) —A pipe bomb set in the doorway of a building used as the national headquarters of the Communist Party USA exploded today, shattering the front door and breaking windows in surrounding buildings.

The three-story headquarters was unoccupied at the time and no one was injured.

A detective said the door, ground floor windows and a water pipe were broken in the building, windows were shattered in seven neighboring buildings and a car across the street had three holes in its side, apparently caused by fragments from the 10-inch pipe bomb.

Police received a report of the explosion at 4:14 a.m. about the same time an anonymous caller told United Press International:

"The Communist Party building has just been bombed. Let the tools and lackeys who throw our brethren into jail know that they too are responsible for the actions of those who they support. Let our people go. Never again.

Other news media received the same statement at roughly the same time.

A free lance photographer in an apartment in a building on the other side of the street timed the explosion as occurring shortly after 4 a.m.

"There was a tremendous noise. Then right afterwards, there was a sound of glass breaking," he said.

"Never again" is the slogan of the militant Jewish Defense League but a spokesman for the group denied any connection with the explosion.

The spokesman said, however, the JDL supported the action adding:

"In the season of the Passover, the holiday of liberation, we seek another exodus not from Egypt but from Russia. Let our people go. Never again."

Marin Women

Special Interest Adult Courses Opening Tonight

Adult education courses of interest to women offered by the College of Marin include a 12-week-program to train in telephone techniques and other aspects of working with the Marin Suicide Prevention Center and the Marin Association of Mental Health. Sponsored by the community education department, the first class is tonight.

Bernard Mayes, program director at KQED-TV will teach the class to be held Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 8:30 p.m. for 12-weeks with eight weeks spent at the College of Marin in lecture-laboratory sessions and four weeks at the Marin Suicide Prevention office in on-the-job training sessions to be arranged with the staff.

Graduates will be given a certificate and, pending screening by psychiatric and social worker consultants to the Marin Suicide Prevention Center, will be eligible for service as volunteers with that organization.

Another course the college has scheduled which may be of interest to women will deal with minor home repairs.

Can you fix a toaster, radio, vacuum cleaner or light fixture and is replacing a blown fuse a frightening experience?

The College of Marin, believing women learn how to handle these tasks has scheduled an adult evening course, "Introduction to Home Maintenance — A Course for the Unhandy."

Taught by Peter D. Lenn, a mechanical engineer, the course, beginning at 7 tonight, will teach uncomplicated solutions to minor home repairs, according to the instructor, including such items as small electrical appliances. Students, he says, can learn to take things apart, make repairs and put them back together again.

ST. VINCENT de Paul Church in Petaluma was the setting for exchange of wedding vows by Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Edward Gaupin (Elaine Thomas). The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gaupin of Santa Rosa and the late Mr. Gaupin. They will live in Petaluma.

Actress McCambridge Describes Alcoholism

By ALISON GODDARD

Information Center on the Mature Woman

NEW YORK — There are some women who can drink and some who can't. According to her own description, Mercedes McCambridge, known for her Oscar-winning performances in films and on television, is one who can't. This year, she's serving as honorary chairman of the National Council on Alcoholism and traveling throughout the country to talk about her own experiences with "this disease of alcoholism."

Alcohol, Miss McCambridge points out, "is a nice social medicine that everyone uses," adding that a woman in our time drinks socially because it's expected of her. A lot of people, she notes, can go along drinking this way with no particular problems, but most alcoholics drift gradually into the disease.

"I have yet to meet an alcoholic," she declares, "who wanted to be an alcoholic."

SPEAKING FROM personal experience, Miss McCambridge says, "Had anyone told me that alcoholism was a disease, that there might be something in my blood chemistry sensitive to this chemical, I might have known I shouldn't drink at all. But I didn't know. I kept insisting something was wrong with me because — although I never drank as much as most of my friends — drinking always affected me badly."

Yet, whenever she sought help, she recalls, she was invariably told she was a tense person in a tense profession and shouldn't take herself so seriously.

The causes of alcoholism, Mercedes McCambridge points out, are varied and complex. Sometimes a series of crises can occur in a woman's life and, because alcohol seems to relieve her anxiety, "she will slip into this disease unwittingly and unwillingly."

She could be a young woman, she points out, or one over 40 who may be having an identity crisis because her children no longer need her.

DESCRIBING THE upheavals in her own life, Miss McCambridge says, "My marriage broke up, my house burned down. I broke my leg on stage and my only living son was critically injured. I had become emotionally bankrupt. I kept writing checks on an emotional account that no longer had any funds in it."

Her problems, she says, finally flared up as an acute attack of bronchitis that required her to be hospitalized. This time, however, Miss McCambridge encountered a doctor who diagnosed her problem as alcoholism.

"He told me the reason I was sick was because I was drinking too much and because I was addicted to the drug of alcohol which my body could not tolerate."

It was at that point, six years ago, she declares, that she stopped drinking entirely.

MERCEDES McCAMBRIDGE stresses that alcohol is the third largest killer in the country, following heart disease and cancer. She tells her audiences, "If you think you might have a drinking problem, detect it early. Don't kill someone on a highway because of it. Don't let it destroy your marriage or cause your children to lose their respect for you. And don't fall out of love with yourself because you're physically ill."

HAZEL WIGHTMAN

She Helped Pioneer Women's Tennis

NEW YORK (UPI)—One woman who was helping liberate her sex even before suffrage half a century ago or the headlined militant "Libs" of today just hopes that women can keep on being feminine no matter what their cause.

Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, 84, who established the famed Wightman tennis cup, helped to pioneer the role of women in the sport competitively, starting with her first national competition in 1902 and ending with her last in 1958.

"I suppose I was always liberated," said the great-grandmother. "My father, my husband and family always wanted me to do what I wanted to do. I don't know how far liberation goes, really. But I would never want to see women leave femininity behind.

"WOMEN HAVE proved they can compete. I think a woman can be true to herself as long as she's pleased with what she's doing."

Liberation for women in tennis competition isn't all that complete, however. Some of the professionals, paid for touring the circuit, want an opening up of the spot so that amateurs may compete alongside them without losing their standing in the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association (USLTA).

Mrs. Wightman never went professional—"It just never occurred to me at the time," she said in a telephone interview from her home in Newton, Mass., a Boston suburb. "But I'm with it now.

"They're guaranteed a living . . . and today's girls want to take care of themselves. In my day, the families interested in tennis used to house and feed them."

MRS. WIGHTMAN was very much on the scene when the current group of pros appeared in the Invitational in Winchester, Mass., in late February. She's never hung up her racket, although she quit competition when she was in the 1958 winning national doubles for women.

She still teaches teachers of tennis, is active in league team activities in the Boston area, talks up the sport constantly ("It should be televised") and occasionally lobs a ball around her garage although a bit of arthritis has slowed her down.

Tennis became part of her life when her four brothers came home on vacation from East Coast schools to the family home in Berkeley, Calif., and taught her some of the fundamentals of the sport.

ALL TOLD, she won 44 national titles in singles, doubles or mixed doubles. She took two Olympic medals in tennis and won other national honors in squash and badminton.

She established the Wightman Cup of international competition, for her husband, the late George Wightman, an attorney. The couple had five children and she laughingly recalled on the phone that her children used to say, "Mother, what tournament did you win when I was a baby?"

When she started playing tennis the women wore their court dresses to about two inches above the ground. All that changed through the years and she feels today's abbreviated tennis attire could be a little

KICKING THE Hollywood scene last summer, Bart Ellison wed $50-an-hour model Beth Specht, drove to Florida and set up housekeeping in a small trailer on a six-acre tract. Beth, who didn't think much of becoming a pig farmer, takes a close look at one of the hogs being raised on their farm near the rural North Florida community of Middleburg. She now feeds the chickens and turkeys and bakes bread.

Forget Plastic Hollywood And Take Up Hog Farming In Florida

By WALT SMITH

MIDDLEBURG, Fla. (UPI)—When Beth Specht, a $50-an-hour California model, first learned of her fiance's dream of giving up the glamorous Hollywood life in favor of hog farming, her reaction was vehement.

"Absolutely No! I'm not going," she told Bart Ellison, a frustrated young actor yearning to return to a simple rural life after three years in the "plastic" atmosphere of Hollywood.

That was a year ago.

SINCE THEN, the Ellisons have married, kicked the Hollywood scene, and set up housekeeping in a small trailer on a six-acre tract near this rural North Florida community.

"I felt I was coming apart at the seams," recalled Bart, whose mod, long hair contrasts with his work clothes as he goes about his farm chores.

"I never felt like I was in California to stay," he continued. "I never felt like making friends. It just didn't seem real or permanent. You just get completely wrapped up in yourself."

Bart, who has a degree in English from the University of Florida, was originally from a rural North Florida area. The decision to leave Hollywood was not too difficult for him.

BUT WHAT about Beth? She had the world by the tail with fantastic modeling assignments and national television commercials, including the cover of Ladies' Home Journal and other prominent publications as well as record album covers.

"I knew he was really unhappy in Los Angeles," she said. So, after some encourag-

Each one is enchanting - and certainly unique - from the ceramic snail with the flowering tail (1.50) to the pottery roadrunner burgeoning with daffodils (24.00). The flowers, fruits, plants are made of everlasting plastic and straw and love and art by two gifted young women who have "planted" them in every imagineable re-usable container (brass or china teapots, pitchers, bonsai pots, egg cups, for instance.)

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

The Math Teacher Thinks She Has This Couple's Number

DEAR HELEN:

My math teacher!

Just because my boy friend and I were walking down the hall holding hands, she now teases him and calls him "lover boy."

Now he won't hold my hand because of her. How can I tell her to mind her own business and leave my guy alone. — A COLD HAND

DEAR C.H.:

I doubt you can change the cutey-pie approach in a teacher, but you can change your boy friend's attitude toward it. Teach him to laugh off teasing and he should be forever grateful. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I've been going with this fella for 12 weeks, and he's only kissed me once; and then I walked off, not because I was against it, but because he embarrassed me in front of everybody. So he thinks I don't want him to kiss me.

But I do. I hate to just walk up and say, "Kiss me," so how can I get it across that a girl wants a good-night kiss, but only when she and a boy are alone together?

Please write your answer in simple words so I'll know exactly what to do. — NEEDS A KISS

DEAR NAK:

Three simple words: Kiss him first.

A light brush on the cheek as you thank him for a nice evening should speak louder than words. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My boy friend and I have been going together for two years. He respects me and knows I'm not the type for premarital sex. At barely 16, I'm not ready, though I love him, I think. He is. Ready, I mean.

So he thinks nothing of picking up a "road runner" on the nights he doesn't see me. He says this is practical, and not untrue to me, because he doesn't care about these other girls and they don't care about him.

Somehow I think even a "freesy" has feelings and maybe they really fall for these guys that use them.

Or maybe he's just "using" me as someone he can show off to his friends but he really prefers the other girls.

I'm confused, Helen. To keep him, must I give in to him against my will? To tell the truth, he's never asked me. —

UNDECIDED

DEAR UN:

It's chancy, dating a boy who thinks "pure girls" are for pedestals, and "bad girls" for fun, because: 1. He doesn't see females as people but only things to be used (one way or another). 2. He may pick up more than he expects, and transmit it to others, and 3. His double standard ideas of "good girl" vs. "good-time girl" might make him a poor husband and lousy lover.

You won't keep him by giving in to him, as he'd soon consider you a road runner too and start looking for a new Miss Untouchable.

My question: Do you really want this junior male chauvinist? — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Forget Hollywood And Become Hog Farmers

ing words from her mother, she decided to give it a try. Now she says she would never go back.

"I thought she would hate it," Bart admitted. "I had doubts whether it would ever work."

The Ellisons were married last summer and spent their honeymoon driving cross-country to their new home. Bart had spent a few weeks here earlier getting the hog pens built and clearing a spot for the trailer.

"FROM THE way Bart talked, I thought Florida was all farmland and backwoods," Beth said. "I bought a six month's supply of cosmetics and new clothes before leaving California."

Bart, looking for a money-making venture, decided the best chance was a feeder pig operation where they keep the pigs until they reach 50 pounds and then auction them off. He soon found out how little Beth knew about farm life.

"I thought pigs were pink, round and smooth," Beth said, laughing.

"She thought mine were ugly," Bart interrupted. "She thought they all should look like 'Porky Pig' and that I had bought the wrong kind."

Beth has come a long way in the past few months. She feeds the chickens and turkeys and has even learned to make her own bread.

"I NEVER get bored," she said. "There's always something to do." She has not given up her career completely, making the 30-mile trip to Jacksonville almost daily for modeling assignments at department stores or to film commercials for local television.

Life has not been easy, however. There have been problems such as an outbreak of hog cholera and a drop in the hog market.

The Ellisons, while disenchanted with complex city life, never intended to "drop out" completely or go off and join a commune. Their goal is to parlay the little farm into a 100-acre spread in an "English manor" setting.

"From the time I left high school until we came here, I had been searching for sophistication and glamor," Bart said. "But when you are in it, it's not like it seems on the outside."

Bart, who occasionally works with Beth on modeling assignments, still gets twinges of doubt, especially when one of his former acting school classmates pops up on a television show. But he says he's here to stay.

Judith Ann Stuber Is Wed In Geyserville

Judith Ann Stuber became the bride of Christopher Wade Sunday in an 11 a.m. ceremony at the Geyserville Bahai School in Geyserville, where a reception was held following the wedding.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Arthur Stuber of Mill Valley, had as her maid of honor Ruth Burrage of Oakland. Don Erby of Sacramento was best man for the bridegroom, who is the son of Mrs. Ruth Hurd Wade of Santa Rosa. Ushers were the bride's brothers, Ken Stuber of Mill Valley and Philip Stuber of Bodega Bay, and Scott Safford and Steve Brown of Santa Rosa.

The couple will live in Charlottesville, Va.

A graduate of Tamalpais High School, the College of Marin and Sonoma State College, the bride was employed at Sonoma State. She has another brother, Jim Stuber of San Diego, and a sister, Karen Stuber of Mill Valley.

The bridegroom was graduated from Santa Rosa High School and attended Santa Rosa Junior College, where he was also employed. He is the brother of Denis Wade of San Francisco and Nancy Feinstein of Petaluma.

'Cosmic Unisex' Belts By Peter Max Are Dazzling

Belts in flashing colors and designs with futuristic buckles are the highlight of the spring fashion scene. The most outstanding can be found in a dazzling collection of belts designed by internationally-known artist Peter Max. Called "cosmic unisex" belts, they can be worn by men, women and children, and are guaranteed to bring vividness and color into anyone's life and wardrobe.

CALLED THE "Artist of the Year 1000," Peter Max has skyrocketed across the contemporary art scene with his unique graphic design concepts. From his original work in posters which made his name a household word among young people everywhere, Peter Max has applied his creative talents in the use of graphics to many areas, including fashions. His newest work of art is the exciting belt collection he has designed for Canterbury Belts.

The Peter Max collection comes in a wide selection of designs and colors. Since Max is a follower of Yoga and hence, a vegetarian, all of the Peter Max line are fabricated with non-leather materials, including solid and multi-stripe elastics, braided fabrics and printed vinyls.

There are "Love" belts with shiny metal buckles reproducing the famous Peter Max Love poster lettering, and "Cosmic Universe" belts featuring large, round silver and blue buckles with Max's art interpretation of the universe.

A most distinctive buckle is shaped like a TV screen and comes with several Peter Max graphic design inserts, so that the wearer can "change channels" to suit his or her mood or appearance. A more conservative choice might be the "Signature" belts which use a simple buckle design carrying the well-known Peter Max signature in silver and blue.

THE COMBINATIONS of colors, designs, buckles and materials are beyond imagination. Many of the belts are a collage of different fabrics and colors. Wide use of elastic fabrics in one-piece construction or as inserts within a collage simplifies size selection: small, medium and large. Makes it an easy task if you are thinking of buying one as a gift.

A Peter Max belt is just the right accessory to brighten up a "ho hum" wardrobe.

Size Of Marin City Council Cut

Marin City Council last night amended its bylaws to reduce the size of the council from 13 members to nine.

Chairman Samuel L. Banks Jr. said no active council members will be eliminated because of the change. "The only members affected are those who have disqualified themselves by unexcused absences," he said.

The council also voted to request the Marin City to work toward undergrounding utilities.

Undergrounding should start on new construction and eventually be expanded to include all of Marin City, Banks said.

In other business, the council directed a letter be sent to the College Board To Interview Candidates

The Marin Junior College District board, meeting in closed session with its screening committee, last night was given the names of the four top candidates for the position of president of the proposed north campus.

Dr. John A. Grasham, district superintendent, said today the board will begin interviewing the four Monday at 7 p.m. at the county schools office in Corte Madera.

Interviews will continue, he said, on Wednesday at the same time and place followed on Thursday with another meeting with the screening committee to discuss the candidates.

The meetings, including Thursday's at 6:30 p.m. at College of Marin's Olney Hall, will be closed.

Tentative Reed Pact Reached

A tentative agreement between Reed School District teachers and trustees on procedures to settle future disagreements has been reached, according to acting Asst. Supt. Lester Dunn.

The proposed agreement will be submitted to the Reed District Teachers Association for its approval and then to the school board for adoption.

Dunn said teachers and trustees, in a three-hour special meeting Wednesday night, decided to strike numerous provisions contained in the proposed

Bruce Claims Supervisors Get Commune Blame

Marin County supervisors are being blamed for an anticommune ordinance passed by the City of Mill Valley, County Administrator Alan Bruce announced this morning.

Bruce said he had received a half dozen letters addressed to the county supervisors, accusing them of passing an ordinance that allows no more than five unrelated persons from living in a single-family home.

Such an ordinance was passed by 4-to-1 vote of the Mill Valley councilmen on March 1. That ordinance applies in Mill Valley and has nothing to do with the county or with the board of supervisors.

San Rafael City Council To Meet

The San Rafael City Council scheduled a special meeting for 5:30 p.m. today in city hall in order to adopt a resolution providing for the sale of $1,105,000 sewer bonds approved by voters last June.

Part of the work to be done with the bond money is aimed at correcting the annual problem of sewage boiling out of manholes in lower areas of the city during storms.

Fairfax Planners Move On Creeks

Fairfax Planning Commission members approved a watercourse ordinance last night, and asked the city council to budget for a master plan on Fairfax creeks.

The master plan would provide guidelines for construction involving watercourses, commission chairman E. Ross Parkerson explained. The ordinance, now passed to the council for adoption, would require action by the design review board and planning commission to secure permits for bulkheads or any construction affecting creeks, or removing any trees in the flood plain of any creek, Parkerson said.

Forum Due For Mayoral Candidates

Candidates vying for San Rafael mayor and city council posts are scheduled to express their views at a candidates' night at 8 p.m. April 14 in the council chambers at city hall.

Participants will include incumbent mayor C. Paul Bettini and his opponent, Richard Alan Raznikov, as well as incumbent councilmen Fred S. Jensen and John A. Miskimen and challen-

Addition To School Is Approved

Final plans for an eight-classroom addition to Rancho Cotate High School were approved yesterday by the Petaluma Board of Education.

The plans prepared by the architectural firm of Reynolds and Chamberlain, also include enlargement of the library, remodeling of the business area to accommodate home economics classes, tennis courts and additional parking facilities.

Cost is estimated at $369,000. The addition is scheduled for completion in the spring of 1972 and will permit a total enrollment of 1,000 students.

Recycling Depot Wins Use Permit

A recycling depot operated by architect Neill Smith in Richardson Bay yesterday won a conditional use permit from the Marin County Planning Commission.

The recycling depot is located in a warehouse building near the county heliport just south of Richardson Bay Bridge. Smith said his plant recycles paper goods, metal products and glass, and also wants to experiment with about five cubic yards of composte material.

On a motion by John F. West, commissioners approved the use permit on several conditions. The composte experiement must get approval from both the county fill committee and from the Regional Water Quality Control Board. Fences and other improvements may be required if the recycling depot continues beyond six months, and Smith must post $500 cash bond to guarantee that all debris will be removed when the depot closes up. Smith must also put in six inches of rock base on Parepa Street, the access road, with armor coat paving if the operation continues beyond six months.

The vote was 4-to-0. Three of the commissioners had gone home by the time it came to a vote at 8:30 p.m.

Marin County Planning Commission also:

BOARDWALK — Granted Robert Rhoads the right to build on his 4,800-square foot property at 125 Greenbrae Boardwalk. It is an undersized lot, but commissioners decided that it is no differenct from adjoining lots of similar size which had been granted building permits.

ENGLISH PUB — Continued until April 12 the public hearing on Charles Felix's plan to build an English pub and inn at the entrance to Muir Beach. Harvey E. Bragdon, assistant planning director, asked for the continuance because of a technical flaw in advertising for yesterday's hearing.

LOT SPLIT — Approved for television announcer Wanda Ramey and her husband, Richard Queirolo, a split of their property at 25 Castle Rock Drive, Homestead Valley, into two lots. Commissioners required the Queirolos to provide two offstreet parking places, widen the road in front of the property enough to allow two other cars to park and still leave 10 feet of road clearance, give the planning director the right to review building design and provide a sewer easement.

KENTFIELD LOT — Approved over neighborhood objection construction of a home within 15 feet of Crown Road, Kentfield. Commissioners did so reluctantly, after being told by the deputy county zoning administrator, Ralph D. Cairns, that the property was a corner lot at Crown and Idlewild Road, and that the builder had a right to designate either road frontage as front yard, requiring a 30-yard setback, or side yard, requiring 15 feet. Adjacent home owners, architect L. Stephen Windheim, said he would appeal to the county supervisors, calling the Crown Road side the logical front yard.

ART REVIEW

Artist Hirss Strokes Infinity With Splashes Of Simplicity

By LAURA DEVENDORF

The best works of printmaker Ivars Hirss exhibited through April in Alexander Hall at the San Francisco Theological Seminary, San Anselmo, is also the most minimal, being simplified to a single shape which has a minimum of variation within it.

The series "Four Temperaments" is done this way. Each is really nothing more than a patch of torn-edged color filled with shadow shapes and a central square. The subtle variations are limited to shades of a single topic hue which might be blue for "Phlegmatic," or red, yellow or black according to the mood. And the only other ornamentation these four prints have are lone black lines scrawled across the bottom of their white borders.

Doing something so simple may look ridiculously easy but making it work is something else. It is, in fact, one of the most difficult things an artist can attempt. Why, for instance, should anyone want to look at a single shape on a big sheet of white paper? In the case of Hirss's circles alone, you don't, as they have little to say beyond their state of roundness.

Yet when Hirss is thinking well, he can enliven the plainest design as he does in the belt buckle-like "A Green Print For Patrick Humble." Here, he opens its mysterious bronze, black and teal blue shapes in the middle to expose the paper's untouched white, creating a new shape which seems to reach into infinity.

Hirss often breaks open his blocks of color this way. And such intrusions of vacant white always have a deeply spacial effect while heightening interest in the colored shapes as well. One, for example, cuts an arching form in two, creating a top portion of tan, edged in yellow and olive-gold and a bottom shape that fringes a pool of deep cerulean with olive, gold and pastel blue.

In another, a large, fanning chunk of yellow is hung over the separating white and above a still lower emblem in bands of yellow, earth shades, red, purple and startling blue. It is, as the title "Awakening" implies, something like the ultimate sunrise or dawning.

Ignoring Hirss's very different and rather weak output from the early 1960s, other prints which generally follow the torn-edged, opened-shape format show how tricky such simplification can be.

The series of "Voyages" which places a crude, white-sailed boat within a puddle of color are pleasant enough. So are the more complex red prints where the basic shape is broken by intrusions of other colors as well as white. And so are the four "Views From the Artist's Window" where the shape is broken by textural ribbons of splotchy color. But none of these share the individual conviction and forcefulness of Hirss's best work.

Everything included, his show is full and often entertaining. But had he included only the four "Temperaments," "Green Print for Patrick Humble," the arching shapes and "Awakening," Hirss's show could have been a stunning experience.

Workshops In Theater, Painting

The workshop covers a variety of topics, including slide painting, mask and costume making, projection art and equipment, light shows, arts and crafts for children, film, photography, choreography and mime.

The classes will be taught by the Garden of Delight, a professional production company which has worked with the San Francisco Ballet, the Oakland Symphony and the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra. In addition, the group has produced shows at the Oakland and Santa Barbara museums and Stanford University.
at the Oakland and Santa Barbara museums and Stanford University.

Currently, two workshops are being held on Saturdays, from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 1:30 to 4 p.m., according to Ellison, who said additional weekday programs are planned at times to be scheduled.

Additional Curbs On Motorcyclists

Marin County Planning Commissioners last night tried unsuccessfully to put more restrictions on activities of the Marin Motorcycle Association.

By the time it came to a vote at 8 p.m., two of the commissioners had gone home for supper, and of the remaining five, two abstained. This left only three votes, one short of the four needed for action.

As a result, a use permit granted by Deputy Zoning Administrator Ralph D. Cairns on Jan. 8 will stand unchanged. It allows the Marin Motorcycle Association to use the Anita Gambonini Ranch on the Marshall-Petaluma Road for motorcycle riding and contests. The permit was for one year, with eight special events allowed during one year.

Benjamin P. Bonelli, part owner of the Soule Jule Ranch immediately to the south of the Gambonini Ranch, appealed to the planning commission last night. He said cycle riding will destroy his Soule Jule Ranch, where seclusion and quiet are its greatest values. He said motorcycles tear up hills, form gullies, cause erosion, and create police problems.

Gerald Diaz and a dozen other members of the Marin Motorcycle Association, assured planning commissioners that they are law abiding, considerate of neighbors, and will take every precaution of prevent erosion and keep noise to a minimum.

Commissioner Hugh Dougherty and Margaret B. Azevedo said they wanted a field trip to the ranch to see how much noise is created.

Diaz pressed for an immediate decision last night.

John F. West moved for approval of the use permit but with these stricter controls: The permit would be for six months trial basis, all motorcycles to have mufflers, no hill climbing contests would be allowed, and special events would be limited to four per year instead of eight.

Jack G. Nixon and Walter F. Freitas supported West, but Dougherty and Azevedo abstained because they wanted a field tour first. Edward Hageman and Eugene R. Trombley had gone home.

Rancher Is Victor In Land Plan

A Nicasio ranch owner yesterday won the right to develop his land in stages instead of being forced to submit a master plan for his entire holdings.

Cirilo Gonzales, who owns Rancho Santa Margarita on the south side of Lucas Valley Road east of Nicasio, wanted to rezone only 164 acres for 15 building sites, with a minimum of 10 acres on each site.

County Planner E. Ross Parkerson argued that the subdivision should be planned community zoning, and Gonzales should submit a master plan for his entire ranch, 1,300 acres.

Gonzales protested he had no plans for the rest of the ranch, and saw no purpose in master planning beyond the 164 acres which he plans to subdivide. Besides, said Gonzales, if he master plans his entire ranch, the assessor will slap higher assessments on his property on the basis of individual lots instead of as grazing land.

After a three and one-half hour debate that took all afternoon, Commissioner John F. West phrased a compromise motion calling for planned community zoning for 600 acres of Gonzales' ranch, with minimum 10-acre lots.

Hugh Dougherty and Margaret B. Azevedo backed West on the motion. But it was killed by Edward Hageman, Jack G. Nixon, Eugene R. Trombley and Walter F. Freitas. They said planned community zoning should not be forced on an unwilling developer.

The commissioners put the whole question over until April 12 for another public hearing. They served notice that they will consider all possibilities, including planned community zoning, but not for the entire 1,300 acres or even 1,000 acres.

Loggers Told To Take Close Look At Future

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI)—An official of International Harvester Co. has told the 33rd Annual Intermountain Logging Conference the logging industry needs to look at itself realistically and assess its responsibilities according to priorities.

Jules Laegeler, Melrose Park, Ill., said Monday that to be constructive the logging industry must use "imagination to provide a rational approach to problem solving."

Laegeler said loggers and society must recognize the difference between "preservation and conservation" and "who is to be responsible for each of these areas.

"The term 'preservation' means establishing areas to be saved for a purpose," Laegeler said. "Generally this means public use, in its present state."

"'Conservation,' on the other hand, is the wise use of resources. Industry can practice conservation and do it well. The hope is that both government and industry will practice wpat they do well."

An estimated 1,700 delegates are on hand for the three-day conference.

Bacteria Count In Story Wrong

A sharp contrast in the bacteria count of effluent from two Marin sewage treatment plants was watered down considerably yesterday in a composing room error.

San Rafael Sanitation District's plant at Peacock Gap, according to the state Department of Public Health, was found to be "excellent" at less than 45 MPN per 100 milliliters. The count at the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District plant had a maximum of 2,300,000.

The MPN count means "most probable number."

Legislation Proposed On Vessel Discharges

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation was proposed yesterday aimed at regulating discharge of sewage from boats and ships in California waters.

The measure was introduced by Assemblyman Carley Porter, D-Compton, who said the bill was a product of work by the Assembly Water Committee, state Resources Board and the Department of Navigation and Ocean Development.

"This legislation will prohibit the operation of a vessel upon the waters of California after Jan. 1, 1974, unless that vessel is equipped with facilities which will retain all sewage on board the vessel for later disposal to shoreside facilities," the committee chairman said.

An alternative, he said, would be for boats to be equipped with maritime sanitation devices approved under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act.

Porter said he did not believe the legislation would "create a hardship upon the pleasure boaster."

Porter said there has been much progress in regulating sewage discharge and that "the only discharges not regulated at the present time are those from vessels that use our waterways."

New Regulations On Bay Agenda

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — New regulations on fluorides, lead, nitrogen oxides, and odor will be considered by Bay Area smog officials tomorrow.

The meeting of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District Advisory Council's executive committee will be at 11 a.m. in district offices, 939 Ellis Street.

The council's public health committee will meet first at 10 a.m., and the full council at 1:30 p.m.

Trustees Will Study Bonds Again

The Marin Junior College District board, meeting Thursday at 8 p.m. at the College of Marin's Olney Hall, again will consider setting an election date for north campus construction funds.

The board at its last meeting took the bond measure off the April 20 ballot in anticipation of a U.S. Supreme Court one-man-one-vote ruling. They also listed as reasons insufficient time to mount a successful campaign and uncertainty over Gov. Ronald Reagan's budget.

The $16.9 million bond issue was on the November ballot and 64 per cent of the vote was favorable, but 66.6 per cent was needed.

The board's consideration Thursday will be the last opportunity to schedule a bond election during the current fiscal year.

Dist. Supt. John A. Grasham has said he would recommend against setting another date unless additional budget information from the state becomes available or a ruling is made by the supreme court prior to Thursday's meeting.

Plans For Giant Sports Show Canceled This Year

A San Anselmo Explorer Scout troop has given up plans to hold a giant sports show this year at the Civic Center fairgrounds but hopes to go ahead with the project next year.

Explorer Troop 15 had hoped to hold a large sports show which would draw 100,000 persons from April 29 through May 3, but Marin Supervisors refused permission for the troop to use the fairgrounds because of traffic and security problems.

Scout Terry Halbert of San Anselmo said yesterday that Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Leon Kalimos, director of the Veterans Memorial Auditorium and the fairgrounds assured him that the troop can use any of the facilities next year after the auditorium is opened.

The Scouts had earlier charged that county officials had reneged on a promise to let the troop use the area outside of the auditorium and that troop members had already sold $68,000 worth of space to sporting goods manufactures and stores.

Prison Riot

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (UPI)—A group of 72 convicts rioted in the exercise yards of Auckland's fortress-like Mount Eden prison. Six guards were injured and one prisoner shot and wounded as the inmates rampaged for five hours, dragging furniture into the yard and burning it. Police reinforcements, backed by fire engines, finally managed to herd the men back into their cells.

Unruh Tells Of Oil Power In Column

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Jess Unruh inaugurated his career as a newspaper columnist yesterday by describing the oil industry as 'the number one powerhouse" in Sacramento and telling how he once figured in a bold political deal involving oil and insurance legislation.

The former Assembly speaker, who ran unsuccessfully against Gov. Ronald Reagan last year for governor, wrote:

"By acclamation, the oil industry would be proclaimed the number one powerhouse in the corridors of Sacramento. Its power is no accident. The best lobbyists money can buy, the largest and most politically effective law firms, heavy campaign contributions to both sides of the aisle, and a buddy system in business circles unrivaled by any other industry, have made oil companies almost impervious to the ebb and flow of partisan political fortunes."

The column appeared in the Sacramento Bee. A Bee spokesman said the paper will continue to publish Unruh columns on an irregular basis.

Unruh told, apparently for the first time, how in 1957 he sponsored a bill on the Assembly floor to help insurance companies. He wrote that the legislation was pushed by then Senate President Pro Tem Hugh Burns, D-Fresno, who "was extremely anxious to protect his friends in the compensation insurance business from out-of-state competition."

In exchange for passage of the insurance bill, Unruh said, Burns allowed legislation to pass the Senate which increased oil taxes by raising the maximum royalty the state could receive for tidelands wildcat strikes from 12 1-2 to 16 2-3 per cent.

Unruh said the oil industry this year may face "its sternest test" since that 1957 episode because of a bill by Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, to abolish the oil depletion allowance.

But the Los Angeles County Democrat said "the skids are going to be a bit harder for the oil boys to grease" than previously.

He said "the presiding officers of both chambers are less beholden to the oil interests than their predecessors were at any time in recent history." Presumably Unruh was talking about himself as well as Burns. He presided over the Assembly chamber for seven years.

Unruh said Assembly Speaker Bob Mretti, D-Van Nuys, and Senate leader James R. Mills, D-San Diego, have not been particularly close to oil lobbyists.

The 1970 Democratic gubernatorial nominee said Reagan received "more than $133,000" from oil companies in his re-election effort.

Ecuador Fines Boat $74,160

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (UPI) —The Ecuadorean Navy has freed the U.S. tunaboat Caribbean after its owners paid fines totaling $74,160 for alleged poaching and licenses.

The heavy fine was imposed, the Navy said, because it was the second time the Caribbean, owned by Del Monte Corp. and operating out of San Juan P.R, has been seized.

Lost Paragraph Misplaces Quote

Quotes in a story Saturday about College of Marin students who turned a Christian Music Festival into a rockconcert were misattributed because of a paragraph dropped from the article.

The quote, which stated "Now I'm just loving everybody. Jesus is a cool dude. He's got long hair and a beard too," mistakenly appeared to have been made by Robert Brown of the Jesus People Christian House in Mill Valley.

Government Will Start Minting New Dollars

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The government will start minting "silver" dollars again Wednesday —the first since 1935 —but collectors may have a long wait to get them and Nevada gamblers may get none.

The first strike of the new Eisenhower dollar will take place at 11 a.m. PST at the United States Assay Office here.

The bright new coin will not be solid silver. About 60 per cent of it will be "cupra-nickel," an alloy of copper and nickel. Until 1935 a silver dollar contained 90 per cent silver and 10 per cent copper.

The government plans to turn out 150 million of the new "cartwheels," and expects they will be grabbed up almost immediately when available by coin collectors. Provisions will be made to keep any collector from making a "corner" on the market.

Spokes men for the Bureau of the Mint, which is operated by the U.S. Treasury Department, say a mail order system will be set up on June 1, but application forms for coins will probably not be acceptable until July 1.

Director of the Mint Mary T. Brooks and Eugene T. Rossides, Treasury Department assistant secretary for enforcement and operations, will be present when the first Eisenhower dollars are struck.

Minting of the coins will continue until the end of the year, but no definite schedule on daily rates of turn-out have been made until the production line actually gets going.

The mint also plans to make available, as it does with other coins, special "proof sets" of the new dollars by which it expects to fatten the treasury by several million dollars.

Proof sets are perfect sets of coins, polished to a jewel-like brilliance and issued in plastic holders. They are double-struck at the mint and are of the highest possible quality.

These proof sets will sell for $10 each.

A collector's "uncirculated" dollar, struck only once, will also be minted, selling for $3 apiece. Of these two varieties, only five will be permitted to a customer who fills out an application form.

A total of 20 million proof dollars will be minted, and 130 million uncirculated dollars. There will then be an unlimited run of metal dollars containing only cupra-nickel but no silver will be distributed through banks to the general public.

Audubon Field Trips Opened

Three field trips open to the public have been announced by the Marin Audubon Society beginning April 10 with a visit to Rodeo Lagoon.

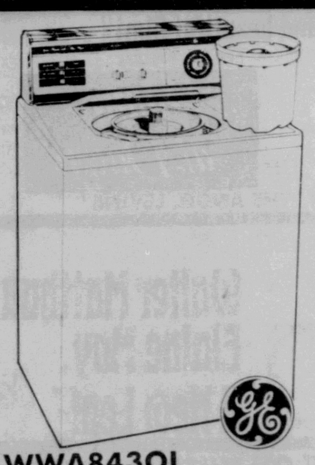

Those interested in making the trip headed by Marin President Dudley Hubbard should meet at the west end of the Fort Cronkhite tunnel at 10 a.m., the society said.

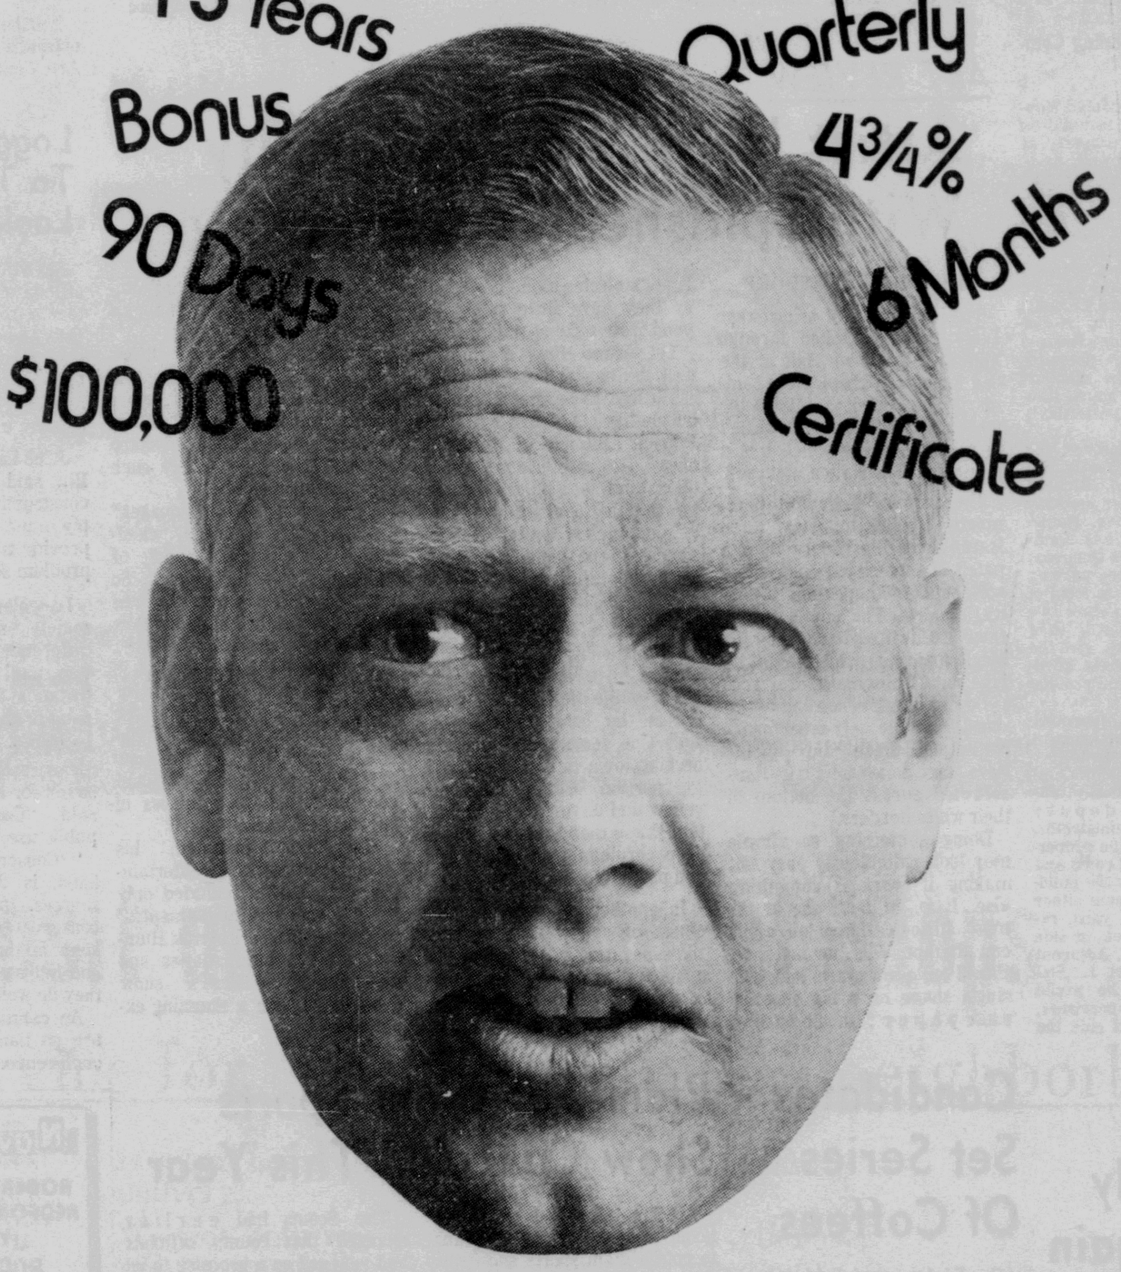

Also planned are a field trip to the Farallon Islands April 18 and a visit to the tide pools at Duxbury Reef, May 16.

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — San Francisco supervisors last night shot a $65 million hole in the Golden Gate Bridge District's plan for bus rapid transit.

The supervisors voted unanimously to reaffirm their opposition to a second deck for any use, even if it were reserved for transit as in the district's plan.

The plan, to be submitted Friday to the Legislature, calls for a $301 million start in the next 10 years on a bus rapid transit system using tunnels in downtown San Francisco and a second deck on the bridge. The system would cost $201 million for the San Francisco route, $65 million for the second deck, $30 million for vehicles, and $5 million for research and development.

It was unclear how the system would function without a second deck since it would be designed to operate on its own right-of-way.

But with the opposition by the San Francisco supervisors, the plan apparently will be in trouble when heard by legislative committees next month. In the Assembly, it will be heard by a special five-member subcommittee that includes two San Francisco legislators, so San Francisco's objections will have a strong voice on the subcommittee.

The subcommittee is headed by Democrat John F. Foran, who wrote the 1969 law ordering the district to submit a transit plan to the Legislature. His subcommittee will hold its first hearing on the plan at 1:30 p.m. on April 13 in the Capitol. The Senate Public Utilities and Corporations Committee will open its hearings on the plan at 9: 30 a.m. on April 19, also in the Capitol.

The district conceivably could be abolished in July when its bonds will be fully repaid, but the San Francisco supervisors said the district should continue operation.

The supervisors' resolution also urged the bridge district to get its conventional $25 million bus and ferry system into full operation "before mass rapid transit alternatives are decided upon." The bus system is scheduled to begin operation by December, and the ferry system by early 1973.

The supervisors' adamant stand against any second deck, the resolution declared, should be considered by the bridge district "in its future studies."

Supervisor James Mailliard, who as a member of the bridge board voted for the bus transit plan, lost a try to limit the supervisors' opposition to a second deck "for the use of private automobiles."

But the other supervisors, in a barrage of motions, refused to ease their opposition to a second deck, first declared in a 1967 resolution. Supervisor Dorothy Von Beroldingen warned that unless the 1967 stand were reaffirmed, "things will get out of hand, and we may not be able to stop it" (a second deck).

Dale W. Luehring, general manager of the bridge district, asked with no success that the supervisors leave the door open to a second deck, but after the vote said "whatever San Francisco wants, we'll try to follow."

Yesterday's vote had appeared certain after a hearing on March 16 by two of the supervisors' committees on the bridge district's plan. City officials and major civic organizations almost unanimously condemned the plan, objecting it would not benefit San Francisco, would hasten an exodus to Marin of middle-class San Franciscans, and disrupt the city with new construction.

Reorganization Alternative To Be Reviewed

An alternative to Supt. Wilber D. Hawkins's reorganization proposal for the Tamalpais High School District will be reviewed tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. by the Ad Hoc Congress studying reorganization.

Submitted by Dr. Surjit Singh, chairman of the study group, the alternative calls for implementation of Hawkins's plan only at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo.

The group will meet in the library of Redwood High School in Larkspur.

A Paramedic's Life Is Challenge To Elements

By FRANK FARRARA

S/Sgt. Michael J. Howard jumps out of airplanes into snow, sea or mountains, loaded with life-saving paraphernalia, and likes the job.

He is a paramedic with the Pararescue Section of the 41st Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron at Hamilton Air Force Base.

It took one year of training at a cost of about $90,000 to put Howard in operation as a paramedic, an investment that has paid off in saved lives.

When he enlisted in the Air Force four years ago out of the College of San Mateo, he didn't know there was such a thing as a paramedic.

Now, 23 and reenlisted for another four years, the young bachelor said, "I doubt I could find a more interesting job."

Ironically, he received his highest honor, the Distinguished Flying Cross, on an unsuccessful attempt to rescue two pilots downed in Southeast Asia.

Howard, then with a helicopter unit in Thailand, said: "Ground fire was intense. They shot the hoist off and the aircraft was on fire so we had to pull off."

The helicopter had 50 bullet holes, he recalled, but declined to reveal the location of the incident or whether any fatalities were involved.

While working with the unit in Thail.and, the crew "had three saves in hostile territory, and most were pretty hairy," Howard said.

Only about a dozen of 2,500 applicants are picked for paramedical training, but Howard, who had been on the Amador Valley High School swimming and track team in Pleasanton, Alameda County, passed the rigid physical fitness test.

"You had to run three miles in 26 minutes and swim a mile," he said.

He volunteered because he felt the job would offer "a lot of outdoor work and would be a little exciting," and his desire was spurred by his interest in scuba diving.

After a year of training he was not only a scuba diver, but a parachutist, mountain climber and medic.

At first there was running six to seven miles a day and doing 300 to 500 pushups a day, then parachute jumping school, combat survival school, scuba diving school, jungle survival school, medical training, field training as a pararescue technician, mountain climbing and training for Apollo recovery missions.

"Our job is survival," said Howard, a comment in keeping with the Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Service motto: "That Others May Live."

When the initial training ended, Howard was assigned to the 31st Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron in Manila, where he contended "90 per cent of the business was civilian and maritime."

Rescuing a man with a hemorrhage from a mountaintop was typical of his adventures there. In 1969 he was sent to Korea where he assisted in the rescue of a pilot who had bailed out at sea, and to Thailand, where he stayed until transferred to Hamilton Air Force Base last November.

(In a recent press release the Air Force noted that the 41st and 42nd Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadrons at Hamilton have assisted more than 3,600 persons and have been credited with 126 lives saved since Jan. 1, 1968)

Howard and S/Sgt. Michael E. Fish participated in the saving of two pilots who crashed into the Pacific 29 miles northwest of Point Arena Feb. 6 in an operation that one officer described as a "textbook case."

When a pararescue man drops from a plane to sea he is a flying aid station, carrying about 180 pounds of equipment including a life raft, parachute, reserve chute a 42-pound medical kit, oxygen tanks and scuba suit.

Airborne within 20 minutes after the alert the two pararescue men dropped into a calm sea to the two pilots who were spotted about 100 yards apart.)

Howard said there were no problems in the rescue operation but "I saw two sharks, one about 100 yards away and one about 10 yards away."

About the rescue, Lt. Col. P. D. Williams, one of the downed pilots, said at the time: "I'll tell you it sure was great to have them there with us, those guys are great."

When there is an alert sounded at the base, the pararescue men scramble to the HC-130 rescue plane, their gear is trucked to the plane, and they dress en route.

They have snow shoes if they are going to land in snow and special tree jump suits, suitably padded, if they are going to have to land in trees.

Howard stressed the job is essentially medical and he hoped that someday he might wind up in a paramedical job in civilian life.

Slowdown On Span Plan Urged

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The San Francisco Planning and Urban Renewal Association Monday urged that no high-capacity transit system be built across the Golden Gate until some form of regional government has been established.

Until a regional government is formed, the association said the Golden Gate Bridge District should continue to exist and devote most of its time to operating and improving its previously committed bus and ferry system.

The association's report said interim buses and ferries "should provide adequate service into the next decade, granting time for the formation of a responsible regional authority."

In addition, the report recommended "punitive peak-hour bridge tolls for automobiles" to help keep traffic jams within control.

The association's report began with the premise that "Public transit in the corridor should be designed to ease current congestion levels, but should not be so massive as to accelerate the future population growth of Marin and San Francisco."

Athlete's Offer Of Hair Cut

A faint echo of past controversy sounded at the Tamalpais High School District board meeting last night when a Redwood High School athlete complained he had been denied participation in a track meet because of the length of his hair.

Stephen Levintow, a participant in last year's "hair controversy," told the board he had offered to cut his hair but was still denied.

The athlete, with medium length hair just over the top of his ears, said he had appealed track coach Stanley Tobiason's decision to the athletic director, school principal and superintendent. However, each had told him they could not "intervene directly in the situation."

When principal Donald Kreps was questioned by the board he said he had not received the appeal but thought the youth's hair did conform with the rules.

"That's strange," said Levintow, adding he had indeed appealed to Kreps.

The board took no action, saying Kreps's approval was all that was needed to reinstate the youth on the team.

Kreps in the past has strongly supported his coaches' decisions on the appearance of athletes.

Marinites To Consumer Aid Panel

Among those appointed yesterday to a Bay Area task force on consumer protection to assist Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger are three Marin residents.

They are Kenneth V. Larkin of Greenbrae, senior vice president of the Bank of America in charge of consumer finance matters; Lloyd A. Pfluger of Belvedere, general manager of the Retail Dry Goods Assn. of San Francisco, and Charles R. Thurber of Terra Linda, executive director of the San Francisco Better Business Bureau.

The task force will single out problems in consumer affairs and then refer them either to the attorney general's office or other legal agencies, Younger said yesterday.

Similar groups will be set up in other metropolitan areas of the state, he said.

"We're trying to enlarge the protective scope of our activities," Younger explained.

HAZEL

Fire Victim Is Off Critical List

Melinda Whisler of San Anselmo, burned two weeks ago in a fire in San Francisco, today was reported no longer in critical condition at San Francisco General Hospital.

She is expected to leave the intensive care unit in a few days.

Her four-year-old son Mark was killed in the March 16 fire and a daughter, Holly, 8, was released Friday from the hospital after suffering from severe burns and smoke inhalation.

The family, who resides at 16 Traxler Road, was asleep in their San Francisco store after taking inventory when the fire broke out.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Cancer Cures Have Saved Many, But Prevention Needs Emphasis

More than a million and a half people in the United States have been cured of cancer for at least five years. This was accomplished by early detection, surgery, radiation and chemotherapy. But the death rate from cancer remains high and many authorities believe we should concentrate more on the prevention of the disease. Some investigators believe that at least 85 per cent of human cancer is due to carcinogens that we touch, inhale, eat, or drink. Some are known troublemakers and others are suspect. We must be careful not to assume that substances capable of causing cancer in animals do the same in humans. Even if known tumor-producing agents vanished tomorrow, cancer would still occur. It would take another 50 to 70 years for those exposed to these agents to die out.

FINDING CARCINOGENIC agents is difficult and time-consuming. Dr. David A. Wood, San Francisco, believes we should do more research on migrant populations. Especially those groups who develop more or perhaps less cancer in their new location. In Japan, the incidence of stomach cancer is high, but Japanese living in the United States do not have a high incidence of gastric carcinoma. Why? As yet, no one has come up with the answer.

Another example is the increased incidence of intestinal cancer among Poles who migrated to New England cities, rather than to rural areas. In these circumstances, heredity does not play a role.

CANCER RATES vary from country to country. American women have seven times more cancer of the breast than do Japanese women. Nursing customs may play a role. Cancer of the colon occurs more often in urban, than rural communities. Esophageal cancer is 10 times more prevalent in Puerto Rico than upper New York state.

Among the carcinogens considered possible culprits are food additives, tobacco, alcohol, chemicals, insecticides, air and water pollutants, and infection. You may suspect that a certain item causes cancer but before you scare other people or malign an innocent product or industry, be sure your proof will stand up.

HEARTBURN IN CHILD

B. M. P. writes: Is it possible for a child of 12 to have heartburn?

REPLY

Yes. Heartburn is a form of indigestion, not a cardiac condition. A youngster may develop heartburn because of emotional upsets or dietary indiscretions. X-rays of the stomach are suggested if the symptom persists.

GAS FOR DENTAL EXTRACTION

P. K. writes: Please tell me if it is dangerous to take gas for tooth extraction.

REPLY

Not in 99 per cent of the cases. Medicine and dentistry are not exact sciences and the rare complication occurs when least expected.

DON'T BELIEVE IT!

D. O. writes: Is it true that if a woman is having her period and bakes a cake, it flops?

REPLY

No. This myth is as illogical as another oldie that flowers wilt if touched by a menstruating woman.

INFANT BREATHING RATE

B. T. writes: Do babies breathe faster than adults?

REPLY

Yes. The respiratory rate of a newborn is 44, in adults, it is 18.

BART Scrubs 1956-Level Fare Schedule

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Fares have been rising on the Bay Area Rapid Transit system even before the first passenger trains begin to roll.

A BART spokesman says its administration committee will review a possible fare schedule at its meeting Tuesday. It includes 35 cents for trips up to four miles and $1.50 for the longest trips.

Under a schedule proposed in 1956, the fares ranged from 25 cents to a maximum of one dollar.

"But we believe the fares will still be low enough to lure auto commuters out of their cars and into our trains," said one BART official. "After all, the cost of auto commuting, including parking fees, has gone up considerably in the past decade."

His 1968 model car was taken between 10:30 and 11 p.m. yesterday from the Loch Lomond Yacht Harbor, Robert E. Mager of 40 Steven Court, Fairfax, reported to San Rafael police.

Homosexuals Picket 'Bigot'

COLLINGSWOOD, N. J. (UPI)—Members of the Hompohile Action League, angered at what they call the "antihomosexual bigotry" of the Rev. Carl McIntire, picketed his church Sunday.

"Gay love is beautiful," read the sign of one of 17 members of the Philadelphia-based league pacing before the Bible Presbyterian Church.

McIntire faced the group led by Paul Long, president of the board of trustees at the Philadelphia Christian Homophile Church, and said: "There is nothing in the bible about a homosexual church. Homosexuality is a denial of the creation ordinance and the teachings of Jesus."

Council To Hear Movie Resolution

A resolution that would strengthen the current GP movie rating will come before the Northern California Motion Picture and Television Coordinating Council at 10 a.m. Thursday.

The Council, representing eight separate councils, will meet at the home of Mrs. Robert Roumiguiere of 18 Culloden Park, San Rafael. The Marin Council will host the luncheon meeting.

The resolution, if adopted, would go before the annual meeting of the Federation of Motion Picture Councils, which represents 32 councils across the country. The national federation will meet April 19 in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Beefless Week For Argentinians

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Argentinians, who eat more beef per capita than just about anybody else in the world, began a beefless week today on government orders. The unpopular measure was aimed at providing more of the meat for export.

More affluent Argentinians prepared for the event by filling their freezers with meat. The less affluant had to turn to chicken, lamb and pork.

The most immediate effect was in restaurants, where sale of beef stopped almost entirely since they face fines up to $12,500 if caught selling beef.

It was the fourth time in less than 15 years that Argentines—who ate 183.7 pounds of beef per capita in 1969—were faced with a ban on their staple diet.

Drainage Ordinance Proposed

An ordinance to require developers of ridge property to take responsibility for drainage problems caused by their projects was recommended last night to the Corte Madera Planning Commission.

Roger G. Fry, of the Walnut Creek planning firm of Yoder, Trotter, Orlob and Associates, proposed the ordinance at a public hearing on a $20,000 storm drainage plan prepared by his firm.

The plan proposes drainage improvements, including pumps, ponding areas and reconstruction of culverts, channels and pipes, to handle runoff from those major storms expected to hit Marin every 25 years.

Town Engineer Arthur N. Morrison agreed that developers would have to bear responsibility for runoff created by their projects and said he would prepare a proposed ordinance setting fees for offsite drainage improvements.

The ordinance would apply to all builders but is aimed specifically at Ridge Land Developers, he said.

Builders would be required to pay such fees to help construct downstream facilities to cope with increased storm runoff caused when grass- and brush-covered land is replaced by buildings.

Morrison said he is given broad power under the existing zoning ordinance to collect such fees but an ordinance specifying the amounts to be paid would make it impossible for developers to complain about unfair assessments.

The drainage plan, presented to the town council Feb. 15, divides the town into 10 basins and suggests improvements for each. The extent of improvements ranges from minor in the Chapman Drive-Willow Avenue area, called the high canal basin, to extensive in the outer Paradise Drive area, which largely remains to be developed.

Fry told the commission that needed improvements were calculated on the basis of growth projected from the town's general plan.

No cost estimate on the improvements has been prepared, but Morrison said he is in the process of working on one.

Drainage facilities, he said, could be paid for either by a general obligation bond issue, under which all improvements would be constructed at once, or on a pay-as-you-go plan, using the approximately $25,000 collected each year by a drainage tax of 20 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

The town council will decide which funding method to use, Morrison said. In case it selects pay-as-you-go, the engineer said he is preparing a list of those basins which most urgently need flood control work.

The planning commission will take no action as a result of last night's special meeting. Morrison said the meeting was for the commission's information only, to be used in conjunction with considering plans for developments which might alter the runoff pattern in certain areas.

TELEVISION IN REVIEW

Parr Remains The Talk Show Leader

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — There's little question that ABC-Tv's Dick Cavett has carved out a very choice audience for his late-night talk show, but those of us who once compared him to Jack Paar might well reassess this evaluation.

Paar, of course, is still considered the unquestioned all-time master of the video talk show, and even many young, ultra-contemporary show business performers continue to pay homage to him when they privately discuss what they would like to do on television.

Cavett, it is true, has a passing resemblance to Paar in his dry wit, his waspish and honest reactions when a foolish guest gets way out of line or tries to tread on him, and also in his literate approach to topics that range far beyond showbiz.

There is, however, an essential and enormous difference between Paar and Cavett, and because of this difference Paar remains in a class by himself. For what made Paar unique, and continues to be the underlying reason for his appeal—even to today's young performers—is that he was not afraid to expose his inner self on the home screen. He was not scared of risking extremes and even errors. Risk is the key word. If you're afraid of it, you're just another guy punching a time clock.

Paar is a dignified man who respects restraint at the proper time, but, instinctively, he did not fear to lay bare his very personal feelings, however emotional, on subjects he felt really mattered.

Some were important, and some didn't seem to be, but in the end that aspect was secondary. For what emerged above all was a person you really seemed to know, someone who cast aside ultra-cool showbiz protocol, and therefore burst right through the home screen as a human being, using television as a direct communicating device with an effectiveness that no other entertainer has ever achieved.

In short, Paar let it all hang out before the young generation was given credit for the idea.

Cavett, on the other hand, seems so private about himself that one knows one is seeing only the public man. And it defeats the sense of exhilaration a viewer can feel when he knows a distant idol has dropped the showbiz facade and honestly tried to reach him personally. If you're singing and dancing, impersonality is unimportant. But if you're discussing ideas on as vast a medium as television, the public is entitled to know about you so it has a true frame of reference.

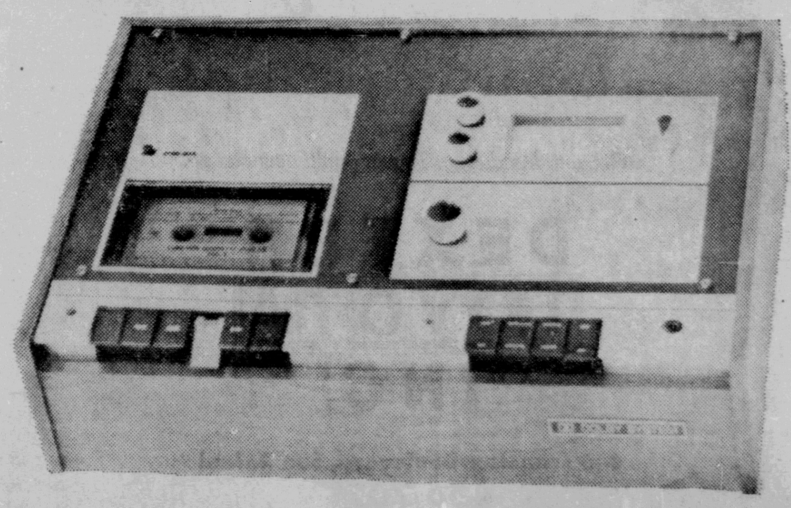

When Cavett had Orson Welles on his sow, the veteran actor shrewdly needled him by reversing the interviewing, joshing Cavett for being so private about himself and, eventually, embarrassing him a bit by trying to get him to talk about himself. Like many of us, Welles admires Cavett, but he made clear that he, too, wanted him to drop the facade.

Johnny Carson is a very private man also on his NBC-Tv series, and, along with Cavett, is tremendously adept at his job, yet, as Bert Schneider, producer of "Easy Rider" and "Five Easy Pieces," has said of video talk show hosts, you have the feeling they are playing their public selves, rather than being their real selves.

CBS-Tv's Merv Griffin seems another example of this, with his gosh-gee-Whiz-I'm-just-a m azed-at-what-you're-telling-me blarney. It's utterly incredible to think anyone would honestly fall for this hokum, which seems dated—a period piece—even as it is aired. Maybe that's its secret.

Medi-Cal Restoration Claimed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The sponsor of legislation to rescind cutbacks in the Medi-Cal program said yesterday Gov. Ronald Reagan has agreed to restore certain services and reimburse counties for reductions in others at a cost of $10 million.

Assemblyman Gordon Duffy, R-Hanford, said the governor had consented to expand the number of drugs available to Medi-Cal recipients and provide certain devices, such as eyeglasses, for children. The cost for both would be $2 million, he said.

The lawmaker also said Reagan agreed to pay counties $8 million in state aid for reimbursement of costs they will incur to provide health services to residents who were denied them by the Medi-Cal cutbacks.

He said, however, the $8 million would amount to only 60 to 70 per cent of the counties' additional costs.

The legislator said the administration would restore the services and provide county reimbursement through regulation changes.

Duffy said he would amend the Assembly-passed measure at the next meeting of the Senate Finance Committee.

Duffy also said he would ask the Senate to remove a section of the measure that increases from $12.60 to $14 a day the amount Medi-Cal will pay nursing homes for patient care.

Cancer Month

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI) — President Nixon has designated the month of April as Cancer Control Month and urged congressional approval of his request for an additional $100 million to support research on the disease.

Hallinan Requests Dropping His Suit

San Francisco (UPI) — Attorney Vincent Hallinan asked yesterday that his $2 million libel suit against Marin County cosmetics tycoon William Penn Patrick be dropped.

"Patrick is no longer of any importance," Hallinan said after filing a motion in San Francisco Superior Court.

"Why should I waste time, why should I take two or three or four weeks for a trial? I have all the money I need."

Hallinan said his Vivian suffered a fall at their home several weeks ago and he wanted to be able to take her to Honolulu to help her recuperation.

Trial of the suit started before a jury of seven women and five men last Thursday before Superior Judge Charles Perrey.

The lawsuit resulted from Patrick's 1966 campaign for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Hallinan, a San Rafael cosmetics manufacturer, said Patrick called him a "Marxist lawyer" and a "paid propagandist." He testified last Thursday, denying both allegations.

Chandler Files For Governor

FRANKFORT, Ky. (UPI)—A. B. "Happy" Chandler, 72, former major league baseball commissioner and twice governor of Kentucky; filed Monday as an independent candidate for governor in the November election.

Chandler, whose 1945-1950 term as commissioner of baseball was his only diversion from Kentucky politics, was elected governor in 1935 and 1955. He was defeated in the Democratic gubernatorial primary in 1963 and 1967.

His newly formed "Commonwealth Party," Chandler said, will proopose a state referendum on a Kentucky Derby sweepstakes lottery to raise revenue for the state.

Consumer Protection Service

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—California Attorney General Evelle J. Younger yesterday announced the formation of a San Francisco Bay area consumer protection task force.

Younger said measures to protect the consumer in many instances depend for their ultimate success upon enforcement through the courts.

"I feel it appropriate to undertake this task," he said.

He said the task force will identify long-range consumer problems, make recommendations and point to individual problems capable of judicial or legislative solution.

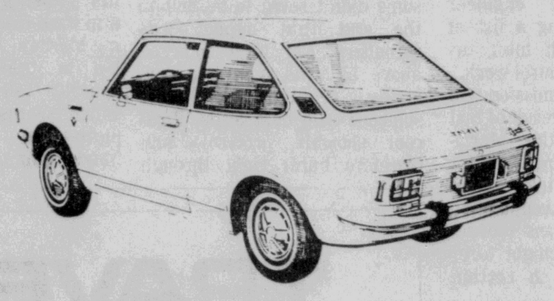

The San Francisco Bay area group is the first of four such groups to be organized, Younger said. Others will be in the Los Angeles area, San Diego and Sacramento.

Loch Ness Monster Insurance Refused

LONDON (UPI) —Lloyds of London has refused to underwrite an insurance policy for $2.4 million on the chances of the Loch Ness monster being captured.

"The risk is too great," a company spokesman said Monday. The request for insurance was submitted by a whisky firm which wanted to put up the money as a prize.

Al Attles Still Trying To Solve Puzzle Of The Bucks

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Attles, the San Francisco layer-coach, was unable to ead his team over the Bucks in egular season play and now as dropped to a 2-0 deficit in National Basketball Association layoff action.

Bobby Dandridge and Greg Smith keyed a second-half Milwaukee rally that gave the Bucks a 104-90 triumph over the Warriors. The third game of the best-of-seven series is scheduled for tonight at Madison, Wis. (It will be televised on Channel 2, beginning at 6 p.m.)

Dandridge and Smith scored eight points each during a third-quarter stretch that saw the Bucks rally from a 44-43 halftime deficit to a 72-60 advantage at the end of three periods.

"Dandridge's work in the second half not only stopped the Warriors but gave our offense movement," said Bucks' coach Larry Costello. "Another big factor is that we've been able to concentrate on one set defense for a specific opponent for the first time all season."

"The team isn't dying," said Attles after the Warriors' second loss, "but it's going to take an all-around effort to beat the Bucks."

Lew Alcindor finished as high man for the Bucks with 26 points while Dandridge added 21. Nate Thurmond led San Francisco with 18.

"I concede that they're physically stronger than we are," said Ramsey. "If they're trying to prove that, they done it already. But this isn't weight lifting. I thought this game was supposed to be a test to see who is the better basketball team."

Earl Monroe, Baltimore's star who has been devastating in playoff competition against Philadelphia, is expected to play after reinjuring his ribs Sunday afternoon. Monroe was knocked unconscious but managed to return to boost the Bullets to their second straight triumph.

Atlanta coach Richie Guerin's problem is to find a crack in the New York defense. The Hawks, trailing 2-1, were thwarted by Bill Bradley in their opening game loss and then by Walt Frazier's steals in the third game defeat.

"Frazier caused half our turnovers," said Guerin after Sunday night's loss. "He was roaming and cheating on defense and we weren't smart enough to stop him. He gave a lot of people lessons. He made four steals or deflections in a row and the Knicks turned them into baskets."

Frazier, a native of Atlanta who always seems to play well there, calls his defense, "a calculated gamble."

"I wasn't doing anything new," he added. "I'm an old dog now and I can't learn new tricks."

Dick Motta, the Chicago coach whose club trails Los Angeles 2-1, feels he must win tonight in Chicago to have a shot at beating the Lakers.

"We need a win," said Motta, "because while a loss wouldn't put us out of it, we play better at home and we've got to win our games here."

Los Angeles, on the other hand, has been emphasizing defense since the loss of star guard Jerry West late in the season.

"We're trying to keep them under 100 points a game," said Joe Mullaney, the Laker coach who was successful in the first two games — both Los Angeles victories. "They run a very good offense and we're trying to keep alert to what the Bulls might do. But we don't think they can change very much."

A Big Surprise For Paul Gottlieb

You could have bowled him over. Why, he was on pins and needles.

Yep, diminutive Paul Gottlieb of San Rafael was the most surprised man in town the other night when the Marin County Bowling Association inducted him into its Hall of Fame.

Walter Carter of San Anselmo, also joining Gottlieb in the Hall, wasn't as surprised when officers announced their election during the MCBA and Marin Women's Bowling Association dance at the Holiday Inn, San Rafael. "I had an inkling of the honor," said Carter, an insurance broker, "because I was on the Hall of Fame election committee last year and heard some talk."

But the 69-year-old Gottlieb is still walking on Cloud 9. Caressing the beautiful plaque commemorating the occasion, Paul said: "This is really quite an honor and I had absolutely no idea I would get it. At the awards dance Saturday night I couldn't figure out why all my family was there. Of course, they were tipped off about the surprise and it was their job to see that I got to the dance. Heck, I wanted to drive up the country for dinner but they talked me out of it to keep me close to the Holiday Inn."

I can't think of two men more deserving of the honor for Carter has served the MCBA as treasurer since its inception in 1948 and Gottlieb has won more honors than you can shake a pin at. He is one of a handful of Marin Countians to have bowled a 300 game.

Saturday night's awards dance, by the way, drew a turnout of 325 bowlers.

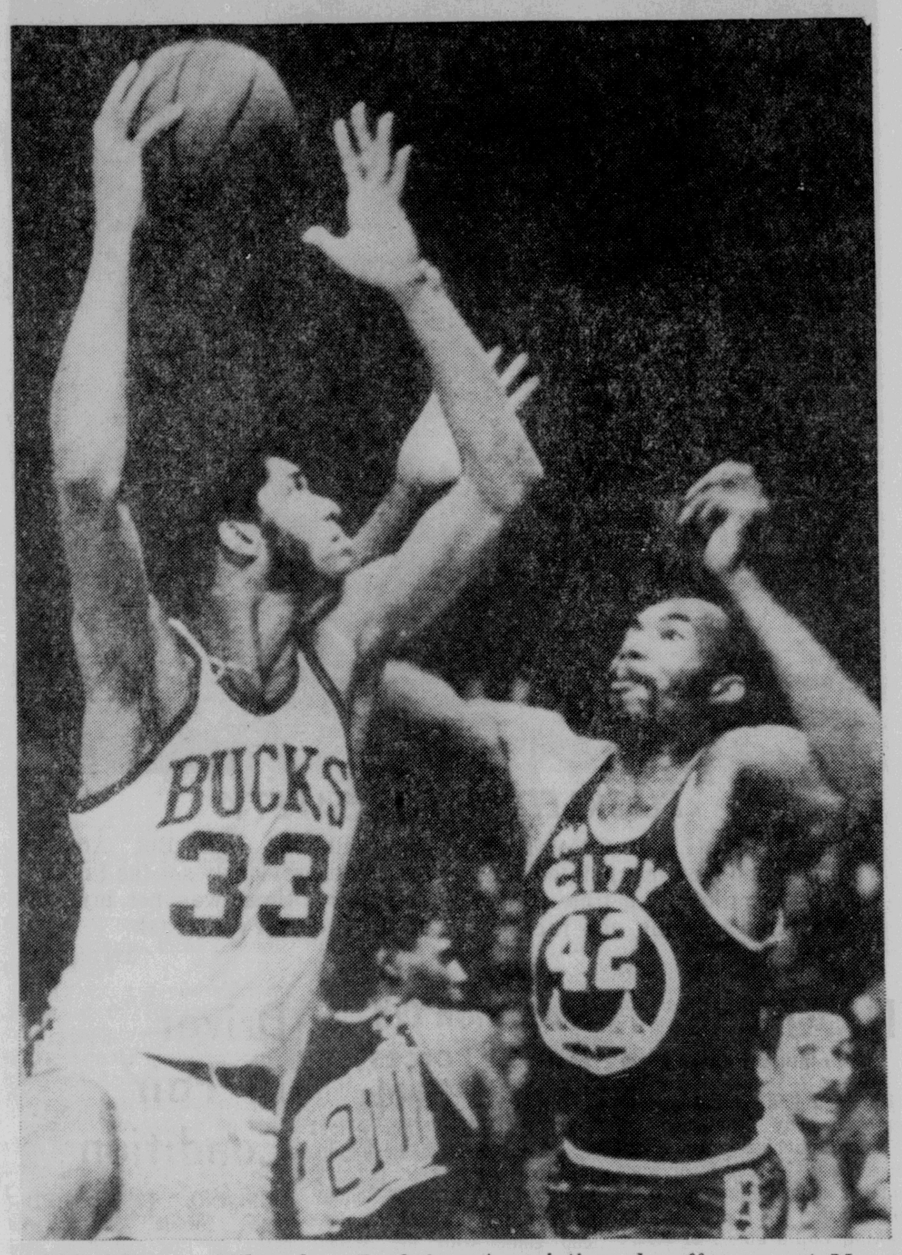

AL ATTLES, the player-coach for the San Francisco Warriors (or Worriers after last night) shouldn't have much trouble remembering his California auto license plates. He'll just have to look at his jersey.

Attles' personalized plates have arrived at the Corte Madera office of the Department of Motor Vehicles. They read: "CITY 16." Just like his jersey.

By the way, it's a mystery why the coach asked for his plates to be delivered to the Marin office because he resides in South San Francisco.

EARLIER THIS month I itemed that Radio KTIM sports director Bob Dinsmore, on a business trip to Korea, would be able to see the Clay-Frazier title fight for as little as 16 to 32 cents on television while U.S. prices for the closed-circuit telecast went as high as $25.

Well, Dinsmore popped into the office this morning and laughed: "Your article was correct except that you overcharged me. When I checked into my hotel room in Seoul I switched on the TV set and, lo and behold, there was the fight live via satellite. I saw it free. Bars and restaurants were charging 16 to 32 cents over there."

BIG LEW — Milwaukee Bucks' star center Lew Alcindor went over San Francisco's Nate Thurmond to score on a hook last night in a National Basketball Association playoff game at Madison, Wis. The Bucks won their second in a row from the Warriors, 104-90.

Another Problem For NBA

NEW YORK (UPI) —The National Basketball Association set up for the war, but who needed a revolution, too.

The NBA laid its battle plans for signing college players Monday when the league's 17 teams drafted 168 collegiansbm But the Buffalo Braves gave Commissioner Walter Kennedy another problem by drafting Spencer Haywood of the University of Detroit-Denver Rockets-Shattle SuperSonics (see complete draft list, page 30).

Haywood caused one legal fuss by signing with the ABA Rockets after his sophomore year in college and created another furor by jumping leagues to join the Sonics this season. All seemed resolved when a California judge ruled recently that Haywood could play for Seattle until Buffalo clouded the picture.

"I think the commissioner's office would like us to drop the case," said Paul Snyder, the Buffalo owner who took Haywood as the last of three second round choices. "But I think we have the support of other owners in the league. I feel we have a good chance of getting his services in Buffalo."

Haywood's selection came despite a stern rebuff from Kennedy. "Haywood is not eligible for the draft," said the commissioner. "If you insist on wasting a draft pick, go right ahead. But you have no right to him without permission from Seattle."

The Braves' contention is that Haywood is eligible to be drafted since his college class graduates this June and NBA by-laws prohibit the use of players before their class graduates.

Austin Carr, the scoring machine from Notre Dame, was the first choice in the draft, going to the Cleveland Cavaliers, who earned the first pick by finishing last in the regular season standings and then winning a coin flip with Portland.

The Trail Blazers followed by taking UCLA's Sidney Wicks and Buffalo made seven-footer Elmore Smith of Kentucky State its No. 1 pick. Ken Durrett of LaSalle went to Cincinnati and Atlanta grabbed George Trapp of Long Beach State. Seattle took Iowa's Fred Brown and San Diego went for Cliff Meely of Colorado.

San Francisco drafted Darnell Hillman of San Jose State and Baltimore took Oregon's Stan Love. Clarence Glover of Western Kentucky was chosen by Boston, UCLA's Curtis Rowe was selected by Detroit, Tulsa's Dana Lewis went to Philadelphia and Los Angeles chose Jim Cleamons of Ohio State.

GREAT COMEBACK

Marin Tars Win In Ninth

By DAVID EINSTEIN

In the greatest comeback since the Income Tax refund, the College of Marin Tars came from behind with fiery three-run rallies in the seventh and ninth innings yesterday to defeat Contra Costa Junior College, 6-5 in a Camino Norte Conference baseball game at Kentfield.

Rightfielder Larry Brazda struck the winning blow, a bases loaded single in the bottom of the ninth, a line drive to center that sent Ken Roby and Dee Fedrick home with the runs that increased the Tars' CNC record to 4-1 and keeps them tied for first place with West Valley of Campbell.

Marin's ninth inning surge, in which the Comets of San Pablo were unable to record an out, climaxed an uphill battle that began in the seventh, when pitcher Jerry Goodrick, who went all the way for his second win of the year, suffered through four Contra Costa runs that broke a scoreless tie. The unkindest cut of all was an inside-the-park homer by pitcher Darrell Dickens, which knocked in the third and fourth runs.

Dickens thus improved his own situation, and was floating along on a three-hitter going into the bottom of the seventh. The Tars might easily have folded at that point in the face of a four-run deficit, but instead they came out swinging, and got back in the game with three runs on four hits — a double by Goodrick, and singles by Roby, Fedrick and Rafael Gallardo. Roby's was the crucial shot as it knocked in a pair of runs.

Marin's stock rose considerably with that rally, but took a dive again in the eighth. Contra Costa scored another run, and the Tars went down in order in their half on two popups and a strikeout. It looked like curtains for coach Vic Petreshene's hometown heros.

Ah, but then came the ninth, when five Marin batters strode to the plate and all five produced. Mike Parnow singled, Roby singled and Fedrick made it to first and then second on an error while Parnow scampered home to make the score 5-4. With first base open, Gallardo was intentionally walked, loading them up for Brazda, who supplied the clincher with his third hit of the game.

Goodrick, who even when the Comets rocked him in the seventh didn't look bad, flashed pinpoint control while scattering nine hits enroute to the win. He struck out five and didn't walk a man. He's now tied for the club lead in wins with Dennis Bueler, who was named by Petreshene to pitch today when the Tars met Canada J. C. in a game at 3 p.m. in Redwood City.

Two Victories

Rich Govan of San Rafael drove the D and S Garage Special, Car No. 4, to victories in the third heat and trophy dash, and won second in the main event Sunday at the Vallejo Speedway hardtop races.

Warriors Challenge Pacers, Draft Darnell Hillman

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The San Francisco Warriors have challenged the ABA's Indiana Pacers by drafting Darnell Hillman, 6-8 San Jose State performer who blossomed in service ball.

Hillman was the top draft pick of the Pacers and the Warriors made him number one Monday, too.

Hillman is in Kentucky with the Armed Services team playing in the National AAU tournament, but his agent, John Chaffetz of San Jose, said that "if neither contract is acceptable, Darnell will go back to school, probably San Jose State.

Hillman, brilliant prep star in Sacramento, showed potential as a soph at San Jose State in 1968-69 and has been a consistent service all-star.

The Warriors must have liked the big forward because they didn't draft such available performers as Stan Love of Oregon, Curtis Rowe of UCLA, John Roche of South Carolina or Dean Meninger of Marquette.

One reason they might have passed up backcourters Roche and Meminger was because they traded their second and third draft choices to Portland for five-year veteran Jim Barnett.

The rest of the Warriors draftees included Grey Gary of St. Bonaventure, Odis Allison of Nevada Las Vegas, 5-11 Charlie Johnson of UC Berkeley, Ken May of Dayton, Jim Haderlein of Loyola, Clarence Smith of Villanova and Bill Drozdiak of Oregon.

Mets Trade Chance To Detroit Tigers

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—Dean Chance, a former Cy Young winner, was traded to the Detroit Tigers Tuesday by the New York Mets.

The 29-year-old Chance and another pitcher, Bill Denehy, were sent to the Tigers in exchange for 27-year-old right-hander Jerry Robertson. The Tigers immediately sold Denehy outright to Toledo of the International League, and Robertson was optioned to Tidewater of the International League.

Chance, who won the Cy Young Award as the outstanding pitcher in the American League in 1964 when he played with the California Angels, was purchased for a reported $150,000 from Cleveland last season when the Mets were in their stretch drive. He had a 9-8 record with Cleveland and was 0-1 with New York in three games.

Denehy had a 3-4 record with Memphis and 7-4 with Tidewater last season, and Robertson was 0-0 with the Tigers in 11 games and 4-4 at Toledo.

Soutar Favored In Champions Bowl Tourney

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Dave Soutar, a five-time tour champion last year and a two-time winner already this year, is the choice of the nation's bowling writers to capture the $100,000 Firestone Tournament of Champions bowling tournament beginning Wednesday.

Soutar, of Gilroy, Calif., was favored by the writers to pick up the $25,000 first prize, with Johnny Petraglia of Brooklyn, N.Y. being the second choice.

Petraglia is the current leading money winner on the pro tour and has captured the Winston-Salem Classic and the Fair Lanes Open in Washington, D.C. He has made the five-man finals six times this year.

Novato Golfers In League Win

Giants Make Final Cuts Of Spring

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI)—Don't be surprised if today's San Francisco Giant-Los Angeles Dodger Cactus League tussle has the look of a regular season battle between the two old rivals.

The Giants fell 5-1 Monday to the Chicago Cubs to see their spring record sag to a still solid 15-10.

But manager Charlie Fox said "They were down and listless today, but they'll be up when they play the Dodgers."

Moreover, the Giants made five cuts and now have their opening day squad of 25 players set.

The final cutdowns saw pitchers Mike Davison, Jim Barr and Jim Moyer sent to Casa Grande along with catcher Dave Rader and outfielder Bernie Williams. The Dodgers cut down to 26 Monday.

The departure of the five Giants leaves four rookies without an inning of big league experience on the varisty—pitcher Steve Stone, catcher Fran Healy, infielder Chris Speier and outfielder Jim Rosario.

Not One, But Two Agents For Porter

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Condors have signed Howard Porter to an American Basketball Association contract, but it may take the courts to decide where Porter plays next season.

Porter, the most valuable player in the NCAA basketball championship, apparently has involved himself with two agents—one of whom negotiated a reported five-year, million-dollar contract with Pittsburgh, and another negotiating with the Chicago Bulls of the NBA.

"Porter is legal property of the Condors," said Operations Director Mark Binstein. "We have completed negotiations with him, and I expect him to be in a Pittsburgh uniform for 10 years."

The 6-foot-8 Porter, an All-American at Villanova, was not available for comment after the Condors' announcement and even his attorney, Norman Blass said he did not know where he was. Porter showed up later Monday night at a basketball writers' dinner in Philadelphia.

"I haven't talked to them and I'm not going to talk to anyone for a while," Porter said. "I'm tired after a hard tournament. If the money's there now, it will be there later."

"Off his play in the NCAA championships, Porter has emerged as perhaps the hottest property in the pro draft today," said Binstein, and that could be the crux of the Condors' problems.

Porter reportedly made his first committment to the ABA and Pittsburgh in January after the Condors chose him No. 1 in the league's secret draft. After winning the MVP award in the national championships, Porter has become a hotter property.

Two More Home Runs For Reggie

MESA, Ariz. (UPI)—Reggie Jackson has hit 30 homers — since the end of the season.

The powerhouse outfielder banged 20 while tearing up the Puerto Rican winter league and a pair Monday brought his spring total to 10 as he led the Oakland Athletics to a 9-6 win over San Diego.

Jackson was not the only one to shine. Big Catfish Hunter was tagged hard, but he went the route to become the second Oakland hurler to pitch all the way this spring.

He pitched five shutout innings before Nate Colbert hit the first of two homers off him, but by that time the A's pretty well had things rapped up.

S & S Rookies Make Three M's Move Over

PHOENIX — This has been a unique spring for the Giants. It started routinely. The three Ms dominated the early copy out of training camp as Willie Mays, Juan Marichal and Willie McCovey have done for the past decade.

But it took only a week for a couple of popup rookies to capture the attention of the press association writers and the regularly assigned reporters covering the Giants. Steve Stone and Chris Speier took the play away from the three Ms.

MAYS HELD the spotlight during the first week of encampment at Casa Grande as the captain of the team and its president, Horace Stoneham, went round and round in contract talks that finally were resolved with Mays signing a new two-year deal at $165,000 a season.

Then Marichal grabbed the sports headlines as he once again began throwing strikes out of three slots — overhand, three-quarter and sidearm — to prove that he had not lost his pitching wizardry despite a severe reaction to penicillin treatment for a strange virus he picked up during the team's visit to Japan last spring.

AND McCOVEY received his share of attention notwithstanding a typically slow spring start because of an arthritic right knee that has bothered him the past several years. Stretch demonstrated beyond doubt that he still can poke prodigious home runs with a buggywhip swish of the bat.

However, the remarkably poised pitching of Stone and the confident, almost cocky attitude, of Speier at shortstop and at bat made everyone in camp temporarily forget about the three Ms. The two S&S rookies provided refreshing copy.

EVEN IN 1958 the Giants didn't have such colorful rookies as Stone and Speier — and in 1958, their first year beside the Golden Gate, they had some exciting ones in Orlando Cepeda, Jim Davenport, Willie Kirkland, Bob Schmidt and others, including Felipe Alou who didn't even make the first team.

Stone and Speier came to camp as non-roster rookies, Stone with two years of minor league experience behind him, Speier only one. Yet, at the midway mark of spring training, Stone won the No. 3 starting role behind Marichal and Gaylord Perry, and Speier ran Hal Lanier off shortstop.

HORACE STONEHAM announced at the midway point that the Giants had purchased Stone's contract from the Phoenix farm club and Speier's from the Amarillo farm club.

STONEHAM ALWAYS has been an optimist about ball players in his organization but he finds it difficult in choosing adjectives to describe his elation over the way Stone and Speier have performed this spring.

The S&S rookies did make it easy for baseball writers covering the Giants this spring. Stone and Speier provided refreshing copy. Indeed, it was unique after a decade of somewhat monotonous reporting about the three Ms.

Can Bruin Dynasty Continue?

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Sidney Wicks and three other starters will be gone but John Wooden says it's possible. Not likely but possible.

The UCLA Bruins could continue to dominate college basketball next season, the architect of five straight NCAA titles admitted Monday.

"We shouldn't win it," Wooden said. "We'll be much too inexperienced. But we could."

However, the UCLA coach wouldn't talk about the future in the presence of Wicks and Curtis Rowe before the Southern California Basketball Writers on a day the pair went in the first round of the National Basketball Association draft.

"I don't know why I should start talking about next year when we're just off a national championship and we have Sidney and Curtis with us," he remarked.

Since 1964, the Bruins have captured seven national crowns and the brunt of their attack next season will be carried by 6-foot-10 1-2 Bill Walton, a member of UCLA's unbeaten freshman club.

In fact, Wooden said there was "a good chance three of the freshmen will start."

The man who has coached at UCLA for 23 seasons cautioned about expecting too much from Walton. He said not to compare him with Lew Alcindor, who brought the Bruins three NCAA championships.

"Walton is no Alcindor," Wooden said. "I don't think you're going to see another player come along who is as dominant as Lewis was. Bill is not as big or as maneuverable as Lew.

"He should be excellent on defense and he's a fine shot blocker. And at a comparable stage he is much superior to Alcindor on the outlet pass to lead the fast break."

UCLA won by six points—68-62—over Villanova in the national championship game. During the season, seven of the Bruins' victories were by five points or less.

"It's been a tough year," Wooden told the writers. "We were involved in a lot of emotional games. It was quite a strain on us."

On the basis of their wins in tight games, did the senior-dominated Bruins demonstrate more poise than ever before?

Defense won it for the Bruins in 1971, Wooden added.

"Some teams allowed less points but I felt we were the best in the country defensively."

Asked about the signing of college players before their classes graduate, the Wizard of Westwood said:

"I think it's wrong. I think it's an example of greed. I think the pros will hurt themselves in the long run if they open this up. I really hate to see it. It's a sad thing."

South Carolina Quits The ACC

COLUMBIA, S. C. (UPI)—The University of South Carolina, its national athletic ambitions frustrated by strict recruiting requirements, announced its resignation Monday from the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The chairman of the university board of trustees, T. Eston Marchant, said South Carolina's resignation would be effective August 15, but that the school would honor all contractural commitments.

Athletic Director Paul Dietzel, seeking to build a national football contender at South Carolina like he had at Louisiana State, has said he can't recruit top-flight players under the ACC requirement that athletes make a grade of 800 on entrance examinations. He said the conference should require only the NCAA 1.6 grade ratio.

Boxing

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI)—A contract for a light heavyweight title bout in Tampa was signed and sealed Monday with provisions for modest ticket prices and home television viewing.

Skiing

DENVER (UPI)—It wasn't official until the last heat of the last event, but Karen Budge of Jackson, Wyo., won the women's section of the 1971 Canadian-American Ski Trophy Series.

Lance Poulsen of Olympic Valley, Calif., took the men's section on points he earned earlier in the season.

In the official standings, prepared by Ski Racing Magazine in Denver, and released this week, Miss Budge narrowly beat July Crawford of Toronto, Ont., with 173 points to 171.

Hockey

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI)—Although nine games remain in the 1971 World Ice Hockey championships, the ruling world champions from Russia appear to be home free.

Theoretically, both Sweden and Czechoslovakia have a chance to upset the Russian hockey machine, which disposed of Finland 10-1 Monday. But that would require upsets of the magnitude that has never before been seen in the world of amateur ice hockey.

The Russians have 13 points against nine each for the Swedes and the Czechs.

Tennis

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI)—U.S. tennis champ Cliff Richey scored an easy victory over Morton Stern, 6-0, 6-0 Monday in a first-round match in the 19th Caribe Hilton international tennis tournament.

Stern retained his "feat" of not advancing to the second round in any of the 18 years he has played in the tournament.

In other games, Yugoslavia's Zeljko Franulovic, seeded number four, beat Puerto Rican Juan "Rayita" Ortiz, 6-2, 6-2; third seeded Ralph Graener, from California, beat Austrian Hans Kary, 7-6, 7-1, 6-0; Vic Sexias beat Canadian Mike Nelins 5-7, 6-4, 6-4, and Gerald Patrick of Britain beat Puerto Rican Freddie De Jesus, 6-3, 6-3.

Sohner Softballers Open Play Tonight

Sohner Tree Service softballers of Marin will field what could be the club's finest team in their 12-year history when the defending Tri-County (Marin, Sonoma, Mendocino) District champs open the season this week.

The Treemen have a pair of practice games tonight and Thursday and then open play Saturday in San Mateo against Rector Motors in a Golden Gate League doubleheader.

The Treemen are expected to have one of the finest pitching staffs in northern California. Heading the list will be right-hander Morey Swarm who is back with the team after playing on a limited basis last season.

The local team will also welcome back Chuck Tyson who has returned after a one-year military stint in Vietnam.

Also slated to see a lot of mound duty is hard-hitting Jess Munyon, the team's regular catcher. In the absence of Swarm and Tyson last season, it was Munyon who hurled every game as Sohner swept through undefeated to win the District crown. Munyon was named MVP.

The team's infield will probably be comprised of Sandy Ingersol at first, Ron McCamish at second, Ron Blum at Shortstop and Milt Hain at third.

Ingersol, a newcomer to the Sohner lineup, was the starting first baseman for U.C. at Berkeley in 1966, 1967 and 1968. McCamish, Blum and Hain are veterans.

Ron Smith and Carlo Alioto, another pair of newcomers, are expected to see infield duty. Smith, who can catch and play third, spent four years in the Pittsburgh Pirate organization.

Donati, Keith Fraser, Denise Staub and Doug Wilson are expected to battle Tyson (when he's not pitching) and Smith for outfield berths.

Hadl's Condition Greatly Improved

LA MESA, Calif. (UPI) — San Diego Charger quarterback John Hadl, injured last weekend in a horseback riding accident, was reported greatly improved and in satisfactory condition at a hospital Monday.

Hadl, 31, who was listed in serious condition after eye surgery, was removed from the hospital's intensive care unit and placed in a private room. It was expected he could remain hospitalized at least through this week.

Marathon Oil, Armed Forces In AAU Finals

LONDON, Ky. (UPI)—Host Marathon Oil Co. of Lexington, Ky., edged the U.S. Caps of Cincinnati, Ohio, 62-58 Monday night to move into a championship game with the Armed Forces All-Stars for the National AAU basketball title.

The Armed Forces defeated the Southeastern All-Stars 86-81 in an earlier semi-final game Monday night. The Caps and the Southeastern All-Stars will meet in a consolation game prior to the finals tonight.

The Armed Forces team led throughout, despite a rally in the last four minutes by the Southeastern All-Stars, a team made up of Kentucky college seniors.

Driver In 'Fair' Condition

UPLAND, Calif. (UPI)—David "Swede" Savage was listed in fair condition and showing some improvement today at San Antonio Community Hospital from head injuries he suffered Sunday in the $288,900 Questor Grand Prix at Ontario, Calif.

The 24-year-old racing driver from Santa Ana, Calif., was reported in a semi-conscious condition Monday in the intensive care unit of the hospital.

Savage lost control of his Eagle-Plymouth Formula A racing machine on the 12th lap of the first heat. The car smashed into the retaining wall on turn nine and Savage's head rammed into the wall, witnesses said.

Savage appeared only slightly injured at first but when a doctor reached him, he lapsed into unconsciousness and was taken by ambulance to the hospital.

Predicted Log Race Opener On Saturday

The Predicted Log Racing Association of Northern California will inagurate the first of its 1971 season of seven races on San Francisco Bay and Delta waters on Saturday when contestants from many areas compete in the Opening Day Race in San Rafael, co-sponsored by Robert J. Kelly Custom Homes and the San Rafael Yacht Club.

"The San Rafael race always attracts a large number of entries," reports Vern Rasmussen, commodore of the PLRA, "as it is usually excellent race weather, and the course to be run includes parts of San Francisco and San Pablo bays where tides and currents offer the contestants a real navigation challenge."

Predicted Log racing is not a contest of speed, but an event where boat skippers predict in advance the amount of time it will take them to navigate their craft over a specific course of 20 to thirty miles, without changing the speed of the boat engines from start to finish. This type of pleasure boat competition requires a thorough knowledge of boat capabilities in any type of weather, and a complete understanding of tides and currents.

Four trophies are awarded in each of two divisions: (1) Boats cruising in excess of 10 knots, and (2) boats cruising at less than 10 knots. A special overall trophy is awarded to the skipper completing the course with the least per centage of error.

Other races include: Berkeley Yacht Club, April 17; LOCH LOMIND Y.C., MAY 22; Bridge Marina Y.C. June 19; PETALUMA, SEPT. 18; SAUSALITO CRUISING CLUB, OCT 16, and CORINTHIAN Y.C., Oct. 23.

BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER

A slow lane (one that causes the ball to hook too much) can be compensated for in several ways. First, move your starting position a few boards to the left so that your ball will have more room to hook. Second, increase your speed a little. Third, loft the ball out on the lane a few inches farther than usual.

SHALL WE DANCE? — Former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson spilled out of the ring on top of Roger Russell last night in the third round of their fight in Philadelphia. The scheduled 10-rounder came to an end one round early when Patterson scored a TKO, his third straight comeback win.

COMEBACK TRAIL

Easy TKO For Patterson

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson scored an easy TKO over Roger Russell at 1:29 of the ninth round at the arena Monday for his third consecutive victory.

Patterson, a 36-year-old New Yorker on the comeback trail, sent Russell to the ropes with a left hook to the head that dazed him and forced referee Zack Clayton to stop the bout.

Russell was putting up little resistance by the ninth round, and Clayton warned him twice that if he wouldn't punch the fight would be stopped.

Patterson carried the fight to Russell, whom he outweighed 192 to 185 pounds, despite a bothersome cut over his left eye. Russell caught Patterson with a left hook in the second round, opening the cut, which bled for two rounds.

Dr. Wilbur H. Strickland, a state boxing commission physician who examined Patterson after the fight said he would need three or four stitches to close the cut and it may keep him out of the ring for the next month.

In the third round, both fighters fell through the ropes in a flurry of punches. Patterson regained his composure and slipped to the canvas, but there was no count.

Russell, whose eye was swollen after the exchange in which Patterson's eye was cut, complained of his eye after the seventh round. Dr. Alfred E. Ayella, ring physician, examined him and allowed the fight to continue.

The victory, Patterson's third since a loss to World Boxing Association champ Jimmy Ellis in 1968, gave the former champ a 49-7-1 record.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

McNally's Pitching Sharp For Orioles' Tough Staff

By United Press International

No American League pitcher in the last 30 years has strung together four straight 20-victory seasons but Dave McNally of the Baltimore Orioles looks equal to the task this year.

McNally, who posted 22-10, 20-7 and 24-8 records during the last three seasons, became the first Oriole pitcher to go nine innings Monday in a 4-1 triumph over the Montreal Expos. McNally allowed 10 hits but the only run off him was on a homer by Adolfo Phillips in the eighth inning.

Rivals looking for a crack in the Orioles' solid-front of three 20-game winners —Mike Cuellar and Jim Palmer also won 20 games for the Orioles last season —have found little hope for optimism this spring. The staff seems as strong as ever and pitching coach George Bamberger even has predicted that it may have a fourth 20-game winner in Pat Dobson, a 14-game winner with the San Diego Padres last season.

Red Ruffing of the New York Yankees was the last AL pitcher to win 20 games four years in a row, posting marks of 20-12, 20-7, 21-7 and 21-7 from 1936 through 1939.

The Orioles took a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning when Merv Rettenmund doubled home Boog Powell and then scored on Andy Etchebarren's single. Frank Robinson homered in the fifth and Brooks Robinson tripled and scored on a sacrifice fly by Etchebarren in the sixth.

On other fronts: Reggie Jackson drove in four runs with two homers, his ninth and 10th of the spring, as the Oakland Athletics beat the Padres, 9-6. ... Nate Colbert of the Padres also hit two homers and drove in a total of five runs ... Ken Holtzman, ineffective in previous exhibition outings, allowed one run in six innings in the Chicago Cubs' 5-1 triumph over the San Francisco Giants. The Cubs have a 15-9 exhibition record.

Milt Wilcox yielded two runs in seven innings and hit a two-run double to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-2 win over the Philadelphia Phillies. Wilcox shut out the Phillies until the seventh when Bobby Pfiel doubled and Tim McCarver homered ... Joe Niekro pitched seven strong innings and Jim Northrup homered for the Detroit Tigers as they downed the Kansas City Royals, 7-5.

Joe Torre, who hit three homers against the Minnesota Twins on Sunday, hit into a triple play Monday during the St. Louis Cardinals' 3-2 victory over the Twins. The triple play started when Torre lined to third baseman Rick Renick with runners on first and second. Renick relayed to second baseman Frank Quilici for the second out and Quilici threw to first baseman Harmon Killebrew for the third out ... Stan Bahnsen pitched seven strong innings, had two hits, scored a run and knocked in another in the New York Yankees' 3-1 decision over the Atlanta Braves ... The Milwaukee Brewers took advantage of three walks by Gene Brabender and two by Ray Jarvis to score six runs in the eighth inning and beat the California Angels, 7-1.

Mike Hershberger, a free agent hoping to catch on with some club in the majors, singled home the winning run in the ninth inning as the Chicago White Sox shaded the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-6. Rich Hebner hit two homers for the Pirates, who suffered their fifth loss in 19 exhibition games ... Reggie Smith hit a three-run homer and Don Pavletich a two-run homer in a five-run third inning that carried the Boston Red Sox to an 11-4 romp over the Houston Astros. Pavletich hit a second homer in the sixth inning and added a single in the ninth to lead the Red Sox' 14-hit attack.

23 Grand Slams

A Happy Rodriguez For Detroit Tigers

NEW YORK (UPI)—Aurelio Rodriguez got the sign during a ball game in Florida the other day and acknowledged it. Billy Martin, the Detroit manager, wanted him to play hit-and-run.

Norm Cash got the sign also.

He took a short lead off first and began running with the pitch but Rodriguez fouled it off.

Martin kept the same sign on and Ken Tatum, working for Boston, came in with his next delivery as Cash broke for second again.

By now Aurelio Rodriguez' adrenalin was pumping pretty good. He was concentrating extra hard on what he had to do. Hit-and-run ... hit-and-run ... hit-and-run. Only Rodriguez' brain told him one thing and his body another.

Detroit's new third baseman put what he thought was merely a little extra oomph in his swing. Only a little extra.

But the last time anybody saw the ball it was traveling like a bee-bee shot over the left centerfield wall at Winter Haven and Aurelio Rodriguez, who was supposed to have played hit-and-run, had himself a home run instead.

He also had a smile a mile wide across his face after circling the bases and touching home plate.

For Aurelio Rodriguez, who is Mexican and not given to worrying unduly, the big grin was rather characteristic. He comes close to being the happiest guy on the Detroit ball club.

"He's the most pleasant guy I've ever seen," says Hal Middlesworth, the Tigers' Public Relations Director. "Always smiling and always laughing."

When Rodriguez first reported to the Tigers this spring, he was pressing, particularly at the plate, and the reason was rather obvious. He still doesn't handle English that well but he reads the Mexican papers perfectly and realizes he was the "key man" in the Denny McLain deal, at least insofar as the Tigers were concerned.

Rodriguez went hitless in his first seven trips this spring but is meeting the ball well enough now. There was never any question about his glove work. He can do some things defensively not even Brooks Robinson can.

"He runs better than Brooks and throws better," says shortstop Eddie Brinkman, who came over with Rodriguez to Detroit in the eight-player deal with Washington. "Chi Chi could turn out to be a super player."

Rick Reichardt, a former Washington teammate, gave Rodriguez the nickname "Chi Chi." One day Reichardt said to Rodriguez:

"You know the golfer, Chi Chi Rodriguez? Now you're Chi Chi."

No matter what they call him the 23-year-old smiling third baseman looks like the goods. That's why Ted Williams hollered "Oh, no!" when Bob Short, the Washington owner, first told him he had traded Rodriguez to Detroit last October.

Rodriguez' initial reaction was pretty much the same as Williams' when Paul Casanova, the Senators' catcher, telephoned him in Mexico to tell him about the deal.

"You're kidding," Rodriguez said.

"No, it's true," Casanova assured him.

"I'm surprised," Chi Chi said. "Short told me I was going to be his third baseman for the next 10 years."

Rodriguez has fond memories of his days with the Senators, who got him from the Angels in a deal for Ken McMullen last April. He has particularly fond memories of Ted Williams.

"He's a good person and I like him very much," Chi Chi says. "He help me a lot. When I play for California I swing at too many bad balls. Not with Washington. Ted Williams, all the time, he say to me 'no swing at bad balls ... always look, look ... wait ... wait ....'"

Aurelio Rodriguez remembers Ted Williams and smiles.

"I no forget what he tell me," he says. "Never."

Don't Get Cornered Into Trump Action For Slam Victory

"When you grow up, the women will be after you," my father warned me many years ago. "They'll try to make you draw trumps and take a 9 to 5 job. Don't let them sweet-talk you. Leave the trumps out, and work when you feel like it." Naturally, he had a hand to bolster up his argument.

LISTENS TOO MUCH

South was a fine fellow, my father related, but he listened to too many women. He was cautious enough to ruff the second club with the jack of spades after East took the first trick with the jack of clubs and continued with a low club.

West discarded a diamond, and South led a low trump to dummy. East discarded a club, and South whistled with surprise. He was always better at whistling than at playing bridge.

South drew two more rounds of trumps, and there went his slam. Dummy still had two club losers and two heart losers. South could discard two of those four cards on his top diamonds, and he could ruff one, but that still left one loser in dummy. If South tried, instead, to set up his own hand, he could ruff two of the three losing diamonds, but then the last low diamond belonged to the opponents.

FREE SPIRIT

"If South had an independent spirit," my father pointed out, "he would not have drawn trumps. After leading one trump to dummy, he would take the ace of hearts, cash the top diamonds and ruff a diamond in dummy. He would next cash the king of hearts, ruff a heart, lead a trump to dummy, and ruff dummy's last heart with the ace of trumps. Dummy would then take the rest of the tricks with trumps."

I worked it out very carefully because I was quite a young lad and knew little about drawing trumps and even less about women. It all came out right. South could make 12 tricks if he ruffed three times in his own hand.

I never did discover what this had to do with a 9 to 5 job, but if my father was right about drawing trumps maybe he was right about that too.

ALMANAC

Today is Tuesday, March 30, the 89th day of 1971.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mercury and Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Aries.

Dutch painter Vincent van Gogh was born March 30, 1853.

On this day in history:

In 1858 Hyman Lipman of Philadelphia received a patent for a pencil to be equipped with an eraser.

In 1857 Secretary of State William Seward reached an agreement with Russia for the purchase of Alaska for $7.2 million in gold.

A thought for the day: American poet James Russell Lowell said, "Then it is the brave man chooses, while the coward stands alone."

Vandals Ruin Library Files

STANFORD (UPI) —The Stanford University librarian reported Sunday that vandals have caused up to $15,000 damage to the library in the past two weeks.

Librarian David C. Weber said the greatest damage, however, could not be measured in dollars. It is 11,000 cards which have been ripped from the catalog files and torn or otherwise defaced.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Burroughs Stock Merits Retention

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We would appreciate your opinion of Burroughs Corp. We have read that the stock is due for a split. Should we hold or sell and why? — G.R.

A. At current levels, Burroughs appears to be a stock split candidate. Splits usually coincide with rising earnings and stock prices; and Burroughs is experiencing such action at present. Although shares were depressed by recent rumors about large order cancellations for computer equipment, they appear to have discounted this and are now showing renewed strength.

There are problems to be worked out on the development of some software programs for its large-scale B6500 computer system. However, Burroughs has stated that recent new orders have more than offset any that were lost and that the difficulties will be remedied in due time.

Company reported its eighth consecutive year of rising sales and earnings in 1970, as per share net climbed 15.3 per cent on a 17.7 per cent gain in sales. In view of the attractive long-term prospects for Burroughs' new 6700 computer, accounting machines and other business products, shares merit continued retention.

Q. While I was away my broker sold four of my stocks and replaced them with four others without my permission. I now hold American Distilling, American Standard, Charter New York and U.S. Freight. Although I made money on these transactions, I had planned on holding for income. I also hold several bonds. — E.S.

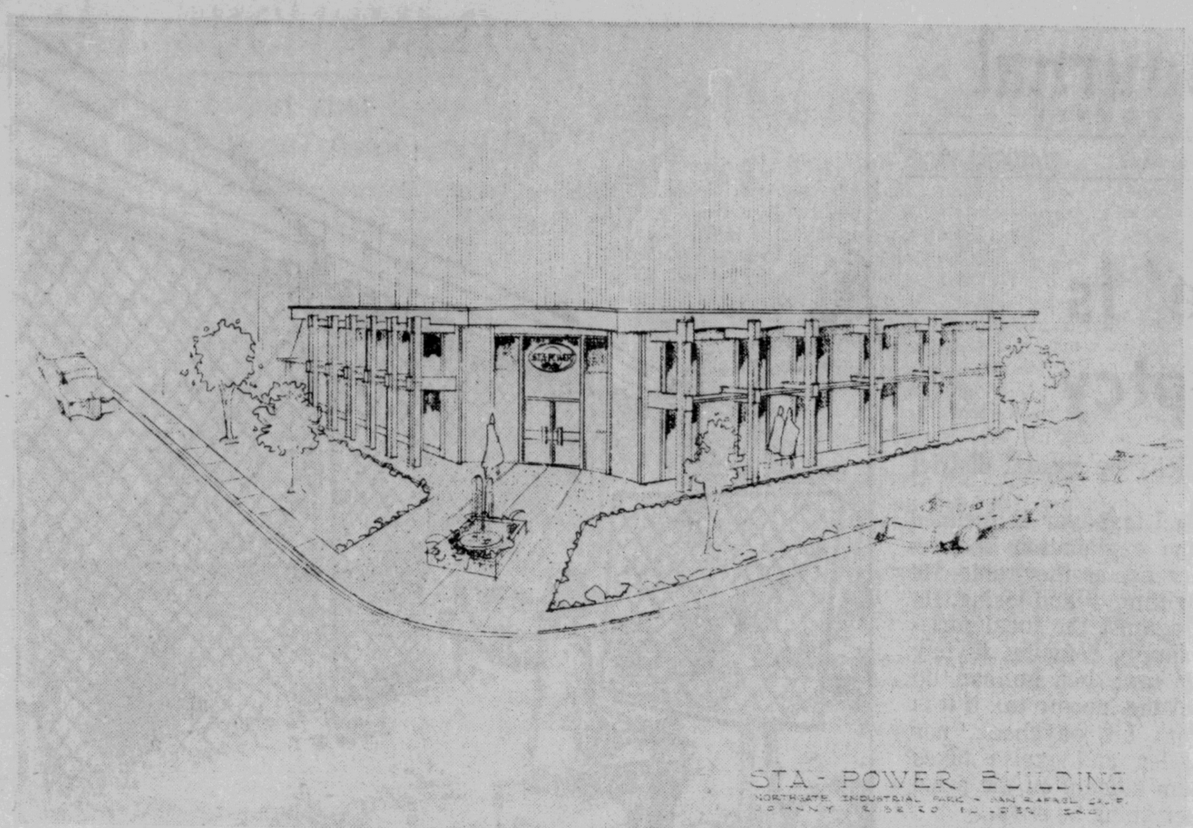

A. There is obviously some serious misunderstanding involved in this situation. Your broker cannot legally make transactions on your behalf without your signed authorization known as limited power of attorney or discretionary power. However, if you had put limit orders on these issues, it is entirely possible that the preset price was reached in your absence and the trades were made automatically.

Your new holdings currently return an average of 3.7 per cent and have good long-range recovery potential.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

'No Way To Save' Is Route To Bankruptcy

The taxpayer has taken such a beating the past few years that he is numb. To predictions of tax increases this year, he reacts in most cases with the grumbling acceptance of a slave who knows there is no way to end his servitude.

Gov. Ronald Reagan has insisted, in a kind of "Horatio at the Bridge" performance, that the balanced budget he submitted to the legislature is possible. Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, who last year carried the administration's unsuccessful tax reform package, says flatly it is not possible.

IT IS NOT, says Bagley, because it makes no allowance for inflation. School support must be increased enough to cover the year's inflation of nearly 7 per cent, he says. And salaries of state employees must be similarly increased. This will unbalance the budget. The result must be more taxes. Bagley suggests they must come from the state income tax, already increased tremendously in the last few years. He also wants state income tax withholding — which makes constant revenue flow to the state, at the expense of additional bookkeeping by every employer. It also makes it easier to raise the income tax, since the bite is in a long series of nibbles instead of one devastating crunch.

At the local level, taxes will take an automatic increase averaging 8.6 per cent because of change in the assessment ratio, without any jurisdiction increasing its rate. Yet here, too, the talk is of increases rather than of rate reductions because of the hike in assessment values.

Here, the reasons put forth are the same: Salaries must be increased to meet the higher cost of living. Allowance must be made for the inflation in price of everything the county, city or special district buys.

The numbed taxpayer is inclined to accept the explanation and regard the increase as inevitable. He is tired of fighting — and losing. He may revolt against the local jurisdiction by simply refusing to pay his property tax; but he can do nothing about the income tax if it is withheld from his paycheck, nor about the sales and excise taxes (many of them hidden) on the price of almost everything he buys.

THE TROUBLE with the explanation that taxes must keep going up because prices have gone up is that it's just not so.

It is true that more taxes are necessary if the same number of people are kept performing the same amount of work, if all the same projects are continued — regardless of their success or failure, if the same boondoggles go on, if methods are unchanged and efficiency is not improved.

When a business starts going into the red, top management starts looking for ways to get more return from less outlay. Government should do the same.

When a man finds the inflation has made his Cadillac too expensive to maintain, he trades it in on a Mustang or even a Datsun. Some of the operations of governments fall into the Cadillac luxury class.

WE FIND IT HARD to buy "There's no way to cut" explanations from government officials who have made no visible attempt to cut expenses and increase efficiency in their own offices.

If a failing business continues in the same practices, it goes bankrupt. State, counties, cities and special districts face the same fate if they refuse to take necessary measures for economy.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Auto Owners Need Greater Protection Than Bill Offers

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — A bill which fails far short of the need has been introduced by Sen. James Q. Wedworth, D-Hawthorne. The measure is SB 185, relating to standards for automobile replacement parts.

The bill would require these parts to meet standards of safety established by the California Highway Patrol, and require that parts for motor vehicle pollution control systems meet specific standards laid down by the Air Resources Board.

All of which is a laudable effort on Senator Wedworth's part, but falls far short of meeting the real need, which is being able to get any parts at all for certain makes of foreign cars which are being sold in increasing numbers on the American market.

SEVERAL YEARS AGO, there was an Assembly bill, which, had it passed, would have required foreign car agencies to maintain a stock of parts in this country which readily could be tapped for needed parts.

Apparently, the legislature thought foreign cars would need no parts, being that perfect, and failed to vote the bill. In fact, it never got out of committee.

The result has been disastrous for many American motorists, who invested in foreign cars because it was thought they were better made and would last longer than the American product.

Having had years of experience with both foreign and American-made vehicles, this writer can testify that this belief is more a figment of the imagination than a fact. Experience has shown that either car, properly taken care of, will give the owner good service.

But try getting parts for the foreign automobile! Perhaps some manufacturers maintain a proper stock in the United States, but one British firm is sufficient to drive the owner slightly insane.

After the owner had a bad accident in which the car was mashed to the point where it needed new parts in several places, the agency, to make a long story short, took nearly six months to restore the automobile to the sahpe it was in before getting hit.

One would think that a foreign manufacturer would have more concern for his customers than to leave them carless for half a year, but the agency did not seem to care.

No doubt Wedworth is trying to provide some protection for the car owner with SB 185, but at least a segment of the owners feel his bill does not go far enough.

Officer's Widow Expresses Thanks

I would like to express my deep appreciation and sincere thanks to all the wonderful people — members of the police departments, fire departments and those too numerous to mention — for . . . the many kindnesses extended during the recent demise of my beloved husband, George M. Newman.

Since the people involved are too numerous to thank individually, I would appreciate your publishing this to serve as one sincere "thank you" to all.

Misrepresentations In San Anselmo Fuss

As the wife of the man two of our Sleepy Hollow neighbors have taken verbal and written "pot shots" at, I feel very deeply about setting the record straight. When statements are not true involing my husband, I take issue.

A statement was made at the board of supervisors meeting, Jan. 19 by a C.S.D. proponent and restated in the Ross Valley Reporter, Jan. 27, that "Mr. Ingels and I have discussed this (CSD) at many cocktail parties", this is an outright lie.

A letter to the editor of the I-J, March 20, contained a misstatement of what took place at the San Anselmo City Council meeting Feb. 24. My husband wrote a letter three weeks before the meeting, as a taxpayer, property owner and resident of Sleepy Hollow, directed to the mayor and city council. No "pointed questions" were asked by him, either in the letter or at the meeting.

Dog Problem Not Limited To Fairfax

So Fairfax has a canine problem? I have news for you — the whole United States has this problem! Since years pets have been bred irresponsibly and even though people are becoming aware of the fact that a problem exists, they keep right on breeding their animals. Don't blame people for having too many dogs and cats. Many of them pick up strays and care for them just because nobody else will. The people who should be blamed are the ones who move and leave their pets behind although they take all their other belongings, useful or otherwise.

Others to be blamed are those who are not willing to have their pets neutered, and certainly those who complain constantly and sit around waiting for someone else to do something about it!

For years Mrs. Margaret Goodyear, founder of "Animal Lovers of Marin," has worked to establish a low cost spaying clinic for Marin County. There has been so much hard work done, yet so much more help is needed! If all those who complain about the canine problem would send a contribution to this worthy cause, things might become a little better. As the "Animal Lovers" bumper strip says: "Neuters Don't Have Suitors"!

As for the many abandoned dogs and cats — don't turn away and leave them thinking somebody else might come along who'd love to have them. There are just not many concerned people or homes left. Unless you can keep the animal yourself, or know somebody who will, take it to the Humane Society, even risking the fact that it might be destroyed if its owner won't claim it. The animal would be better off that way than starving slowly and painfully in our streets.

Collegians Support Fairfax's Feline

I have just received my March 15 edition of the I-J which I receive here at school to keep up with Marvelous Marin. It is with a great deal of pleasure that I focused on the front page story of the now-famous Fairfax feline, Hank the Cat.

As I rushed down the hall of my dormitory yelling "Hank's back on the stool!" I garnered all kinds of support from my colleagues. Therefore, we would like to enlist our support in favor of Hank and urge that steps be taken in order that such an injustice not take place again.

I'm sure Mr. (James J) Jurik was sincere in carrying out his job when he expelled Hank from the famous stool, but a sense of good-natured humaneness, even if it bends rules sometimes, is indispensable to the American way of life; at least when it is harmless, and I think that if a noble, independent creature such as Hank is willing to associate with such as human beings (the cruelest and most treacherous of animals), we should readily accept him into our fellowship.

Almighty Dollar Threatens Larkspur

Once again the Almighty Dollar looms to strike the last vestige of open marshland space in Marin County.

Hopefully the Larkspur Planning Commission will thoroughly weigh the "pros and cons" regarding their decision for acceptance of an apartment complex on this marshland area on Tuesday.

Strictly for their information it is important they realize the "Arkites" are not the only group of opposition they will encounter. They have overlooked conservationist and ecological minded residents of Larkspur as well as Marin County. The bulldozer has pretty well eradicated other areas much to the dismay of many Marinites. I hope the new term "open space" does not fall on deaf ears. In mty humble opinion this above all is the best argument against developing this area.

pros: "Will this land remain always undeveloped?" was not reported in your article. A leisurely stroll down the Boardwalk might convince the inquirer that presently this land is in its highest level of development, if he has the ability to be aware.

As a resident of the Greenbrae area in the town of Larkspur I implore the five gentlemen of this planning commission not to sound the death knell on this "open space". The developers do not have the residents of Larkspur's interest at heart, only the desire to line their pockets with gold.

Letter 'Instance Of Blind Rage'

It was with a growing sense of disbelief that I read Walter Filler's letter, "Fable of Camel Applies to Schools," I-J, March 24.

In his letter Mr. Filler expresses outrage that a local student leader would question the current P.E. requirement in high schools. The student was likened to the camel who insinuated himself into the Arab's tent, first the nose, then the head and neck, and finally his whole body, bringing down the tent.

A student has spoken out on an educational matter of concern to him. Does Mr. Filler have so little faith in the democratic process that he sees in this a threat against the survival of God and order (the tent)?

Mr. Filler did not concern himself in his letter with such mundane matters as whether what the student leader said had merit or not. No reasons were advanced by him as to why P.E. should continue to receive priority over such subjects as math or foreign language; instead, he fulminated over the fact that the suggestion had been made by a mere student. The episode illustrated, according to Filler, "what is happening in our school system, where self-expression . . .and now self-determination . . .threatens (sic) to make a mockery . . ." etc.

I can only see in Mr. Filler's letter yet another instance of the blind and alarming rage which many adults seem to feel toward young people today.

Agnew's Attacks On Media Try To 'Kill The Messenger'

WASHINGTON — The institutions of representative self-government are fragile if only because they rest in the last resort on public confidence and trust. That goes with special force for the media — the concept of a free press. And the question inevitably arises whether Vice President Spiro Agnew is deliberately out to erode confidence in an institution that has survived since the founding of the republic.

During his entire term Agnew has attacked the media. He concentrates on those elements in press and television critical to the administration to such a degree that it looks like blatant intimidation.

HE IS CENTERING a lot of his fire on the Columbia Broadcasting System's "The Selling of the Pentagon," to support his charge of bias and slanted reporting.

The documentary, run twice on the network, was a powerful presentation of how the huge resources of the Department of Defense are used to convince millions of Americans that the military is the embodiment of the good, the true and the beautiful. The Pentagon does not confine itself in its propaganda to glorifying military might but it intrudes, according to the documentary, on foreign policy through the wide circulation of hard-line anti-communist films, many dating from the cold war era.

Agnew and Chairman F. Edward Hebert of the House Armed Services Committee, found specific flaws in the film. Hebert said an interview he had with an Army colonel was used under false pretenses. Statements made by military men were taken out of context, according to Agnew.

THE WHOLE EPISODE might have been forgotten, as public information men in the Pentagon hoped it would be, had it not been for the vice president. He chose a speech in Massachusetts at the Middlesex Club to fire his heaviest broadside. Not only did he attack the Pentagon film but he went back to two earlier documentaries, "Project Nassau" and "Hunger in America." Of the latter he said that CBS had represented a baby as dying from malnutrition when that was untrue. On "Project Nassau" he renewed his charge that CBS had paid to bring off, without success, a rebellion in Haiti and then film it. Richard S. Salant, president of CBS News, denied these charges.

An incident occurred that night revealing perhaps the kind of partisanship Agnew stirs. As he was speaking, a bearded hippie type — a reporter, it later turned out, for an underground paper — stood up. From all over the hall came angry cries of "kill him," "lynch him," "drag him out." The secret service closed in and what he had intended never became known.

In the congressional campaign last fall Agnew won the favor of conservative Republicans who helped to bring about the Nixon nomination in 1968. They are his constituency, and if the President contemplates dumping Agnew in 1972 he can count on their opposition to any such move. This may be the explanation of his continual rousing of old animosities toward the media.

BUT AGNEW'S personal fortunes are for the long pull unimportant when measured against the strength and weaknesses of the institutions that sustain a free society. Like all human institutions, the media is a long way from perfection. It is often overcompetitive, so bent on the immediate sensation, the day's headline, that the underlying cause and effect are lost to view.

A press still relatively free is one of the few checks on the excess of government and the bigness of big industry and big labor. "The Selling of the Pentagon," while it may have erred in stressing the propaganda aspect, illuminates what a $75 billion defense budget means in power and priority.

In his book, "To Kill a Messenger," William Small, Washington news director for CBS, puts it aptly. It is a struggle between the real world and the fantasy world of the extreme right and the extreme left. They both want to kill the messenger who tries to tell it like it is.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Farm Subsidies Pose Common Market Threat

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Ever since the beginning of the European Common Market in 1957, the 25 million farm workers in the six-nation market have been its biggest source of trouble.

France, as the market's greatest agricultural producer, can and has threatened its breakup over the issue of farm supports. On the same issue, France may yet veto Britain's third attempt to gain entry into the market.

In the market, composed of France, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg, farmers are a vocal and important minority. That they are capable of violent expression has just been proven by 80,000 of them in a destructive demonstration in the Common Market headquarters of Brussels.

IN A DISCUSSION of the problem, France may be taken as typical.

In the first place, the French farmer, like the Belgian or British coal miner, is doing exactly what his father and grandfather did before him, and in the same place. He sees no reason either to change or move.

But he feels a deliberate attempt is being made to drive him off the land and into the city, which is true.

Sicco L. Mansholt, the market's agricultural commissioner, wants to take more than half the farmers out of agriculture in the next 10 years under a program of reeducation costing billions of dollars.

Supports for dairy products alone came to ,early $1 billion in 1970.

Mansholt says the trouble lies in the small, uneconomic farms whose owners barely scrape out a living while the large, efficiently run farms reap fortunes out of the subsidies.

These figures show that a French industrial worker takes home $1.09 for each of 2,078 hours worked in the average year. Farm statisticians say a farmer works 50 per cent more hours per year for an income one-third less.

It seems probable that the French people, just emerging from a highly protectionist society, fear change more than they dislike Britain.

So far as France is concerned, the Common Market is a going concern upon which British entry would have an effect as yet undetermined. Therefore, they say, if Britain is to come in, she must pay the price in support of the market's agricultural policy. The British figure that price could reach $1.9 billion by 1978. It could be too high.

The French peasants and other farm workers inside the market say no matter how high supports are now, they are not high enough.

Mayor Pro Tem A Busy Job; Less So Without 'Pro Tem'?

In Novato, the job belongs to City Councilman Joseph D. Gargiulo, evening adult school principal, who apparently would like to be just plain mayor.

As soon as Mayor Douglas M. Merrill announced his resignation at last Tuesday's city council meeting, Gargiulo furnished the council and the press with a mimeographed list of his activities as mayor pro tem since last April.

The intent, he said, was to show that there's a lot more to a mayor's job than presiding at council session.

As mayor pro tem, representing the mayor, Gargiulo has been a busy man, but the list speaks for itself:

"ONE LITTLE LEAGUE opening, one installation of officers (Novato Federated Women), one retirement party for Robert McKeay, one Humane Society dedication, and one Novato Teachers, Association retirement program."

There also were five business openings: San Marin Professional Building, Ross Department Store, Hill Convalescent Hospital, House of Pring, and Round Table Pizza Restaurant, and two church dedications; completion of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church and groundbreaking for a new Catholic Church.

The list goes on: "One Memorial Day talk for Veterans of Foreign Wars, one Planning for Progress workshop, eight chamber of commerce luncheons, one new teacher reception, and eight lectures to high school and junior high school government classes."

In government affairs, Gargiulo listed attendance at three general sessions of the Association of Bay Area Governments, seven sessions of a special study committee of the regional criminal justice board, a senior citizens' housing dedication, and the Council of Mayors and Councilmen's Christmas Party at Hamilton Air Force Base.

He also noted that he presided at city council sessions twice in Merrill's absence, and took over the gavel at several hearings when Merrill had to step down because of conflict of interest.

A LIST LIKE THAT should discourage anyone from wanting to become mayor, but it hasn't discouraged Gargiulo.

Unfortunately for Gargiulo, fellow council members, after studying the list, may decide that he has done such a thorough job as mayor pro tem he should retain it.

Hot Dogs, Beer Missing At Club

Seventeen cans of beer and one package of hot dogs with a combined value of $5 were stolen between 2 and 8 a.m. Saturday from the Tiburon Peninsula Club, 1600 Mar West Street.

Tiburon sheriff's deputies said the theft was reported by manager Sheret Cross. There was no sign of forced entry, officers said.

ART BUCHWALD

Dear Dick: But Just Suppose We Don't Want Arms Facility?

WASHINGTON — President Nixon pulled out all stops in trying to rally enough Senate votes to get the funding of the SST passed. Although he failed, he should get high marks for every tactic he used.

One that came to light, just a few hours before the vote, was a letter he had hand-delivered to Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine saying that he intended to keep open the Portsmouth Naval Base in New Hampshire where many citizens from maine are employed.

Senator Smith became so indignant at what she considered an attempted bribe to get her to vote for the SST that she released the "Dear Margaret" letter to the press and then voted against the supersonic transport.

While this was a setback for Mr. Nixon, it's doubtful that this will be the last such attempt to win over votes by promising federal projects to various senators.

THE NEXT BIG bill President Nixon hopes to get through is his revenue-sharing measure for cities and states, and we can just see a spate of letters being sent off to the Hill a few hours before that vote.

They'll probably go like this:

"Dear Clinton,

"After consulting with the Defense Department, I have decided to go ahead with the building of a submarine naval base in New Mexico, for $100 million. The base when fully built will employ 20,000 people and will bring to New Mexico another $500 million in wages and industry.

"Because New Mexico is not connected to any major waterway, I have concluded that this would be the safest place for a submarine base. The Navy is now working on methods of land transportation to deliver and bring back the submarines from the sea. You have my permission to announce this, and Mrs. Nixon and I are looking forward to seeing you at Tricia's wedding.

"Sincerely,
'Dick.'

"DEAR MARK,

"I am happy to inform you that I have authorized a multi-billion-dollar project to include Portland, Ore., in our ABM system. Mel Laird tells me that Portland is probably the key target of any Chinese missile attack, and we in the White House believe the people of Oregon deserve all the protection they can get. With this installation, plus revenue sharing, which I know the Senate will pass, I can see Portland becoming the most important city on the West Coast.

"Why don't you come down to Key Biscayne for the weekend?

"Sincerely,
"Dick."

"DEAR JIM,

"As you probably know, we've been looking for a new site for our atomic underground tests, and the AEC has recommended Westchester County in New York as the ideal place. (Underneath the Penn Central railroad tracks.)

"I thought since you were a freshman senator, and because of my affection for your brother Bill, that you would like to hear about it before Jake Javits. The AEC plans on spending $300 million and hiring 600 people, which will bring great prosperity to the area. After the revenue-sharing vote this morning, why not come over to the White House and have lunch? I'd love to meet your sister.

"Cheers,
"Dick."

"DEAR STROM,

"It's hard to squeeze one more military base into Charleston, S.C., but our defense people think they can do it. What's your poison?

"Sincerely,
"Dick.

Leftists Grab For Berkeley Power

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)— On April 6 Berkeley voters will cast ballots in an election which could result in the takeover of city government by a coalition led by a group of radicals known as the "Red Family." A loose-knit but powerful group called the "April Coalition" has linked students, blacks and liberal Democrats with the Red Family commune in an effort to gain a majority on the city council.

Another aim of the coalition is to break up the Berkeley Police Department into three independent agencies—one of the black community, a second for the whites and a third for the University of California area.

The police department proposal is backed by several organizations, including the National Committee to Combat Fascism which has ties with the Black Panther Party.

The coalition platform also calls for low-cost housing, city-operated child care centers and tax reforms that strike at the wealthy.

It is running four candidates for the nine-member city council and hopes to fill a fifth position if liberal Councilman Warren Widener, one of the two front-runners for mayor, is elected to that position and vacates his council seat.

Many observers think the coalition has a real chance of taking over the government in the elections.

But win or lose, the coalition is noteworthy because hundreds of revolutionary radicals in Berkeley are members. They are committed for the first time to working "in the system" to achieve their aims.

"The more effervescent revolutionaries think this is the start of The Movement and that Berkeley is the seed," said Mayor Wallace Johnson, who is not running for re-election.

"We're in the new stage of a more subtle or potentially powerful technique to get at control of local government."

Gov. Ronald Reagan says what may happen in the election "should be a problem of concern to everyone in the state. I think it should serve as a warning to every community, that it 'can happen here.'"

One "Establishment" council candidate, Tom Taylor, a Vietnam veteran and son of former Army Chief of Staff Maxwell Taylor, has criticized moderates for failing to unite against the coalition.

"Berkeley could very well have the first elected leftist government in the United States," he said.

The radicals must win all four seats and get the support of Widener to gain a majority of the council.

Widener and another councilman, Wilmont Sweeney, are front runners in the race for mayor. If either wins, it would vacate a fifth council seat, giving the radicals the balance of power on issues that require a simple majority.

The April Coalition did not flatly endorse Widener for Mayor because he did not back the police charter amendment. However, he is considered the radicals' closest ally on the council and many coalition people are campaigning for him as individuals.

"Of course, I don't think there's any question that I would work with them," Widener says. "We don't agree on exactly everything—for example the police amendment—but we do agree on the need for a progressive city council."

Proponents of the police plan say "community control" would end alleged police abuse and brutality. Opponents say it would make a citizen from, say, the black community, powerless against the police if he leaves the boundaries of his neighborhood.

The opposition also claims the separate areas would create sanctuaries for militants reminiscent of the Casbah.

CRLA Probe Panel To Convene In City

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A federal commission will meet in San Francisco Wednesday to lay the groundwork for an investigation of the controversial California Rural Legal Assistance (CRLA) program.

The commission, headed by retired Chief Justice Robert B. Williamson of the Maine Supreme Court, was appointed by the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity(OEO) to examine CRLA activities.

"I don't care"
"I don't have anything to do"
"I hate school"
"I'd rather watch television"
"I don't like to read"
"I can't do it anyway"
"Everybody's ahead of me in class"
"I guess I'm just dumb"
"Do I have to go to school today?"
"I lost my report card"

What your child may be really saying is "I wish I could do better in school." Perhaps you should check your child's reading ability. A child who can read well will be more confident of his or her ability to achieve success in all areas of learning. Call your Sullivan Reading Center for a free reading evaluation test.

Here's what parents say about the Sullivan Reading Program:

Mrs. Joseph Niell, Parent, Palo Alto, Ca.: Joe had two and a half sessions and the change is absolutely incredible. He has moved to a top reading group, he always gets 100 in his spelling tests, and can handle his social studies assignments which require reading with ease and confidence. But the best change of all is that he now enjoys reading. He even bought two books with his own money.

Mrs. William Weir, Parent, Novato, Ca.: Brad's attitude toward learning has greatly improved as a result of your program. He seems to respond favorably to the individual attention that is your specialty.

To improve your child's reading skills—enroll your child in the Sullivan Reading Center. It's not too late to improve your child's reading performance during this school year.

Your child will improve at his own rate of understanding.

The Sullivan Reading program has taught over 5,000,000 children to read in schools throughout the United States.

MONTGOMERY WARD

1970 DESIGNS . . . FACTORY CLEARANCE

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current regular price less the following dollar allowance:

Tread Wear Expectancy	Tread Wearout Allowance
40,000 miles	Prorated on Miles Driven
40 month	$10.00
39 month	8.00
36 month	6.00
33 month	5.00
30 month	4.00
24 month	3.00
18 month	2.00
